

Be Honest! 86

Chapter 86 Why Was It Here?

Like so, Butler Feng and the rest continued being punching bags to the best of their abilities, holding them back to some extent.

There were times where one of them would almost get carried off and eaten. But thanks to either Raulin, Zhulyn or Butler Sheng, they would be saved in the nick of time.

But as for Dorian, he was in full concentration mode now!

.

Well, one would think that the thing that kept him busy all this time would've been the matter of releasing the girl from the floating barred smoke cell.

But if anyone thought so, then... Oops. Wrong answer.

Dorian examined the thing in his hand again with a strange light in his eyes.

As he expected, these demons managed to bring a real demon relic into this world.

That alone should be an underworld crime!

Demon relics were like the items that the former or current Demon rulers had worn or used during their reign.

These items had stored demonic power of those former people, and were items that any demon, even the most powerful people, sought to gather.

And it was a law and a taboo for these relics to leave the underworld.

Do you know how powerful these relics were?

Heh. It was akin to Poseidon dropping his Trident down on earth for any random person to pick up.

And you know, the longer the demon ruler or powerful demon wears or uses certain items, the stronger those items would be after they die.

Even their rings, if dropped into this world, could cause the next world wars.

These Underworld rulers reigned for millenniums and centuries. So even their clothes and armour were something that people in the underworld scrambled for.

Of course, underworld rulers weren't the only ones capable of leaving such string relics. Any powerful demon ranked 2 places below the Underworld Ruler could probably do so too.

But theirs wouldn't be stronger than their leaders.

Anyway, even with the relics all about, the real issue lies in unlocking the potential of these relics.

In the hands of those who weren't worthy enough, these relics would continue to be ordinary.

And might just be used for ordinary purposes.

Take for example, a holy sword.

In the hands of those who weren't chosen, the sword would remain dormant, but could still be swung around, used and might even get rusted too.

However, after the sword finds or acknowledges its user, it will awaken, and even the rust from it would shake out, revealing a brand new blade.

The same could be said for demon relics.

Heh. How can the relic of a mighty demon be awakened by just anyone?

.

The system looked at the relic strangely.

It was a skeletal bone finger... But something else bothered it.

['Host... How do you know that this thing is a relic? Even back in your world, from what I've gathered about your past, you've never seen a relic before. So how do you know that it's this bone finger is one?']

Dorian rolled the finger across his palms with a strange smile on his lips: 'I would also like to know how I know.'

['... Host... Has anyone ever told you that you're scary when you smile like that?']

Shiver. Shiver.

The system looked at its host and shivered like a frightened chicken.

It was seriously starting to suspect its host.

Dorian chuckled and quickly ignored the system.

He glanced around and once again confirmed his thoughts.

They hadn't unlocked the finger's potential and had even discarded the finger as if it were garbage.

So the one thing Dorian was sure of was that these lesser demons might not have known about the finger's might.

So could it be that they accidentally brought it over?

But that wasn't right. Why would they just carry a bony finger without any purpose?

Or could it be that someone in the underworld had secretly chosen these people to be his scapegoats in order to sneak the finger out?

.

Dorian suddenly felt uneasy.

Taking it out from the underworld was a crime for underworld creatures.

And if the underworld law enforcers knew about this, any demon, be it a mighty one, could get stripped of their positions in a heartbeat.

Here's the thing.

The underworld was also needed to punish those who the heavens sent down from the mortal realm.

That's right. The heavens and hell must and would always exist.

Those who raped countless men and women, dissected their bodies, and so many other wicked acts, might be damned to suffer a punishment of a thousand years in the underworld, undergoing the literal word Hell!

But bear in mind that the souls that get sent down for punishment also have what one might say was a heavenly tracker on them.

So no demon would dare to... You know... Eat or steal any soul sent from above.

Thus, they did their jobs on the surface as per heaven's requests.

And after receiving the soul, they would punish it according to the rules.

Following that, the soul would get sent back to the heavens, who will in turn judge whether to continue punishing the souls via strange reincarnations and whatnot.

