Chapter 1101 When Did You Find Out?

Three days later, Jenny and Evan stood at the entrance of Bardoff Airport. After listening in to Evan's conversations with others for the past few days, Jenny had already learned everything about the situation, but even so, she didn't go back on her word and said she wouldn't go abroad. Instead, she pretended to know nothing and still came to the airport with Evan.

However, it didn't mean that she would really board the plane.

In the waiting lounge, half an hour before boarding, Evan wished fervently for time to pass quickly. Jenny remained indifferent, and Evan couldn't tell any emotions from her face, making him uneasy.

"Jenny, don't worry. Once we find Dr. Gaarder, I'll cooperate with the treatment and try to recover as soon as possible, then we can return to the country," Evan said.

Jenny smiled lightly at his words. "Evan, you still won't tell me the truth even now?"

She always thought that Evan might not be so bad, and maybe he would come clean with her. But now, in half an hour, they would be on the plane, and everything would be too late. Jenny was done giving him chances- she couldn't continue to play along anymore.

"I also planted a bug under your hospital bed." Jenny didn't hide anything. She chose to be frank to let Evan know that she knew everything and that he shouldn't lie to her anymore.

Evan was stunned. He wasn't expecting that. Then, he laughed helplessly. "As expected, once you have suspicions, you can quickly find evidence on your own."

When she trusted him, she really trusted him with all her heart; once the seed of doubt was planted, she would do everything to investigate.

"If you already knew, why did you agree to go abroad with me? And why did you come to the airport with me today?" Evan didn't understand why Jenny did that. She should have just confronted him directly, then they might not have come to the airport today.

Jenny smiled bitterly in response. "I just thought that maybe you would feel guilty and tell me everything before leaving."

In the end, she thought too highly of him.

"Miss Walter, the boarding gate is over there!" Howard shouted when he saw Jenny walking in the wrong direction.

Evan grabbed him and shook his head. "She won't come with us."

Howard was stunned, trying to process what was going on. Just as he was in a state of confusion, a gunshot rang out, and a bullet hit Evan in his left chest!

"Boss!"

"Evan!"

Jenny heard the gunshot and turned to see Evan getting hit. She immediately rushed over to him. At that moment, more gunfire sounded, and quite a few people joined the gunfight.

"Damn it! They were waiting for this chance!" Howard cursed. After all this time, he thought the people who held a grudge against Evan had given up. It turned out they had been waiting to ambush him there.

Howard retorted coldly. Since he dared to let Evan board the plane, he was confident that

Chapter 1104 Far From Over

Alec didn't know whether Jenny would really come back. He only knew that when he saw Jenny being forcefully taken onto the plane by Howard, he was completely devastated. He regretted not following them from the beginning. If he had, Howard wouldn't have threatened Jenny, and she wouldn't have been taken away.

"Why the fuck didn't I follow her here?!" Alec questioned himself in agony. He believed in Jenny and thought she could handle it. Besides, Jenny didn't let him come with her, saying it wasn't necessary.

When Vincent and his men rushed to the airport, Alec was kneeling on the floor in despair. He was in such a miserable state that Vincent felt sorry for him. Gunshots could still be heard once in a while, but things seemed to have calmed down considerably. The people who had come for Evan must have left since their target had been Evan and not Alec. They didn't really want to step on Alec's toes within the country.

"Mr. Faust..." Vincent approached Alec, whose face was obscured as he was holding it in his hands. At that moment, he didn't know how to console his employer.

To his surprise, Alec calmed down quickly and ordered, "Find out where Evan's plane is heading." Even if they had to go to outer space, he would find Evan and bring him back!

That limited, there was no problem stopping the Walter?" After making sure that glanced at him and quickly understood what she meant. "You know your plan was perfect?" Jenny asked sarcastically. After knowing everything, she couldn't look at Howard the same way as relaxed instead. "Good to know. I was just worried about how to come up with excuses for Boss' recovery after we arrived.

Chapter 1105 Way Too Despicable

When Gilbert and Zack finally found Alec, it had already been a few hours since Jenny had left with Evan. They learned about the airport shooting incident from the news and decided to contact Jenny. However, they were surprised to find out that she was already on a plane and couldn't be reached at the moment.

They sought out Alec to ask him what had happened and who the target was. Alec was quite annoyed with their questions, but he answered truthfully based on facts, "It was most likely Evan's enemies."

"Is Jenny okay? Was she hurt?" Alec had seen Jenny leave, so they could only ask him for more information.

Alec shook his head and guessed they probably didn't know about Evan's plot. He said, "Although she wasn't injured, Howard pointed a gun at her and forced her to board the plane."

"What?" Both of them were shocked. They didn't quite understand what was going on. Wasn't Howard one of Evan's men?

