Chapter 531 Unfamiliar With Her

The two were talking and didn't notice that Jolene was still there.

Jolene couldn't believe it. Jenny, who came from the countryside, knew James? And why did they seem so close?

Jolene suddenly realized she didn't know a thing about Jenny, which scared her.

"Do you know Mr. Windsor, sister?" Jolene approached them with a smile. Although both families were from the top ten families in Bardoff City, the Windsor family was considered more prominent, and Jolene saw them as a good choice for in-laws. However, James had always been indifferent toward her, ignoring her whenever they met at dinner parties. Only Brandon would follow her around.

Jenny nodded and smiled. "Yes."

"What a coincidence! Mr. Windsor and I know each other too," Jolene said, but her eyes were fixed on James.

In James's car, the atmosphere was pleasant as the two chatted about various things, catching up with each other.

At the thought of their mentor, Jenny missed him. "I wonder where he has gone."

"I have no idea," James answered. "The old man never contacts me. I thought you would know."

Despite Jenny being Mr. Birkett's secret student, she received more love and affection from Mr. Birkett, which made James jealous of her.

Jenny smiled wryly. "I haven't been able to contact him for a long time."

"Don't worry. He has spent many years like this. He knows what he's doing." James knew what she was worried about and tried to comfort her.

Looking at the bodyguards surrounding him, Alec frowned. "What are you trying to do?"

"What am I trying to do?" Jolene asked with a chuckle, finding him rather interesting.

Raising her chin, she walked up to him. "Weren't you acting all high and mighty? Didn't you say you were going to intervene? I thought you were so powerful."

Before investigating his background, she thought he was a son who hailed from a powerful secret family. After all, she knew almost all the children of the Ten Elites of Bardoff City, and she had never seen him. However, after her investigation, no. velxoshe burst out laughing. Did Alec think that he was all that just because he had some influence in Parrington? How dare he behave so arrogantly and brashly in a place like Bardoff City where important figures hid in plain sight.

"Kneel down and apologize to me!" Jolene decided she would have to experience that satisfaction no matter what. After all, Alec was Jenny's ex-husband. If he knelt and apologized, it would feel like she managed to get at Jenny too, which would make her feel much better.

Chapter 534 I'm Disciplining Your Daughter for You

"What are you doing? Let go of my daughter!" Rowena rushed out with a group of bodyguards after receiving Jolene's call.

She had rushed, thinking all she needed to do was to help her daughter teach someone a lesson. She didn't care whose fault it was and wanted to support her daughter immediately. However, she was shocked to see her daughter in Alec's hands, her face flushed from lack of air.

"Mom..." Jolene managed to say, tears streaming down her face.

Rowena was angry and anxious, "Sir, let my daughter go. I'll give you whatever you want."

Alec loosened his grip on Jolene's neck and looked at Graham. "I'll show you some respect because you're Jenny's father." Holding back was Alec's show of respect to Graham, for he had vowed not to go easy on Jolene no matter who came to him.

Graham did not need anyone's respect. Be it in tiny Parrington or Bardoff City, he was always the one to decide who deserved his respect. He had been unhappy with Jenny's marriage to Alec, and his dissatisfaction with Alec only increased after Alec divorced Jenny. Now, he had the guts to be impudent in front of him.

When the bodyguards successfully took Jolene away, Graham finally spoke, "Alec, you can only be impudent if you are capable. Look around you and understand where you are right now. You shouldn't throw tantrums as you like," Expressionless, he addressed Alec in an icy tone.

Alec raised an eyebrow without any fear. "Mr. Walter, from the sound of it, you will take action on me. Is that right?"

Chapter 536 Lie Low to Live Longer

Ten minutes of fighting later, Alec started feeling worn out as he noticed that he was no match for his opponent. He was gripped by shock and frustration for not being stronger.

Alec stumbled backward from the impact of another punch that landed on his cheek. The middle-aged man didn't give Alec time to recover-he charged at Alec and punched him violently. Had he not strictly followed Graham's orders to teach Alec a lesson, Alec would have been dead by now.

Soon, Alec was face-down on the ground.

"You may leave," Graham said to the middle-aged man. Then, he strode up to Alec and stood towering over the defeated man on the ground with a regal air. "Alec Faust, I get that you're quite capable, but your ability is still lacking for Bardoff City standards. Had you met another opponent instead of me, you would have died here today. Here's a warning-lay low before you are strong enough so you can live longer." With that, Graham turned around to leave. He suddenly stopped and said, 'Jenny is the Jenny thought he'd complain about the pain, but Alec shook his head and said. "No, it doesn't hurt."

He was speaking the truth and was especially enjoying the moment when Jenny applied the ointment to his injuries.

Hearing that, she couldn't resist pinching his bruised skin hard. He promptly yelped in pain. "Jenny, what are you doing?" He was puzzled and wondered if he had said something wrong.

"How about now?" she asked.

Alec learned his lesson and nodded. 'It hurts. It hurts a lot."

Alec nodded, looking calmer than Jenny. Carefree as always, he'd only take on the problem when it surfaced. He believed that there would always be a solution to any problem.

He led her to the sofa, sat her down, and handed her the ointment. "You should at least finish what you started."

She didn't object to that and continued applying the ointment to his body. The living room fell into silence when they stopped talking.

Soon, she was done and ready to leave. "Have a good rest. It's best if you could rest at home for a few days."

"Are you leaving?" he asked.

She nodded. "It's late. I need to get home." She knew Graham didn't like that she was in touch with Alec, and she worried she might fuel Graham's dislike of Alec if she got home late.

Alec understood her concerns but remained calm. "Don't worry. I can handle it."

"Okay. Call me if anything happens. At this point, she can't lay a finger on me, at least not in public.' As long as Graham was on Jenny's side, Jolene could only make her moves in secret.

Feeling touched by her concern, he smiled at her. "Okay."

He sent her to the front door and watched until her car was out of sight. Then, he went back inside.

The two were too busy to meet up in the following days. Jenny was occupied with Jeneration Group's headquarters move. Meanwhile, Alec was busy with moving the headquarters of Faust Group to Bardoff City and dealing with the Glasses' harassment.

Chapter 540 What a Load of Crap

The branch office of the Faust Group was relatively unknown in Bardoff City, as it was less influential relative to the many big names. However, as most people paid attention to the developments of the Glass family, they noticed that the family had been making moves against the Faust Group, which piqued their curiosity.

The outsiders mistook the actions for the Glass family's ambition to acquire Faust Group, but only Jenny knew that Rowena and Jolene were behind the recent moves. Worried that Alec would struggle to fend off the attacks, Jenny wanted to call him out of concern but held back in the end. Based on her understanding of him, he would definitely turn down her offer to help when his ego acted up, just like the average man.

With that in mind, she decided to ask James for help later. Well, she wasn't exactly asking him to actively intervene. It'd be great if he could at least hold off the Glass family. Moreover, a stronger Glass family would be bad news for the Walter family.