After that, one might be a horse or even a hunted fish.

Well, either way. The underworld dared not mess with the souls sent down for punishment.

And it has been like this since the creation of the underworld.

Because of the gift of human free will, good and evil would continue to exist.

.

Now, back to the matter with the relic, it's clear that someone in power had sent it to this world.

Maybe they know of it... Or could it be that they had found a way to awaken it?

Could it be that this relic was one of the key items they would need before the Big Event?

Dorian was deep in thought, while the system was also anxious as well.

['Host... You have to hurry. The others might not be able to last long at this rate.']

'Hmhm,' he replied before keeping the finger aside.

In truth, he could've broken the cage in a minute and a half if he wanted to.

But after seeing the finger, he decided to give the rest a little training session by telling them to hold things off for 4 minutes.

Hey... What could he do?

~Swish!~

Chapter 87 Gia Girl Returned

Alright. He placed the bone finger away and looked at the floating cage of black smoke that seemed to draw anyone who looked at it into a hypnotic state.

The black cloud was continuously working around, the closer his body got to it.

That's right.

It acted like it had a mind of its own, trying to frighten Dorian back after feeling the Holy aura emitting from Dorian's hands.

~Hup! Hup! Hup!

Dorian's fingers continuously moved as if he were some ninja.

And as he continuously stretched his fingers in all positions, the gold coin in his hand floated on its own and began emitting various colours ranging from red to orange.

The coin stayed in place in the air for a bit before spinning on the same spot faster and faster until it became leaving after images of itself.

Whoop! Whoop! Whoop! Whoop!

The coin then floated to an even higher height, gathering substantial Holy energy from above.

The spinning coin soon turned into a massive spinning ball of light that could blind anyone that peeked at it for long.

What the hell was going on there?

Both the creature and everyone else suddenly felt an intense pressure pressing onto their bodies like crazy.

Their bodies, as if not their own, refused to move an inch no matter how much they tried to make it move

Even the creatures felt stagnated as well.

Their expressions turned grim as they felt their entire bodies itch uncomfortably.

Now, they felt like vampires who weren't strong enough to stay out in the sun.

No. That wasn't even the best comparison because True blood and strong enough vampires could last in the sun for months.

But weak and lesser vampires would burn from just a single ray of sunlight.

No! It would be better to say that they felt like an ant that had been subdued to torture when one placed a magnifying glass on them during a boiling summer.

.

~Tsiiii~

A sizzling sensation echoed out, causing the creature's body to tremble in anguish.

"Zeahhhh~::~"

They flared their hands about, shaking from side to side and using their hands to hide the back of theirs as though everything was just a bad dream that would go away!

With their backs facing the bright light, they felt several burning rays of light burn them mercilessly.

And the most painful thing of it all was that the pressure from the light made them feel too weak to flee.

.

Dorian, who still has his eyes closed and his fingers working, speeded up his chants the larger the holy ball grew: "Shshshshshshsh~!!!"

His chants caused the air around him to turn vigorously.

But that wasn't all. The rays of light quickly affected the Black smoke cage, making it seem as if it was bubbling as well.

Brrbrbrbr~

The sounds grew louder and louder until Dorian seemed satisfied.

And soon enough, he opened his eyes and stared at the black ball coldly: "Holy Inferno Light of Limbus! Extinguish the Darkness Within!"

Swish!

Like lightning, the gigantic Holy Ball followed with the black ball.

Boom!

The clash happened like a movie!

And before everyone knew it, a massive surge of white light surged out throughout the entire Park, accompanied by a strong wind that threw several fish out of the lake's water.

Swah!

Everyone was soaking wet from the tidal wash.

And at this moment, one might think that they were pleased or excited by it all.

But f! No!

Right now, they couldn't hear or see a thing!

That's right. The catatonic explosion that seemed more like a holy nuclear one had taken away their sights and hearing.

It was as if the entire world, including the insects, had decided to go to sleep.

And this alone made their hearts race with horror.

Blind and deaf at a time like this?

What if the creature takes advantage of them, gobbling them up in one bite?

