Chapter 1311 Let Me Explain

At 8 pm, Jenny's plane landed at Bardoff Airport. After exiting the airport, she hailed a taxi and headed straight home, wondering what Alec might be doing at this time. She figured that he was probably working.

Ten minutes later, the car pulled up in front of the villa. Jenny looked at the brightly lit living room and couldn't help but smile. She walked in, not noticing the changes around her as she was eager to see Alec.

Pushing open Alec's bedroom door, a woman emerged from the bathroom, rendering her stunned. Jenny stared at the woman, speechless. But soon, she recognized the woman.

"Quinn?" She wasn't entirely sure, but the woman in front of her bore a striking resemblance to the woman she had seen in the photos before.

Quinn didn't expect someone to suddenly appear in her room, but she quickly realized what was happening and grinned. "Jenny?"

"Why are you in my house?" Jenny questioned, her face falling.

Ten minutes later, Alec's car pulled up at the villa. As he walked into the living room and saw two women sitting on opposite sides of the sofa, a migraine began to form in his head.

"Jenny, why did you come back today?" novelxo Alec approached Jenny cautiously, asking with concern. If he had known that Jenny was coming back today, he would have been waiting for her at the airport and taken her to their new house, avoiding this encounter with Quinn.

Having no clue of his plans, Jenny's face instantly darkened. "If I hadn't come back today, would I have discovered what you were doing behind my back?"

"Jenny, it's a misunderstanding. I wanted to give you a surprise..." Alec tried to explain.

"A surprise? It's quite surprising indeed." Jenny laughed coldly, glancing at Quinn.

The car quickly arrived at their new home, which had been newly renovated and adorned with decorations, giving off a newlywed vibe. When Jenny got out of the car and looked at the house in front of her, she started believing Alec more. However, she was still unhappy.

As Alec led her into the house, she realized the interior design was identical to their previous home, ensuring that everything felt familiar.

"Jenny, look, I didn't lie to you," Alec said, looking sad.

Jenny looked around and then sat on the sofa, lost in thought. Although she believed Alec, she still felt uneasy. "Why did Quinn suddenly come to see you? Doesn't she know anyone else?"

"I...I don't think so." Alec didn't think much about it. He simply thought it wouldn't hurt to give her a place to stay.

Chapter 1314 Take Responsibility for Me

Alec thought that her question was absolutely unnecessary. Besides, he never intended to help Quinn.
'Why should I help her? I'm already being kind enough to her by giving her a place to stay.'

If he'd known that he would very nearly get into an argument with Jenny because of this, he wouldn't have let her stay there at all.

"Hey, all things considered, she was still your first love.' Jenny couldn't help but tease Alec, smiling as she looked at him.

Alec was speechless upon hearing her words and quickly explained, "She and I never got together! How can she be considered my first love? If I think about this whole first love thing carefully, you're my first love! You have to take responsibility for me."

"How am I supposed to take responsibility for you? You're my first love, too," Jenny defended herself.

' Really? But didn't you like Evan before you liked me?" Alec purposely mentioned Evan again in hopes of making Jenny understand what kind of relationship he and Quinn had.

After listening to Quinn's explanation, the first thought that came to Jenny's mind was, "How ridiculous! How could she think this was fun in any way? She's so ridiculous! Was it fun for her to see me and Alec argue because of her?"

Jenny's expression became glum. Quinn noticed right away, so she hurriedly continued, "I really don't have any bad intentions. That's why I came to explain to you immediately today. I don't wish for any misunderstandings between you and Alec because of me."

"You're overthinking it. Something so trivial won't cause any misunderstandings between us," Jenny replied humorlessly.

Hearing that, Quinn breathed a sigh of relief. "Really? That's great. I'm so relieved."

"Well, now that you're done explaining, you can leave now." There was nothing more for them to talk about. Quinn's presence there would only delay Jenny from attending to her patients.

With that, Quinn nodded. She got up and made to leave.

Upon hearing that, Lynette was stunned, and her eyes reddened with tears of joy. "W-what did you call me?"

Jenny smiled and said the word once more, "Mom."

'Oh!' Lynette was so happy that she was almost jumping with joy. She got up and went upstairs to find Graham while excitedly exclaiming, "Graham, did you hear that? Jenny called me Mom! She called me Mom!"

