

The Breaking Point of Love

#Chapter 481 - Read The Breaking Point of Love Chapter 481

---- Chapter 481 Celeste always said she was busy and that she didn't have time. But no matter how busy she was, no matter how little time she had, there should at least be time to make a phone call, right? Yet when Jordyn called her, she rarely called back. As for her taking the initiative to call, that was even rarer. It was as if, in her heart, everything else was more important than her. 4 The more Jordyn thought about it, the more wronged she felt, and tears kept streaming down her cheeks.

4 Seeing how pitiful she looked, before Celeste could say anything, Trevor started wiping her tears and said, "Your mom really is very busy with work right now. Next year, though-after next year, your mom's work shouldn't be so busy anymore." 5 After all, Jordyn was still a child. Hearing Trevor's comforting words, the grievance and sadness in her heart immediately eased a lot. She wiped her tears with the back of her hand and looked at Celeste with hopeful eyes. "Really?"

Will you have more time after next year, Mom?" ---- Jordyn was the daughter she had given birth to. Even though she had already given up custody, she still wanted her to live well. Looking at Jordyn's hopeful eyes, Celeste couldn't bring herself to crush that glimmer of hope at this moment. But as for what Trevor said about her being less busy next year, she couldn't give that kind of promise lightly.

1 "My work should basically be wrapped up by the end of this year, but next year there may still be other things to deal with, so I can't promise that I'll definitely have time..." What Celeste said wasn't exactly what Jordyn wanted to hear, but she had seen the trace of reluctance on Celeste's face just now and knew that Celeste still cared about her. Realizing this, she didn't mind the rest so much anymore. Her mood improved.

1 She climbed down from Trevor's arms, ran over to hug Celeste, and said, "Alright then, even if that's the case, it's okay. But Mom, when you do have time, you still have to answer my calls more often." 1 Hearing this, Celeste hesitated slightly, then glanced at Trevor. Trevor looked back at her. He simply looked at her without ---- showing much expression, as if saying, "Do what you want, I won't interfere." Celeste withdrew her gaze and, after two seconds, said, "I will try."

Jordyn's bad moods came and went quickly, and once the gloom had passed, she was easy to comfort. "Okay." Just then, a waiter knocked and came in with the food. The three of them sat back down Jordyn even adjusted her chair, pulling it closer to Celeste's side. She ate while chatting in high spirits about some funny things that had happened during her last training match. In the middle of that, she took out her tablet from her little bag to show Celeste photos from that time.

While Celeste chatted with her, Trevor, seeing how eager she was to share, didn't interrupt. He quietly picked out fish bones for her and served her food. Because Jordyn talked nonstop, the meal lasted quite a while. It wasn't until she was tired and sleepy that she finally began to wind down. ---- Knowing that Celeste didn't have the strength to carry her, she climbed into Trevor's arms and drifted off to sleep.

Once Jordyn was asleep, only Trevor and Celeste were left, facing each other in silence. Celeste glanced at the sleeping girl in his arms, picked up her bag, and stood. "I'll go now. You... take good care of her." Trevor said, "Alright." ¹ Celeste said nothing more, pulled the door open, and left the private room. Trevor remained seated with Jordyn in his arms for a while before finally getting up to leave. ⁵

---- Chapter 482 On Monday, Celeste still went to the Fleming Group for a meeting. Trevor also had an important meeting to attend, so this time, he didn't personally go downstairs to sit in and listen to Celeste's meeting. However, after his meeting ended, Jacob and Zeke heard Trevor ask, "Is the meeting downstairs over? Has the follow-up handling plan been sent up? If it's here, bring it over for me." ¹ Previously, they knew that Trevor had gone downstairs to listen in on Celeste's meetings.

Hearing him say this, Jacob and Zeke exchanged a glance, then looked at the pile of documents in front of Trevor. Trevor was leaving on a business trip tomorrow, so he had to finish processing all the documents on his desk today." In contrast to the work discussed in Celeste's meeting today, which would not officially begin until next month, the plan was still only in its preliminary form. Trevor could easily wait until after his trip to deal with it.

But since he had spoken, Zeke went back to the office to find ---- the documents just delivered from downstairs and handed them to Trevor. Although the plan was called a preliminary draft, in reality, Celeste already had a solid grasp on the follow-up work. The report Trevor received was clear and detailed. After getting the document, Trevor went straight to the specific handling steps. The pages were full of technical jargon, most of which Jacob and Zeke couldn't really understand.

The plan was fairly long, but after reading just a small part, they noticed a faint smile slowly appearing on Trevor's face. ¹ When reading, Trevor only skimmed for key terms. Then, they saw him reading faster and faster-eight to nine pages of content were finished in under three minutes. ¹ By the time he was done, the smile in his eyes was almost impossible to hide.