Several people higher themselves tighter than before, as they earnestly wanted to awake their human senses, hoping and praying for the best.

At this point, there was no denying that their entire stomachs felt knotted as a wave of acid swelled up within it too.

'Calm yourself, man!' Old Gia reminded himself while clutching the now wet ground in panic.

Worrying won't solve anything!

.

Like so, countless people were afraid, brave, petrified, still held hope in their hearts, wishing that their sights would return to them sooner rather than later.

And as if the heavens had heard them, the sight and hearing returned to normal.

~Swuhhh~

Their hearing seemed to be the first thing that returned to them.

As for their sight, it slowly took form, first starting hazy until it became clear and clear by the millisecond.

And before they could blink, Dorian was already standing before them with the girl.

' '

Dorian didn't bother about their dazed expressions and calmly handed the girl over to her Mother.

Pia, who touched the pale-looking girl, couldn't stop her lips from trembling hard, suppressing all her emotions locked up within her.

You look at me, I look at you.

She stared at Dorian eyeball to eyeball, as if wanting to get the truth from him: "Grandmaster... Say it as it is... Is she my daughter?"

That's right. Was she really the darling Gia princess?

Even though Pia could instantly feel the motherly connection, she still wanted to be 100% sure.

Heh. Who knew if these monsters could replicate the feeling and make her take in another fraudster?

Only her daughter deserved the best things from her. So why in heaven's name would she be willing to pamper another monster?

If she made the same mistake twice, then she didn't deserve to be a mother.

Of course, the other Gia men were also looking at the girl suspiciously.

They really couldn't afford to go through the same thing again.

Of course, the security guards who heard this started feeling suspicious of It all as well.

Wait! It was now that a few of them pierced a few things together.

In particular, Nemo felt like he had solved the case. But it was just that his thoughts shook him to the core!

'Nemo! Nemo! You smart son of bch! Your mind has done it again!... That's right. A few days ago, if the Gia girl went missing in the park. Everyone looked for her. And when they found her, she was dripping wet from leaving the water. Again, it was reported that the Gia family did take her home. So doesn't this mean that she got switched with a monster?'

Neno opened his trembling mouth in a daze, feeling all numb from the shock his mind gave him.

'Well, I'll be damned. The Gia family took back a freaking Minster home?'

Holy Cow!

A few people who understood the truth were even more frightened about being out in society now.

If these things could look like others, then who's to say that their wives, husbands, children or anyone close to them hadn't been switched up as well?

Smoke... Smoke... Smoke...

Some of them wanted a cigarette to calm their anxiety.

And all these thoughts passed through their heads in no more than 2 seconds.

.

Dorian was still in a staring contest with Pia: "She's your daughter."

Drip. Drip.

Tears flushed out of Pia's face as she tightened her group around her unconscious daughter: "Thank you... Thank you, Grandmaster." Pia then looked at her daughter in fear.

"Don't worry. She's just unconscious. We'll finish her matter later on. For now, it's time to end this."

In a flash, Dorian vanished and blocked the creature's attempt to carry one of the guards away.

Slash!

"Zeahhhhh!~"

The creature screamed in pain when seeing one of its hands get sliced off.

It wailed and backed away in pain, only to quickly fall to the ground on its butt while looking at Dorian in horror.

How... How... How was this possible?

Swish!

Dorian calmly jumped in the air and smiled cruelly.

"10 swords of death, Finish him!"

~Slash! Slash! Slash! Slash! Slash!~

Like a massive combo attack, all link floating blades dashed towards its enemy like crazy, causing the creature to pierce multiple screams the harder the combo attacks landed.

"ZEAH-ZEAH-ZEAH-ZEAH!~"

~Slash! Slash! Slash! Slash!~

"No! Stop! Stop for us, Mortal! We have a boss! We have a powerful boss who will kill you if we die!"

Dorian, as if annoyed, suddenly decided to change his attack: "Hammers of Justice, 5-Style Dance!"

~Bam! Bam! Bam! Bam! Bam!~

[Creature]: (:TOT:)

Dammit! Dammit!