Jenny not tell you guys?" Alec slowly explained while looking at the message that Vincent sent him on his phone, which informed him about the destination Evan's plane was headed to. However, Alec didn't think Evan would be able to fly for so long, as he would most likely need to stop midway because he was shot

"What do you mean? Are we truly powerless?" Zack couldn't believe it. He hadn't seen Evan for years, but he'd managed to climb up to such a high position abroad. It was simply too incredible.

Why didn't he notice Evan's talent for being a boss of the underworld before? Zack's impression of him was still stuck at the time when Evan followed them around like a lost puppy.

The atmosphere fell silent, and Gilbert looked at Alec. Even if he didn't want to, he had to speak up.

"Alec, you're the only one who can save Jenny now. I beg you...Please bring her back."

Alec had been waiting for Gilbert to say that. He replied with a smile, "Even if you didn't say anything, I would still bring her back."

"Thank you—"

"However, I hope that after Jenny comes back, you will respect her choices. " Especially when it came to their relationship-he didn't want Gilbert to voice any objections.

After all, in Jenny's eyes, Gilbert was still very important. She would be stuck between a rock and a hard place if he kept disagreeing.

Gilbert naturally understood the meaning behind his words and smiled bitterly. "Don't worry. I have never disrespected Jenny's choice."

"Are you Jenny?" the woman asked with a predatory gaze.

Jenny looked at her helplessly, feeling the pain coming from her wrist vividly. She couldn't muster up the strength to talk to her assailant at all.

The woman wasn't angry and continued to exert force. She finally removed her foot when she saw Jenny's increasingly strained expression.

She squatted down, lifted Jenny's chin, and mocked, "That's more like it. Here I was, wondering how pretty the woman Evan loved could be."

It wasn't hard to tell that the woman felt she was much better looking than Jenny.

"But maybe you just happen to be Evan's cup of tea." The woman then took out a small dagger from her bag and waved it close to Jenny's face menacingly. "If I make a few cuts on your face, Evan probably won't like you anymore."

Evan glanced at him and then said, "All of you leave. I want to chat with Jenny alone for a while."

"Evan..." Olivia didn't want to leave. She didn't want the two of them to be alone together.

Just as she was about to speak up again, Evan glared at her. His expression was indifferent as he ordered, "Get out!"

Olivia bit her lip, and Howard quickly stepped forward and urged her, 'Let's go. Tell me all about the recent situation at home.'" Soon, Howard pulled Olivia away, and Jenny remained rooted in the same spot.

Evan beckoned at her once more. "Come and sit beside me, Jenny."

After a brief silence, Jenny walked over. 'How's your injury?"

Despite changing into new clothes and dressing up carefully, her voice was still hoarse. It was obvious, and nothing could be done to cover it up.

"Your voice...Did Howard do that to you?" Evan frowned.

Evan was shocked and then incensed. "How dare she!" "Evan, if you want me to stay, you need to guarantee my safety," Jenny said. If those people from Evan's group wanted to harm her, it would be too easy for them. This place wasn't her home country, and these people all had guns. Even if she was skilled, she couldn't dodge bullets.

Evan didn't even consider why she was willing to stay and just smiled while promising, "Don't worry, as long as I'm here, no one will dare to do anything to you."

Jenny then walked out of the room, and Howard was called in. Jenny didn't know what Evan had said to Howard, but the way Howard looked at her changed when he came out.

"Let's go. I'll take you to your room," Howard said, looking at her warily.

He led Jenny to a room in the castle that had a particularly good view of the sea. If she opened the window, she could see the ocean outside. Jenny was very satisfied with the room. At least it was much better than the dungeon she was in before.

Chapter 1110 Keep You Trapped Here

In the CEO's office of Faust Group in Bardoff City, Alec frowned as he looked at the clues that Vincent had found. "The plane eventually landed on an island in Monaerim? Where is this place?"

"It used to be unclaimed territory. The Monaerim government put it up for auction, and someone bought it. We couldn't find out the specific situation," Vincent answered.

After a moment of silence, Alec speculated, "It seems that the entire island is under Evan's control, so it's almost impossible for us to launch a rescue attempt there.'

The person who bought the island was most likely Evan. He set up this place as his stronghold, which was actually quite clever.

"What should we do then? Should we send some people to take a look first?" Vincent asked. As someone who had worked with Alec for many years, he knew how important Jenny was to him. Therefore, even if the rescue mission would be as difficult as going to the moon, Alec would still do it regardless. It was impossible for him to give up on this.

Alec remained silent as he formulated a plan. After a while, he said, "Send people but be careful not to get too close to the island. Investigate the surrounding area first, but don't be too obvious. Make sure not to let Evan's people notice."

"Okay." Vincent nodded.