"I know. I heard it too," Graham replied, embracing his beloved in his arms. He knew she'd been waiting for this day for a long time.

Lynette started crying.

Jenny watched them from downstairs with a faint smile on her lips. She thought, "I guess this is the best ending for us.'

She then went back to her room and received a call from Alec. "Jenny, I feel so freaking excited right now."

Chapter 1317 You Must Be Dreaming

At the wedding banquet hall, Jenny was changing into her wedding gown in the private room upstairs, while the emcee downstairs welcomed all the guests. Old Mr. Faust was also there greeting everyone, and even Zeke showed up at the scene.

Alec was now a member of the Faust family, so it was only natural for the former head of the family to be present at his wedding, regardless of the circumstances. If Zeke declined to show up during such an important occasion, outsiders might think there was discord within the Faust family.

It had been many years since the two brothers had seen each other. Now, they no longer had the same tenacity and vigor as before. After exchanging a simple smile, they each went to greet the people they knew.

The wedding started soon. With the emcee's announcement, the doors opened. Jenny walked gracefully down the aisle, holding Graham's arm. She made her way step by step toward Alec. Meanwhile, Alec didn't stand still in his spot. He walked steadily toward his bride and finally took her from Graham's hands.

"Alec, you better see to it that Jenny is well taken care of. If not, her mother and I won't let you off easily," Graham warned.

Alec nodded and solemnly said, 'Rest assured, Graham. With me around. I'll make sure no one dares to bully Jenny."

At the same time, Melanie also looked at Alec and Jenny, who were on the stage, enviously. "I really hope my wedding will be grand like theirs in the future." As she said that, she couldn't help but sneakily glance at Paul sitting next to her.

Unfortunately, Paul didn't pay her any attention. Instead, he looked toward the other side as if naturally drawn to something over there. Melanie followed his gaze, and as she expected, she saw Stephanie.

Bitterness enveloped her heart in an instant. Although she and Paul had publicly announced their relationship, Paul didn't consider her his girlfriend at all. He only took her out when he needed to put up a front. Melanie felt hurt but didn't dare to speak up for herself. She was afraid she wouldn't even be able to hold on to her fake relationship with Paul in the end.

"No matter what, I'm still his girlfriend now, right?" she comforted herself inwardly.

She'd heard that Stephanie and Leonard would start preparing for their wedding after Jenny's. Once they got married, Paul wouldn't keep holding on to any hope of rekindling his relationship with Stephanie. By then, it would be Melanie's chance to step in and perhaps claim his heart.

After the wedding ended, Jenny and Alec saw everyone off and thanked them for being there on their big day. After that was done, they instructed their driver to take them back.

Alec was so exhausted in the car that he slumped heavily against Jenny's shoulder. Nevertheless, there was still a smile on his lips as he suddenly said, "Wifey."

Jenny was taken aback for a moment when he addressed her like that.

"My wife," Alec spoke up again, opening his eyes and looking intently at Jenny beside him. "I love you."

Jenny was someone who didn't handle romantic gestures well. When Alec said he loved her, it didn't evoke the warm, mushy feeling that it should. On the contrary, it made her hair stand on end, and she even had goosebumps.

"You're drunk. Go back and get some rest," Jenny replied, allowing Alec to continue leaning on her to rest.

But resting wasn't exactly at the forefront of his list of priorities right now. Holding Jenny's hand fondly, he said, "Tonight is our wedding night. How can I rest?"

Alec was grilling some buffalo wings when he heard Max's comment. He couldn't help but raise a brow.

"Why? Are you jealous of me?"

"What the heck should I be jealous of? I'm already married myself," Max replied. Besides, it was not like he really liked Jenny back then. He was just curious about Alec's feelings toward the whole situation.

"Why are you asking so much, then?" Alec rolled his eyes at him. "By the way, when do you and Jade plan to have children?"

Alec's question came when Max least expected it, so it startled him for a moment. "Why are you asking me this? Don't tell me you and Jenny plan to have children already?"

"Isn't it too early for that?" Max thought.

"We haven't made any plans yet. That's why I'm asking you," Alec replied. He couldn't get a grasp of when would be the perfect time to have children, so he decided to gather some information from others.