The attacks rained harder and harder as giant mallet-like hammers continuously pounded the creature mercilessly.

And once again, those watching honestly felt like shedding a tear for the creature.

Just from the way these creatures acted, one could see their fear when dealing with Dorian.

That is... Even when the creatures all broke away and dismantled from their giant forms and tried to flee, Dorian used several golden cowboy ropes to hook and reel them in: "Where do you all think you're going? Get back here!"

Swish!

"No! Stop!!!"

~Bam!

"Mortal... What you're doing is a crime!"

~Bam!

"Please spare us! We are only children at 180 years old."

~Bam! Bam! Bam! Bam! Bam!~

[Dorian]: Noisy.

Chapter 88 The Guest Has Arrived

5 A.M!

~Plop.

Butler Sheng, Zhulyn and Raulin fell to their beds in one big swoop.

And with no second to lose, they quickly submerged themselves into dreamland.

~~Snore~~

The sandman had already taken them away.

And to recap on the crazy night they had, first... They fought their butts off, faced a crazy amount of creatures tonight, as well as completed the tasks assigned to them.

But more importantly, for the fact that Dorian was near exhausted and drained after dealing with this issue... the Gia household paid a whopping 20 million for the fees and an additional 30 million appreciation bonus.

That's right.

They didn't know that it was that 'easy' for them to make money.

But to these high noble families, it wasn't expensive at all.

Of course, they went to the Gia home later on and instructed them on what to do in order to purify their entire Grand estate and themselves.

But for the girl, he would particularly come over 3 times a week to completely settle her matter.

Now, in total, Dorian had a little over 70 million when thinking about all the jobs he had done so far, as well as what little savings they still had in their Tian savings.

So with 70 million, his budget for tonight was 55 million.

That's right. He planned to buy an island for that price, no more... No less.

And for that price range, he could get 650~1200 Acres of land.

That alone meant that his Academy would be freaking huge, taking hours to get from one place to another. It

Fair enough, it was enough to make a moderate-sized sect on.

Well, now Dorian was ready for tonight's auction!

With that, he closed his eyes and cultivated for the very hours of the morning until he sensed someone coming over.

Hm?

He opened his eyes and vanished on the spot.

~Swish!

.

9:45 A.M.

Chiyou stood outside the massive gate with a tightened chest.

Just starting at the desolate but luxurious estate was enough to make her legs turn wobbly.

She smacked her lips hard, feeling very out of place in this affluent community.

This gated community had several guards at the very entrance of the place.

And if any guest had to enter, they had to give their name, show their I.Ds, undergo checks and whatnot.

Like so, she was allowed in. But even at that, it took another half an hour for her to get to walk from the Entrance gates to Dorian's estate.

The Luxury villas here had a great deal of land within each estate. And the further one went in, the bigger the estates in size.

For her, she wasn't allowed to drive in with a taxi, so she could only walk on into the place.

And the shock she received was enough to keep her tongue-tied for ages.

From the barred gates, one could still see the nudity of the villas. So while walking by, she had been dumbfounded and completely blown away by the many sights she had passed by.

And the further she walked, the more nervous she became.

Villa 37. The Tian Residence.

.

Gulp.

Chiyou was in a dilemma while looking through the desolate yet stunning gated estate before her.

The appointment was for 10 A.M sharp.

But it was just 9:45 A.M... So should she ring the bell this early or not?

Typically, if this were a business meeting of some sort, she could go in early, sit and wait for her appointment.

But in this case, what if such a move would annoy the Grandmaster instead?

After all, she couldn't see any guards at the front gates or anyone who could be of assistance to her.

So should she just wait?

But then again, what if the right move was actually to ring the bell and get buzzed in?

Dammit!

Her brain was about to explode from all the guessing.

And maybe that might've been the case if the door hadn't just opened on its own now.

~Swahhh~

The creaky sounds of the metal bars slowly opening, frightened Chiyou who had been deep in thought.