² It was clear to them that he was very satisfied with the plan. Just as Jacob and Zeke were about to speak, Trevor closed the document, looked at them, and said, "They should be going to a group lunch later. Zeke, go tell them that I'll be joining as well." ² Both of them froze for a moment. ---- Then, Zeke replied, "Alright." Indeed, Celeste's group had a lunch gathering scheduled for noon.

When it was almost time to leave, Celeste and the others were just about to set off when the head of Fleming Group's technical department, Lazarus Collet, said to them, "Just got word that Mr. Fleming will also be coming to lunch." Celeste didn't show much reaction. Matthias, who was also present today, pursed his lips when he heard this. Leaning toward Celeste, he muttered, "With the current stage of cooperation between the two companies, there's no need for him to get personally involved."

"What's he coming for?" + Celeste shook her head. If he didn't know, she naturally didn't know either. Trevor still had quite a bit to handle, so Celeste, Matthias, and the others arrived at the restaurant and waited for a while before he arrived with Jacob later. When Trevor appeared, several senior executives and engineers from Fleming Group immediately stood to greet him.

---- After a brief exchange of pleasantries, he turned his gaze to Celeste and Matthias, took the initiative to shake hands, and said, "I've read the follow-up handling plan. The ideas are excellent. Thank you for your hard work." = The senior staff from the technical department were all rather surprised to hear this. Their plan had only just been submitted, yet Trevor had already read it? That fast? 2

---- Chapter 483 Given the situation, Matthias and Celeste could only politely shake hands with Trevor. After greeting him, they had just taken their seats when Matthias received a phone call. There was an urgent matter at the company that required him to rush back and handle it.

After Matthias had said his goodbyes to Trevor and Lazarus, Celeste, noticing his expression, asked quietly with some concern, "What's wrong?" Matthias lightly patted her shoulder in reassurance, bent down close to her, and whispered, "Don't worry, I can handle it." 2 Hearing this, Celeste felt relieved. The others at the table, seeing the way they cared for each other and spoke in such an intimate tone, couldn't help but sigh inwardly at how good their relationship was.

Jacob and Zeke, watching this scene, simultaneously glanced over at Trevor. The others didn't know, but they were well aware that Trevor's presence here today was because of Celeste. However, when they looked over, they couldn't quite read ---- Trevor's expression and had no idea what he was thinking at that moment. @ Matthias left, and the meal continued. After ordering, the conversation at the table gradually shifted toward the details of the two companies' future cooperation.

At this point, Trevor looked at Celeste and interjected, "I'm quite interested in the heterogeneous solution mentioned in point three of the latest plan. "If it's fully implemented, both the perception chip and the terminal performance would see significant improvement. "However, the implementation difficulty is also quite high.

For example, overly complex programming, fast computing units, but overly slow data transfer-all of these are big problems that require a large amount of cost and manpower to solve. 2 "As for the programming complexity, it's true that the AI auto- code-splitting you mentioned in the plan could address it. But the maturity of AI auto code-splitting technology is currently insufficient.

Wouldn't that introduce even more problems?" 3 Previously, when they heard Trevor say he had already read the latest plan, the senior members of Fleming Group's technical department were surprised. Afterward, they privately assumed it was just polite talk ---- Now, hearing him bring up such specific points, they realized he really had read the plan. 1 Celeste was also somewhat surprised.

Since Trevor was representing the Fleming Group and had raised a question, she could only respond, "You're right, that is indeed an issue. But when problems arise at this stage, I can make a commitment in terms of computing power. "We can provide a model at the hundred-billion parameter scale. As for the difficulty of toolchain integration, we can..." Since Trevor had asked, Celeste spoke at length on the topic.

As she spoke, Trevor joined in the discussion, saying, "At present, this technology still needs breakthroughs in the field of high-reliability system development. Are you currently thinking of using an alternative path, or...2" 2 The more they talked, the deeper they went. 2 After listening for a while and seeing the smile in Trevor's eyes, both Jacob and Zeke, as well as the senior members and technical staff from the Fleming Group present, suddenly realized something.

Trevor already had a clear idea of the follow-up solutions for this project all along. ---- And it was obvious that Celeste's solution aligned perfectly with his own thinking! = At that moment, Jacob and Zeke finally understood why, back in the office, Trevor could grasp the entire plan just by looking at the key points. They also understood why he had worn that particular smile after reading it, and why he had gone out of his way to attend this lunch gathering.

2 Thinking of this, and then seeing the way he looked at Celeste, with that smile beneath his deep gaze, they silently lowered their heads. 7
