

Be Yours 441

Chapter 441 Have We Made Up?

They arrived at Centenary Hall. Jenny followed behind Alec, and he pulled his keys out to unlock the doors.

“Come in,” he said, turning back to look at her as he turned the lights on.

Jenny hesitated for a while before finally stepping in. She pulled her suitcase with her and sat on the sofa, staring at Alec. She was evidently waiting for him to explain his relationship with Quinn. Alec sighed. He knew what she was thinking. He helped her place her suitcase in her room and took out a first-aid kit. “Don’t move. I’m going to treat your wounds.”

Jenny pursed her lips. Alec knew what she was waiting for, yet he refused to tell her. How despicable.

The wound was treated quickly. Just when Jenny wondered what he was going to do next, Alec sat next to her.

“Quinn and I were classmates in college,” Alec said, reminiscing his past.

him like this but let him close. We spent a lot of time together, too, so the feelings developed naturally.” Alec didn’t deny that he once had a crush on Quinn. “But because she had to leave the country, with an unfulfilled romance like that, Alec had forgotten it all as years went Jenny felt upset. “So, you got told you before that you’re not a replacement for anyone. If it weren’t for you pointing it out, I wouldn’t have noticed any similarities between you he vaguely notice how similar they were.

him. Anyone would see the resemblance between her and Quinn when they saw her picture. How could trust each other?” Alec looked at her, his emotions at meet his gaze. She still didn’t believe him even though he had given his explanation. Perhaps all of his you tell me when your father returned?” she asked. She felt that Alec should have. given her a heads up about such a Quinn. When she mentioned Mortimer, he replied honestly, “I wasn’t planning on deceiving

Chapter 442 The Schemes Run Deep

If Alec had talked to her about it beforehand, she might have agreed to play along and pretend to break up with him. But he had made his decisions and kept her in the dark, not caring if she’d be hurt. She wouldn’t forgive him for this.

Alec was disappointed. “Alright. I was wrong. It’s a given that you’d punish me.”

"It's late. I need to get some rest." Jenny got up and went to her room. She didn't want to talk to Alec anymore. She'd already learned what there was to learn. It didn't matter if it was the truth. It was all that Alec could tell her.

Alec sat on the sofa, watching Jenny close the door. He sighed helplessly after a while, then went to bed.

Meanwhile, in Faustus' Old Mansion in Parrington, Mortimer was spending his days aimlessly after Alec removed him from his head director position. There was nothing in his heart but hatred.

seeing Mortimer like that. He said, "If you'd like to have something to do. I'll get Alec to let

He should have you ever feel guilty toward Alec?" Old Mr. Faust was feeling regretful as he watched Mortimer. Why would the good life here in the mansion, and he's the president. Isn't he doing better than I head, thinking Mortimer was too far gone to be saved.

quiet for a while. "Do you think there's a point in saying this now?" It didn't matter to him if he and Alec made up. The two of them would never be able to live together in peace.

Faust was thinking. Not even his own son. Anyone would only think. about how to strengthen the Faust family. Old Mr. Faust should have given Alec a princess, not a doctor.

to keep Mortimer in the dark. "Jenny is not as simple as you didn't know of Jenny's identity. He told Mortimer briefly about Jenny's identity, emphasizing, "Do not tell was why Old Mr. Faust would agree to it. No wonder Alec refused to let her go. Their schemes ran deep.-

to be part of the Ten Elites

Chapter 443 Blame Me

Jenny was almost done with what she had to do in Bardoff City. She wasn't planning on staying. Harvey Spade was still in a coma, and she couldn't wait for him forever. Once she was done checking up on him, she told Christopher about her heading back to Parrington.

"That quick?" Christopher was surprised. He was planning on taking Jenny around town.

She nodded. "I'm almost done with my business here. I should head home."

"I'm sorry. I wasted your time." Christopher couldn't help feeling guilty. He didn't think that something would happen to Harvey.

Jenny waved her hands quickly. "No, blame me. If it weren't for me, Mr. Spade might still be alright.

She felt even guiltier than Christopher. Thankfully, he didn't think that way. Otherwise, Jenny would become a villain in his eyes.

station. Don't worry. I won't let you suffer for nothing." Christopher take them to the police station? She said, "It's my fault, sent Harvey to the hospital and landed Christopher's parents by his side with a family like this, but he obviously didn't "Alright. I'm

go to Parrington once sounded good, but Jenny knew Christopher would find it hard to go anywhere he pleased now. Back then, left the hospital in a going straight to the airport?"

nodded. She wasn't in a very good mood. "Are you finished with your Alec said. Vincent would cry if he heard this. Alec had done nothing but accompanied Jenny Chapter 444 Are You Crazy?

"Is your grandpa doing alright these days?" she asked, smiling sweetly.

Alec thought her smile was making things weirder. He nodded. "He's fine. Do you want to see him?