And like a cat on edge, the hairs across her body all stood in salute as she hopped to the side on one foot with her mouth opened wide.

Bubuum. Bubuum.

The gate's sudden action greatly stimulated her little heart.

And Chiyou, who heard her name echo out, subconsciously tightened her grip on her handbag while quickly but vigilantly walking into the massive estate.

["Come in, Miss Chiyou."]

... Erm... Are you sure?

Blink. Blink.

She did as she was told and moved in.

But at this point, she hadn't seen anyone yet and was still on edge from just this little situation.

At times, she would take one big step forward with one leg, and drag the other as if it were limp... All while looking around and hiding her bag tightly.

As for where she had to go, the voice had already instructed her on that.

You see, the main villa road led to the main building at the center of the Villa. And from the main road were a few branch roads that led to 5 other buildings within the villa.

It was easy to see that the main building was surrounded by 5 structures, all evenly spaced.

It was as if these structures were guarding the main building.

Nonetheless, the space between them was still great enough in such a way that they didn't destroy the beauty of the place.

It all blended in well, with several lawns, fountains and fish ponds around.

Nonetheless, this was a standard, typical villa style that was indeed below a powerhouse like the Tian's.

But Chiyou, who didn't know this, thought it was the most incredible sight she had ever seen in her life!

(°0°)

.

Like so, she followed the voice guiding her into the estate, even into the main building.

Yup. It was still guiding her now.

[Left turn.]

[Pass the Hallway]

[Right Turn]

[Enter!]

Enter?

Chiyou took a deep breath before stepping into the massive Hall before her.

And instantly, her vision was drawn to the young man seated very far away from the doors.

"Grandmaster! This humble one has come just as requested!"

Chapter 89 To Netaji Village!

"Grandmaster! This humble one has come just as requested!"

" _ "

...

Chiyou's body remained bent and arched forward, giving the deepest bow that she could.

Yes.

She was bowing to show her humility before the Grandmaster.

After all, that's how It was typically done in movies and books.

So she felt it was only suitable that she acted the same too, no?

Dorian raised his brows in amusement while marvelling at how over-imaginative people in this world were.

He had never placed any such rules, yet they seemed to have made up some imaginative rules and mannerisms when it came to him.

Well, if it made them sleep better at night, what was it to him?

Provided it didn't hurt anyone, he couldn't care less.

For now, it was vital for them to solve her problems!

Dorian glanced at her calmly: "Raise your head."

"Thank you, Grandmaster!"

"Hmm... What about your family?"

"Grandmaster! After placing the strange papers on them, it glowed faintly for only a second or even less. And then, they suddenly woke up, feeling better than before!" She said with countless emotions choked up in her voice.

Just thinking about the miracle she witnessed yesterday within their home, made her believe more and more in the supernatural.

At this point, no one could convince her otherwise!

And again, she realized just how cruel the world truly was.

That's right! It was that bastard classmate of hers that did this to her family!

All because of jealousy, that classmate had gone all out, trying to kill her entire family in one swoop.

Last night, she told her parents about it all after they finally woke up. And because of the shock, they were so terrified that they dared not even play or smile too much with their neighbours.

They weren't all that cautious before. But now, what if someone else tried to kill them in this same manner again?

You know, it was also hard to process the fact that what Chiyou was saying was true. But the facts were right there! So they chose to stay indoors until the Grandmaster helped them!

.

Chiyou, who was still interested in her thoughts, suddenly heard Dorian's voice echoing out.

"Stretch out her wrists."

Without wasting time, she did as she was told, allowing Dorian to examine her even further.

He looked at her intensely before nodding once more, as if confirming his thoughts yet again.

But sometimes, he would frown, and other times, his frown would ease up again.

And all his expressions were only making Chiyou anxious instead.

Why did he frown? Why did he ease up and then suddenly frown again?

Oh my Heavens!

Chiyou felt like she was about to go crazy now.

Come on, man! Speak! What the hell was wrong with her now?

Chiyou bit her lip aggrievedly while looking at Dorian anxiously too.

She wanted to ask but dared not. So what other choice did she have other than to shut up?

