Chapter 551 Seem to be Really Close

Neither Jenny nor Alec spoke a word during the ride, and the atmosphere around them remain as tense as a tightrope.

"When are you going back to Parrington?" Alec finally asked, breaking the ice.

"Tomorrow."

Alec nodded, saying nothing else.

"What about you? When will you go back?"

Alec gave it some thought. He was nearly done with his business here in Bardoff City. He could always visit Dr. Watkins to continue their sessions whenever he was free. "Tomorrow, with you," he replied.

Jenny was surprised. Wasn't Alec busy dealing with the Glasses right now?" no.velxo Are you sure? What about the Glasses..."

Chapter 552 You're Thinking Too Much

Oblivious to Alec's jealousy, Jenny nodded. "Mhm. It's been a few years, but our relationship is still there. We used to spend a lot of time together when we were younger."

Relationship?

Bitterness spread through Alec's mouth. no.velxo He didn't even know if he shared that with Jenny anymore.

His silence invited Jenny's curiosity. "You're not jealous, are you?"

Alec said nothing.

Jealous? How could he not be? Jenny and Finn already had their kinship as disciples. Now both were children of the Ten Elite of Bardoff City. Who was to say a prospective marriage wasn't in the works?

Chapter 553 Don't Need You to Watch Out for Me

Jenny and Alec ended up having a fulfilling night out, both from the food and the conversation.

'Til drop you off at home. It's late." Alec stood up; his anxiety had quietened down after spending time with Jenny.

Jenny nodded, getting up too. "Yeah. I still need to get on that flight tomorrow."

On the way back to Alec's car, no. velxo Jenny asked, "You didn't tell Paul Wagner about my plans here, right?"

Alec frowned, feeling almost hurt by her question. "You don't...trust me?"

Chapter 554 That Doesn't Give You the Right

Jenny wasn't going to waste her time being respectful to Rowena. That woman was a snake. She just never expected Graham to speak up too.

"She has a point, Jenny. It might not be what you want to hear, but it might be what you need."

Jenny stared at him in disbelief. Something definitely happened.

"You know James Windsor, right? I've seen his work. He's a good man and comes from a family of the same standing. What do you think about him?" Graham asked. He hoped Jenny would have a happy marriage and not be tricked by Alec Faust again.

Hearing James' name, Jolene shouted, no. "She doesn't deserve him! A divorcee marrying into the Windsor family? That's an outright joke!"

Chapter 555 Nonsense

Jenny left the dining room to retrieve her luggage upstairs. When she came down, she told Graham, "I'm gonna leave first. You can...do whatever you want, I guess. I can still get things done without you in Parrington."

With that, she left the estate.

Graham could only blink, still reeling from what had just happened. He really didn't know what to do now. Just a couple of suggestions had set Jenny off like that. It was not like he was really stopping her from meeting Alec, no, he didn't say he wasn't going to Parrington with her.

He sighed internally, "Like mother like daughter."

"Why are you so nice to Jenny, Dad? She's so rude to you! I've never treated you like that, and you're not even that nice to me!" Jolene whined.

Graham glanced at her. "Really? What have I not given you since you were a kid, hm?"

Chapter 556 Teach Them a Lesson

Jenny had bought a flight ticket at the airport, not assuming Graham would come along with her. She regretted asking him to help her in the first place. Maybe she could deal with Paul alone.

"Ah, well. I'll figure it out at home," she thought.

Jenny lounged in the boarding hall, no, he didn't say he wasn't waiting for her plane to reach the airport. Just then, Alec texted her, asking if she had boarded yet.

She called him. "Where are you right now?" she asked.

"Airport." Alec asked curiously, "You haven't left?"

The plane soon took off. Jenny shut her eyes and rested while Alec sat beside her, still giddy. He knew Jenny was upset and didn't want to talk right now, so he quietly stayed by her side, no.velxo not asking her anything though he was incredibly curious about her situation.

After some time, Jenny asked, "Aren't you curious about what happened between Graham and me?"

"Of course I am. I just didn't want to disturb you. You looked like you had a lot on your mind," Alec said with a smile. He had come to know her a little more after spending time with her all this while.

Jenny sighed. He was right. She had wanted nothing more than to be left alone in a quiet space since boarding the plane. But her mood had lightened after some peace and quiet. "It's nothing, really. I think he saw the news about us, that's all."

"He doesn't want you involved with me, does he?" Alec could easily guess what had transpired between the father and daughter.

Alec and Jenny made their way out of Parrington Airport. Back in his territory, Alec had arranged for them to be picked up outside.

"You wanna go back to your home first?"no.velxo he asked once they were safe in the car.

"Yeah. That'd be best.' Jenny nodded. As worried about Stephanie as she was, she couldn't make any sudden moves lest Paul overreacted. It might get harder to rescue Stephanie if that happened. no.velxo Plus, she hadn't settled her resignation at the hospital yet.

They soon reached Perry Residence. Jenny stepped out and turned to ask Alec, 'Aren't you gonna rest up first?"

"Nah. I still need to look at things at the office. I'll pick you up for dinner later." Alec couldn't rest now that they were going to move Faust Group headquarters to Bardoff City. They had deep roots here in Parrington that needed careful unraveling.

"Why would I need to go to a hotel when you have a place to stay right here?" Graham asked. He hadn't planned on living at a hotel whatsoever.

"You want to stay at my place?" no.velxo Jenny wasn't used to having another person around in her house. It was also too small for someone like Graham, who was used to a bigger space.

He didn't care about that. "Can't I? Your own father, Jenny."

"I never said you couldn't, just...my place is tiny compared to Walter Castle. " Shouldn't Graham book a five-star hotel to meet his accommodation needs?