"Yes. I want to ask him something." But Jenny didn't tell him what it was. Alec knew nothing, so she felt that it was unnecessary.

Alec didn't ask, either. "Should I accompany you to the Old Mansion once we landed?"

"Let's give it a few days." Jenny had a lot of things waiting for her in Parrington. She had to tell the Walkers about the place she had picked out for them and see if Stephanie's parents had anything to say about it. And since she was going back, she'd have to go to work. Morgan said that a lot of people were waiting for her to perform surgeries on them. She'd be busy for quite a few days before being able to catch her breath.

Alec didn't force her to do anything. "Alright. Call me when you want to see him. I'm good with anything."

she and Alec had broken up, it would be inappropriate to do so.

happy hearing her thank him. "Must you be so polite with me?

things couldn't be believed, even if there were explanations. And some things couldn't be forgiven even if they were believed. Lying was objectively wrong. Alec had nowhere to vent his anger. He merely turned his head away, suppressing dipped, scaring everyone. A scream sounded in the hurried to comfort the passengers, saying it was just turbulence. They urged everyone to stay in their frowned. She looked at the sunset in the first-class cabin. They were closest to the cockpit. They could clearly see a flight attendant walking anxiously toward it.

the

was a little nervous. Jenny sat upright. Her instincts were never wrong when it came “What’s wrong?” she

Chapter 445 Dragging Everyone Down

Julie turned, looking at the person who had spoken. “That’s right. I’m fucking crazy.”

She’d had enough of this world, but dying all by herself would be lonely. She had to drag everyone down to their graves along with her.

“Sit the fuck down!” she roared, pointing her gun at people.

The flight attendants were all startled. They ran to the rest area, terrified of being shot. It was then that Julie noticed Jenny. She frowned. “Who are you?”

“I...I came looking for coffee. Jenny smiled awkwardly. She could never have imagined a moment like this.

It would be easy to tackle this woman, and obtaining her gun would be no problem, but Jenny didn’t spring into action immediately. She wasn’t sure about the situation in the cockpit, and she didn’t know if this woman had accomplices.

the fuck out and already devising a plan. First, she had to find out what the cockpit was like.

Julie have an accomplice?

“Alright?” Alec furrowed his eyebrows when he woman was right behind her. There was no telling if she would her seat that Alec saw the woman shot Jenny an inquiring look; she nodded. Alec could already guess what was happening.

two of them in first class-Vincent was in business class. Two people were not the passengers that they were now in control of the plane and that the passengers were advised sharp ears caught the word. Julie indeed had an someone else walked out from planning on ignoring them, but then he changed his mind and said, “Get up and go to the back!” The two people

Chapter 446 Die with Us

Alec thought what Jenny said made sense, so he sat and waited, not in a hurry to handle them.

The two of them began arguing. Julie looked antsy. "Didn't we agree on making them all die with us? Why are you going back on your words?" she asked, her eyes reddened. She was about to point her gun at him.

The man was just as Jenny expected. He was the plane's pilot-in-training and was called Brett Samson.

Brett was exasperated seeing her so agitated. He said, "I don't mean to go back on my words. I said I would die with you, and I will. But I have a family. I need to leave them some money die." before I Julie was quiet. Brett continued, "I swear, once I get my money, I'll steer the plane toward Mount Enderest and crash it. They will all die together with us."

him and finally decided to believe him. She was satisfied and said, "Keep watch. Tell them that we won't harm them as long as the Parrington government gives us the money."

the passengers some false hope. It'd be hard to control a swarm of angered people, even contact the Parrington government. She could only hope he would successfully obtain planned to say. As expected, everyone calmed down considerably. They believed that the government would help the two had said. They knew that they would not let anyone go, even if they had the creep up behind Julie. She would tackle her before tackling the man in the cockpit. But just as she by and watch as Jenny jumped into danger? He wasn't a man if down, he jumped at her and knocked her firmly to the floor. He quickly seized her gun and clamped her

Chapter 447 Pray to God

Jenny was worried. They'd be easily spotted if they rushed in like this. He had a gun, too. If anything happened...

She pulled at Alec. "Don't go in. Find a way to lure him out."

Alec thought for a while and thought it made sense. They would be able to ambush him at the entrance, and it'd be safer.

The decision was made. Jenny made a sound, and Brett's attention was caught easily. "Julie?"

No one answered. He began to get worried and walked out with his gun.

Alec and Jenny were hiding on either side of the cockpit door. The moment Brett appeared at the entrance, Alec threw himself at him and knocked him to the floor.

There was a loud bang. Everyone turned pale.