Dorian, who didn't like her dilemma, continued to examine her for a bit before leaving back into his chair.

"Miss Chiyou! It's just like I confirmed last time. But today, I realized something else about the matter."

"Some... Something else?"

Dorian nodded with his hand resting on his chin: "Hmhm... Something else." He said deeply.

And after that, he paused for another extended period before casually treating the whole matter as if it were nothing.

" "

Eh? That's all you have to say?

...

Chiyou stared at him with open eyes, wishing that she could do something unspeakable to him.

She would've liked to hit him 50-combo lightning also to his face for making her go to hell and back within this single moment.

F!

You say you discovered something else that might be wrong. Then why not say it?

Okay. Maybe he didn't feel it necessary for her to know. Then if that's the case, why not have it all together? Why start telling her that something was wrong first?

Dorian, who didn't know what Chiyou was thinking, had long connected with Butler Sheng instead.

Amongst the trio, Butler Sheng was the only ken to wake up 40 minutes ago.

In fact, he was still the only one up at this moment.

After all, they had been overworked the entire day yesterday... And had only fallen to their beds around 5 A.M.

And Miss Chiyou's appointment was by 10 A.M.

So even though he didn't have to, Butler Sheng had still insisted on setting his alarm 40 minutes before Chiyou's appointment.

You see, he volunteered to be their driver for today.

And immediately after Chiyou's matter, they would return and sleep for a little more.

After all, tonight, they would be out again, purchasing Land.

So they had to be fully energized for what was to come.

Additionally, today, Dorian had long spoken to Bewoh on the phone about matters here.

This morning, Chan-Ki in the hospital was supposed to switch with Zhulyn.

So now, because the boys needed all the rest they could get, no switches would be done today.

Everyone will stay right where they were!

.

~Bam!

Right on cue, Butler Sheng opened one of the side doors leading to the hall and walked in wearing a very sleek coat, hat, pocket watch, and gloves on him.

Of course, he was also holding another coat in his hands too.

"Grandmaster. The items have been placed, and the vehicle is ready."

"Good," Dorian replied approvingly.

And seeing him walk towards Butler Sheng, Chiyou also followed along like a puppy too.

She glanced at the scene of Butler Sheng aiding Dorian while wearing his coat and only felt as if she were watching some aristocratic movie of some sort.

So this was how they did it in the movies?

Butler Sheng kept fussing over Dorian as the duo walked on slowly.

And when he was satisfied with Dorian's clean look, Butler Sheng then moved alongside Dorian.

And from time to time, when there was a door ahead of them, he would move faster and do the job.

Like so, the gang entered the vehicle. And this time, Butler Sheng was the driver.

Of course, Chiyu dared not sit at the back with Dorian.

Butler Sheng glanced at her calmly: "You said Netaji Village?"

"Yes, sir! It is indeed Netaji Village, within the outskirts of the city."

"Hmmm... I'm afraid that the G.P.S can only accurately take us to Netaji Village. But as for finding your particular home within the village, you'll have to show the way... Now, seatbelt, please."

"..."

Chapter 90 To Netaji Village 2

~Vrrrrmmmmmm~

The vehicle drove in silence, with everyone immersed in deep thought.

What was going to happen? How would today's event turn out?

Will the luck-stolen family be able to survive this catastrophe?

Chiyou stared at the white fluffy clouds with an expressionless face as if drawn into a world of her own.

She felt like she was going to face off a mighty enemy in some final movie battle.

And at this moment, the closer they got to her village, the more her heart drummed chaotically.

Vrrrrmmmm~~

Their vehicle drove out to the city and followed along the main road, passing several trees along the roads.

And soon, they made a branch towards one of dusty, stone-filled roads with pot-holes in it.

The road wasn't tarred in any way and was very uneven as well.

Nonetheless, it was indeed a big 3-lane road.

And from time to time, they would see several dusty trucks carrying fruits or private merchandise from being that wanted to go to the city and sell their goods.

At times, they would also see the villagers with farming tools as well.

