Chapter 1381 Gilbert and Marigold (56)

The Bradshaws quickly recognized Gilbert's abilities. Esther was planning on observing him a little more, but it seemed redundant now. She got Gilbert into her office and said, "Everyone in this company has acknowledged your skills. Hence, I shall try and let you be in charge of this project."

Gilbert was expressionless and didn't react much. It was as if everything was within his expectations.

"However, if you want to take over the Bradshaws, your wife cannot be a nobody. She has to match your status, at least." Esther looked at him. As expected, his face turned sour at the mention of it. She wasn't surprised and went on, "You needn't answer me at once. You can think about it on your own. But I hope that you will make the right decision."

In the end, if Gilbert didn't shake Marigold off, Esther would not entrust the Bradshaws to him. If he didn't get rid of her, that would mean he wasn't standing on the Bradshaws' side. Even if he was capable, she would not dare to trust him.

Gilbert walked out of Esther's office. He had to act fast against the Bradshaws. He would never part with Marigold despite them having never been together.

There was a knock at his door, and Gilbert quickly turned his phone off.

Marigold pushed the door open. She felt concerned for him when she saw him at his desk. "Are you still busy? Are the Bradshaws purposely giving you all this work to upset you?"

These days, Gilbert left home early and came back late. He was busier than he had been in his own company.

' No. I'm fine." Gilbert was not fine, but he couldn't tell her that. She would only worry.

Right this moment, a text arrived on his phone. He glanced at it, and anger began ripping through his chest.

It was from Esther. She said that since Gilbert had made his decision, he would have to make Marigold move out of his villa.

Marigold moved to Jenny's house the next day.

Jenny and Alec's married home was a villa that was not too big. Alec said it felt more like home, and Jenny didn't have an opinion about it. The only space they'd need was really just the bed, regardless of the size of the house.

However, because the villa was not that large, it wasn't ideal for Marigold, her child, and the nanny to live in. There was a man in the house, after all.

With no other choice, Jenny had to get Alec to sleep in another house.

Alec was grumpy about it. He only relented after Jenny promised to have a child with him once this Gilbert and Marigold ordeal was over.

For the next few days, Marigold stayed in Jenny's house. Gilbert had not come to visit once. It made her notice that something was amiss.

But every time she thought of it, Jenny would comfort her and say that she was sending Gilbert pictures of Caleb every day, which was why Gilbert didn't come to see him.

Although Marigold knew that something was up, she didn't press on. She believed that Jenny would not hurt her. If she still held a grudge about what happened the last time, she would have taken her revenge long ago. She would not have waited until now.

But Gilbert's non-appearance was still making her worried.

Her worries quickly became a reality. She soon found out on the Internet.

That day, she was going through her phone after a play session with Caleb. Suddenly, a news article appeared on her main page.

"Bradshaw Operations Heir's Rumored Marriage with the Silveras."

' Say something, Marigold. Don't scare me.' Jenny was panicking now. Marigold looked upset, yet she was saying nothing, which greatly concerned Jenny. She didn't know what was happening, but because of this, she was very worried.

Marigold scoffed. She didn't want to beat around the bush. "You didn't make me come here because you wanted to see Caleb, did you?"

"Marigold..."

"It was Gilbert's idea, wasn't it? He wanted to marry the Silveras, so he got an excuse to send me away, didn't he?" Marigold felt as though she had seen through everything.

Jenny's face grew solemn. When news of the Bradshaws and Silvera's marriage came out, Gilbert had gotten someone to delete them immediately for fear of Marigold seeing them. They had done this for the past few days, and it was a pretty good trick. However, she still saw it.

In the Bradshaws' villa, Esther looked at Gilbert with conflicting emotions. Her son was brilliant.

Although she hadn't given him much authority, some board members had already suggested training him to be the successor.

She used to worry about convincing them to accept him, but she seemed to have worried for nothing.

But for whatever reason, the more brilliant he was, the less bold she was. She couldn't help feeling troubled.

"How are things between you and Lottie lately?" Esther asked.