“Alec!” Jenny screamed.

waved his hand. “I’m had hit the floor, not him. Brett was quickly tied up, but his bullet was causing a problem. The walked toward the cockpit. If the pilots were just knocked out, they could wake them up. However, that wasn’t the case. Julie was thorough in her plan. The coffee in the pilot’s cup was laced with poison, and the

They walked into the cockpit and turned fly a plane?” She was wasn’t sure, either. “I’ve looked at the flight attendants and asked, “Go and ask the turned and left but returned quickly. “No.”

was to be expected. Not a lot of people could fly a plane. Jenny had rash.” The flight attendant wanted to stop looked at her and asked, “Why don’t

She wouldn’t be a flight attendant if she knew.

fly?” Alec

at him. She already had knew the basics of airplane controls. She didn’t want to die, and there was

Chapter 448 There Won’t be a Next Time

In Claymond City, an ambulance, a fire truck, and a police car were on standby in a row on the runway. They were waiting for the plane to land.

Jenny looked ahead, a strange calm taking over.

“Are you sure about this?” On the other hand, Alec was worried, not for himself, but for Jenny.

Jenny smiled and said sarcastically, “It’s a little too late to ask, isn’t it?”

What could Alec do if she was feeling unsure?

“True.” Alec smiled lightly and said nothing else.

“Are you afraid?” Jenny looked at him, smiling. “Of dying like this?”

long as I’m with you, death doesn’t seem as scary.” These words came straight from Alec’s heart, but Jenny didn’t mock him, however. In a situation like this, they really had no choice when it came to land," she said calmly. Alec got himself ready.

other. The fuel was almost used up, or they entered Jenny's field of sight. She could see the lights from the airport runway, and she couldn't help feeling stirred, there were hundreds of lives

"Brace yourselves!"

ground. Because Jenny wasn't a professional, the plane was moving too quickly. She couldn't distance away. They lives. They all thought it was very likely that controls, sweat running down in luck. The plane stopped in front of the control tower with only twelve inches plane stopped, Jenny heard the exclamations of joy from the leaned back in her seat. She'd used up all

Chapter 449 You're Brilliant

Jenny went down the plane. Right after doing so, applause sounded. She realized that the passengers hadn't left yet. They seemed to be waiting for her.

"Thank you," they said gratefully.

Jenny was suddenly a little embarrassed. She wasn't too confident when it happened. If something terrible happened, she'd never make it up to all of them. Thankfully, she was lucky. After they left, Jenny was questioned by the police. After that, she finally left the airport. Alec followed by her side. He felt proud when he looked at her. This was the woman he loved. She was brilliant, shining bright like a star.

Jenny was oblivious to his thoughts: All she wanted was to go home and sleep; she didn't want to think about anything else.

"Get into the car. I'll drive you home," Alec said. Vincent was waiting next to the car by the road. He admired Jenny from the start; now, she was like some otherworldly being.

refuse. She sat in his car, and they headed toward Parrington.

had fervent discussions, agreeing that the passengers were extremely lucky and cursing the two terrorists.

had taken photos of some discovered she was a doctor. Not only that, but she was also an incredibly skilled neurosurgeon at Parrington Hospital. They were all in knew nothing of this. She merely slept and dreamt news of the plane incident had only spread faster. When Jenny got to the hospital, it was more crowded coming. She just wanted to work in peace; she didn't want to be noticed by anyone. She had no way to tell when the admiration would and went into the chairman's at the old man behind the office desk. He held a newspaper in his hands. His smile was bright. "You've put us in the limelight, Jenny" "Mr. Chairman..." Jenny felt a little tired. Even the chairman was won't stop shining on you." The chairman smiled happily. He

Chapter 450 As If She Were Prey

Jenny walked out of the chairman's office, tired. She had a bunch of things waiting to be done, and now there was a new task on her list.

"Jenny." Morgan went to her side cheerfully, eyes shining. "Was it really you on the plane?"

"How I wish it wasn't." She wished that someone on the plane knew how to fly. That way, she wouldn't have had to take over, and something like this wouldn't happen.

Morgan placed her hands on her face. "You're a hero! Why are you so sad?"

"I'm not a hero. I was just forced to fly it." Thank God nothing had happened. If it had, millions of people would be cursing her right now.

Morgan knew that Jenny disliked situations like this, and she comforted her. "It's okay. The people online have the memory span of a goldfish. They'll forget it all in just a few days."

"Hopefully so," Jenny said.

scrubs, preparing herself for the upcoming surgeries. She young man's gaze fell on Jenny. He retracted his gaze young man murmured and smirked. "You look interesting." He smiled as if he had seen a lot of people took notice of Jenny. Even the people in Bardoff City paid attention photo on the news. Her eyes gleamed in hatred. A report lay by her came out of her room. Rowena hurriedly put away the paternity test. All Jenny. She was getting annoyed. She thought pulled her in common." Jolene pursed her lips. She head and smiled. "It's okay. I'll never let her appear before me," Jolene spat. She was the only daughter of the Ten Elites. How could someone like Jenny from a small city like her next life, perhaps.