The air here was far cleaner and far breathable than that in the city.

And as they drove by, the villagers on foot looked at their car in shock and disbelief.

Oh my God!

They didn't know how much such a car would cost. But just looking at how shiny and nice-looking it was, they felt that it should be pretty expensive!

"Waw! Just look at that car? Do you think that it's some rich tycoon coming to see the Village chief again?"

"Hey! It's possible. After all, wasn't it just 3 months ago that those big city people came to see the village chief to acquire land?"

"Yes. Yes. Yes... I think that might be it!"

"No way! The last group of people that came arrived here in a large number. But this is just one vehicle driving by. So it's probably some rich guy looking for someone to marry."

"Hey! Do you think that the guy came for the village chief's daughter? Ahhhh!~~ I can already see it now. The village Chief's daughter must've been able to catch the eyes of some noble young master. And he's here to propose to her!"

"Wow! What a real Cinderella story."

"Bullish! How come it's the Village Chief's daughter who's the most suited to marry such a wealthy Young Master? What's wrong with my JiJi?"

"Yeah! What makes that arrogant sl's daughter better than ours?"

(^)

....

The crowd of passerbys gossiped and came up with theories about why such a luxury vehicle would pass through this path or head to their village.

It was just so bizarre and eye-catching to see such a feat!

And Chiyou, who was in the car, only felt like leaning down into her seat for fear that anyone would see her.

She couldn't even hear what people were saying, but knowing how rumours and speculation were quick to spread in her village, she knew that her reputation would go down the gutters after she was caught or seen stepping out of the vehicle.

Some might speculate and start calling her a Money-worshipper.

Moreover, after the Grandmaster solved her problem, the moment when people would no longer see him around her, they would start saying that he dumped her for this, that and whatnot.

The colour from her face drained the moment Chiyou saw a few famous village gossipers ahead.

"Relax. They can't see through the glass." Butler Sheng said casually, without taking his eyes off the road.

Chiyou gawked in embarrassment from his words: "Th-thank you."

With that, she tried to control her nerves while sitting firmly in her seat.

And Dorian, who saw her reaction, calmly closed his eyes yet again and began scanning his environment.

Zoom!

Like an eagle's eyes, he peered ahead in full focus-mode, seeing far more than what ordinary humans could.

His senses were heightened so much that he could detect even the slightest change in weather.

Dorian searched and did a few calculations for a while before quickly opening his eyes again.

Butler Sheng nodded his head after suddenly hearing Dorian's words in his head.

Vrrmmmm!~~

The car speeded up a bit, leaving the very few passerbys on the road starting in wonder.

And after driving onwards for a bit, it took a sharp grassy bend that looked like a one-way road deep into the forest.

You know, as farmers and villagers, these paths were there for those who had to transport goods from their cultivated plot of land up the high hilly trails.

Like so, they drove in and came across several of these man-made paths, going towards all sorts of directions.

"Stay foremost Left!"

It was the most desolate amongst them all.

Good.

~Bam!

They stepped out of the car and shut the doors amidst Chiyou's worries.

"Grandmaster... pardon my rudeness, but I think it's a bad idea for you to park your vehicle here."
She said anxiously while still looking around vigilantly.

"Grandmaster, just as every society, there are always thieves amongst us all. So don't think that just because we're village folks, some people won't dare to steal from you." She warned again.

But no matter how she warned, no one seemed to listen to her. It was as though she were unnoticeable or something.

And for this, she only had invisible tears in her eyes to shed for this matter.

Do you know how desperate, dangerous and ruthless village thieves were?

Leave such a fine car out in the open like this, then once any of them find it, if they couldn't steal the car as a whole, then they would settle for taking pieces of it instead.

That's right.

She was talking about stealing the tires, windows and even the engine of the car.

Hell! Don't joke with people here.

Whatever could make them a quick buck without them having to lose money from their own pockets was a damn good deal.

Now, Chiyou was perplexed and helpless in this matter.

'Grandmaster... It's not that I want to insult you, but could it be that you're so smart to the point that you lack common sense?'