' Pretty good/ he answered. In truth, he hated her. However, he hadn't expressed it. Lottie didn't sense it, and Esther naturally wouldn't, either.

Esther nodded in satisfaction. The Silveras were like the Bradshaws. They were considered to be of the same social standing. On top of that, Lottie seemed nice, which was why Esther had chosen her.

However, she still felt worried.

At night, Gilbert drove to his villa. He got out of the car and went straight to his room. Then, he took out his phone and called Jenny.

When Jenny called him earlier, Esther was right in front of him. He did not pick up for fear of arousing her suspicions, which was why he had waited to come home before calling her back.

She picked up quickly. Gilbert learned that Marigold already knew about everything, and instantly, he felt a headache coming.

'Alright. I'm coming right now. Keep an eye on her. Don't let her leave the house." Gilbert knew that it was dangerous for Marigold to be alone right now. Esther had not given up on targeting her. It was only because she was in Jenny's house that the woman had no chance to strike.

After the call, Gilbert went downstairs. But before he got to the door, he paused in his footsteps. If Esther was suspicious of him, she would undoubtedly have someone spying on him. If he went to Jenny's place, it would further increase her doubt.

Chapter 1388 Gilbert and Marigold (63)

When Marigold heard that Gilbert was not just thinking for himself but also for her and their child, for some reason, she stopped being angry. She looked at him, unable to imagine how hard it had been on him.

She sighed and said, "Even so, you should have just told me everything. Did you think I'd blame you?" She didn't like being lied to.

'I was worried that you'd overthink things," Gilbert answered.

Marigold looked at him, her lips curling upward. "Overthink about what? Why would I do that? We don't seem to have anything going on between us. ■

Sure, they had their romantic moments, but neither of them had really cut through the fog between them. In other words, they were nothing to each other at all. Regardless of whether Gilbert wanted to or not, Marigold had no right to demand an explanation from him.

"Just give me some more time, Marigold. Wait for me to settle the Bradshaws." It wasn't that Gilbert didn't want to take their relationship to the next level. It was that he didn't dare to.

Every day that the Bradshaws were not pacified, the sword aimed at his neck drew closer. If anything were to happen in the event of him and Marigold getting together, no one would be able to bear the consequences.

Chapter 1389 Gilbert and Marigold (64)

When Jenny and Alec returned to the villa, Marigold and Gilbert were done talking. On top of that, they seemed cozier with each other.

Jenny knew that Gilbert had successfully convinced Marigold.

"Gilbert," she said, walking in and interrupting them.

Marigold blushed at once. Gilbert was embarrassed, too. "I'm going to have to trouble you to take care of them for a while longer."

' Don't worry, Gilbert. Nothing will happen to them as long as I'm around." No one dared to stir trouble on her turf.

So what if the Bradshaws were capable? Could they withstand the force of the Ten Elites if they joined forces?

Jenny could get quite a few of the Ten Elites to team up. The Bradshaws were no match for them.

Gilbert knew it was safest for Marigold and Caleb to be with Jenny. Hence, he didn't dawdle. "I'd better head back. Someone is spying on my villa. I'm afraid of something happening."

Chapter 1390 Gilbert and Marigold (65)

Alec didn't know what else to say to Gilbert. He knew that Marigold would not be okay with it, so why didn't he just tell her everything? Was he going to keep on lying to her until she found out about things herself again?

Would she be so easily comforted the next time it happened?

'I think you should give her a heads up so she'll be more prepared.'" If he did, Marigold would know about Gilbert's scheme, and while she would still feel uncomfortable, she wouldn't be too angry about it.

But if he didn't and kept on lying to her, all the comforting he had done today wouldn't matter. Marigold would still feel cheated, and he would have a much harder time appeasing her.

Gilbert understood what Alec was saying. However, he'd finally convinced Marigold that he was doing all this for her and the little one. How could she accept it if he told her that he was going to get engaged to someone else?

"I haven't thought about how to break it to her." Gilbert looked tired, which was rare, in front of Alec. If he could, he wanted to ignore everything related to the Bradshaws. But he just couldn't.
