

Billionaire's Ex-Wife And His Hidden Babies

95

"What are you doing?" Calvin quickly reached near him after completing his drawing.

"Nothing much. Just preparing questions for dad to know him better."

"Oooo," Calvin looked up at his older brother in admiration. Here his brother was planning to know dad better, and he was wasting his time drawing. With this thought, he immediately frowned.

"Show me your drawing," Colton said, looking at the paper in his hand.

"It's nothing."

"Show me," Colton said, snatching it from his hand and a show a drawing where he had drawn two kids in the middle and a woman on the left side, and a man on the right side. And below it, he had written 'Mom, Colton, me, Dad' in his handwriting. "Wow, it's beautiful."

"Is it?"

"Yes"

Calvin grinned happily before speaking, "I was thinking of giving this to dad tomorrow. Do you think he will also like it?"

"I bet he will love it."

Hearing it, Calvin was on cloud nine, "I'm so happy, Colton. Finally, we will stay with daddy. I will ask him to teach me how to play football and... and how to ride a bicycle." he said with dreamy eyes. "And this time I... I won't let him go."

"Can you add some of my questions as well?" He asked, on which Colton nodded and opened another document to add Calvin's question. "I want to know when his birthday is, his favorite color, how old he is, what his hobbies are... Ummm," Calvin started thinking hard about his next question. "Can he marry mom again in front of us?"

Sophia's jaw dropped when she heard Calvin's last question, who was standing near the door.

*

"What are you doing?" Calvin quickly reached near him after completing his drawing.

"Nothing much. Just preparing questions for dad to know him better."

"Oooo," Calvin looked up at his older brother in admiration. Here his brother was planning to know dad better, and he was wasting his time drawing. With this thought, he immediately frowned.

"Show me your drawing," Colton said, looking at the paper in his hand.

"It's nothing."

"Show me," Colton said, snatching it from his hand and a show a drawing where he had drawn two kids in the middle and a woman on the left side, and a man on the right side. And below it, he had written 'Mom, Colton, me, Dad' in his handwriting. "Wow, it's beautiful."

"Is it?"

"Yes"

Calvin grinned happily before speaking, "I was thinking of giving this to dad tomorrow. Do you think he will also like it?"

"I bet he will love it."

Hearing it, Calvin was on cloud nine, "I'm so happy, Colton. Finally, we will stay with daddy. I will ask him to teach me how to play football and... and how to ride a bicycle." he said with dreamy eyes. "And this time I... I won't let him go."

"Can you add some of my questions as well?" He asked, on which Colton nodded and opened another document to add Calvin's question. "I want to know when his birthday is, his favorite color, how old he is, what his hobbies are... Ummm," Calvin started thinking hard about his next question. "Can he marry mom again in front of us?"

Sophia's jaw dropped when she heard Calvin's last question, who was standing near the door. From the church, she returned home, near her babies, and that was when she heard them talking about the topic named DAD. The topic on which their babies wanted to talk about in they had turned three and started going to nursery. So, she just stayed there to listen to their conversation.

A first, she was wounded by hearing Calvin's cute and innocent question. But her son dropped a nuclear bomb on her.

"Ah," Colton looked at his little brother arching his eyebrow, not able to understand the reason behind his sudden question.

"Why do you want Mom and dad to marry again?"

"Because when they married last time, we were not present." Calvin shared his point. "And Uncle Oliver and Aunt Becca are getting married now in front of their kids, our cousins, then can't Mom and dad do the same? I.. will be ... I will be ringbearer, and then walk down to aisle with mom, holding her hand and... and also be the best man in the wedding." Calvin expressed his thoughts happily.

Sophia felt a pang of pain hearing Calvin's word. There was a time that she too wanted to have a wedding like this, but then situations were not in her favor because of which she just had to get married on paper. Then that marriage turned into a contract marriage.

'It was a contract marriage. Hell, no one in the human world knows that I'm married.' Brandon's voice rang in her ears.

A marriage about which only a rare amount of people knew. A marriage that was done just to keep her in the dark. A marriage that meant nothing to him.

She quickly wiped the tears from the corner of her eyes. She was not going to cry at those bitter memories. All that mattered was the same marriage had given her the reason to stay alive, her twins' identical babies, which could be a werewolf, and she was very well aware of it.

In fact, she shared the same with her sister-in-law, who asked her to stay relaxed till they were kids, but after completing eight years or nine age, they might need training, so she didn't have to worry about that part. But, yes, the toughest thing to do was explain everything to Oliver, which she hadn't done yet.

#TBC