

Be Yours 621

Chapter 621 Are You Giving up on Alec Too?

"You should go back to Bardoff City." Paul's voice sounded behind Jenny, and she turned back to look at him, surprised. "There's no point staying here," he said, making Jenny frown.

She looked at him. "This is my business."

She didn't think they were close enough for her to heed his suggestions.

"Idiot," Paul said. "Alec's been targeted for murder. It's obvious that he's wronged someone and that someone is not from Parrington."

These past two days, he had gone over Parrington with a fine-toothed comb. It was definitely not someone from Parrington. The only other possibility was someone from Bardoff City.

"I don't know whose anger he invoked in Bardoff City. But you should know. I want you to investigate things clearly when you're back," Paul said. Jenny was about to speak, but he continued. "There's no sign of Alec here. That means he might not be dead. He might have been taken away. If you find them, you might be able to rescue him."

to kill but to kidnap? It would explain why they could not find careful consideration, she thought that it was a likely possibility. She looked at Paul with a a joke. "I'm helping Alec. He's my best friend. I wouldn't just sit back and watch many lackeys in Bardoff City. He had took Stephanie away from you?" Jenny was curious to know how Paul's mind best friend. I will not sit back and do nothing.' He could be mad at Alec for not helping him before, but that didn't change the fact that he wanted to little differently. Maybe he wasn't get back. You'll have to hold said, "Take care of Stephanie. I'll be in

She didn't think looked at the raging waters

Jenny would find a lead. His instincts told

Chapter 622 Complications

Jenny knew he had misunderstood, so she hurried to explain. "No, Grandpa. I'm not giving up on him." She then told him about Paul's suspicions. "I want to head back to Bardoff City to investigate. If Alec was really kidnapped, he might be waiting for us to save him right now."

She wouldn't find any clues staying in Parrington, so she might as well head back to Bardoff City. She might find out something.

Old Mr. Faust knew he had misunderstood her. "That makes sense. I'm sorry for the misunderstanding."

"It's alright, Grandpa." Jenny smiled. She didn't mind. "I will definitely find Alec, so you must take care of yourself."

"Alright. You may go. I believe in you." He smiled at her, feeling warmth in his heart.

Although Jenny had not yet agreed to be Alec's girlfriend, her attitude showed that she liked him. No matter what, his grandson's efforts were not in vain.

and Paul were around. Faust Group would not be thrown into turmoil. It was best villa somewhere in Bardoff City, a strikingly beautiful woman walked into a room. A person lay on the bed with various machines next to him. It was just doctor standing the doctor replied. Then, he shared his analysis. "Based on his current situation, even if he wakes up, the damage in his brain might

"Complications? Like

might not even wake up," the doctor replied. "But these are all just my speculations. He might turn if she had not expected it. But quickly, she thought of something and smiled. "Proceed with the treatment. You must left, walking into the woman looked at the bodyguard clad in black,

the Faust

She looked back

"Yes."

Chapter 623 I Just Wanted to Make Sure

Graham raised an eyebrow. He could sense Jenny's grim tone. "What happened?" "You wouldn't have hurt Alec, would you?" She looked straight at Graham, not giving him a chance to escape.

Graham was stunned for a moment. He probably wasn't expecting her to ask such a question. He was silent for a while before smiling bitterly, saying, "So, something has happened to Alec, and now you're suspecting me?"

Jenny said nothing. Her silence was enough of an answer.

Graham felt bitter. He had no idea how Jenny viewed him, but one thing was for sure; she had placed absolutely no trust in him. However, she was asking him this question outright. Could she be giving him a chance?

"It was not my doing," Graham said. 'Although I don't wish for you to be together, I wouldn't hurt him because of this."

didn't want Jenny to hate be sure. I didn't want to suspect you," Jenny said awkwardly. She knew it wasn't nice of her to ask him a about it plainly is proof of your trust in me. Maybe I haven't been good enough to deserve your complete trust. But it's alright. I understand." He was never a qualified father. Graham understood it more than anyone else.

have been a reason why Jenny and said, "I suspect that it's by someone in Bardoff City. That's why I came to ask you in contact with many people in Bardoff City. It was pretty easy to investigate the few people with are not unfounded." Graham didn't say much else. "You should investigate the people who have had know." Jenny nodded. Now that she was sure it wasn't Graham, her next step was to find out who Alec and knew she already had a list of suspects. "Did you come to was stunned and then amused. "You guessed my daughter, after all,"

Chapter 624 The Plan Must Go On

She wasn't a fool. She knew that the Glasses would not be so cunning.

But what if? What if the Glasses thought that Jenny and Alec were close enough that they could kidnap him to threaten her? After all, everyone knew that Jenny was the most likely to inherit the Walters.

If they could make her give up the Walters by threatening Alec's life, the Walters would fall into Rowena's and Jolene's hands.

The more she thought about it, the likelier she thought it to be. The Glasses may have had that in mind when they attacked Alec.

She made up her mind to investigate the Glasses thoroughly.

"The Glasses are not much weaker than the Walters. I probably wouldn't find anything out if I were to investigate them. It would be easy for such a huge family to hide someone," Graham said slowly. He wanted to urge Jenny to give up, but he didn't say it in the end. If he did, he would be very cruel.

Although he disliked Alec, he didn't want her to be miserable. He might as well let her carefully. 'That makes sense. If someone were to investigate the Glasses, it would have to be..." She paused

you talking about taking down

Windsors, it shouldn't be a problem. If not, I'll convince one of the other elites to join us. It'll dragged on. He signed inwardly, but he said, "There shouldn't be a need to. The Windsors are stronger than Elites, but there was a hierarchy among Glasses were weaker than the Walters, but the Walters were not as strong as the Windsors. Meanwhile, the Britts were at the bottom of the strongest elite?' Jenny asked instinctively. She hadn't really discovered this all, Graham said, "The Fausts?" Because of Alec, Jenny was

They have a history that spans hundreds of years. They have internal power issues, but that doesn't affect their strength," Graham said

Walters to a height comparable to the Fausts, Jenny

Chapter 625 You're Picking Favorites

Jolene was indignant when she was refused. "Why can Jenny go, but I cant?"

"Jenny is there to talk about serious matters," Graham said truthfully. He hoped that Jolene would not make a fuss.

But Jolene would not hear of it. She merely thought Graham was displaying his favoritism, intending to introduce James to Jenny without regard for her feelings.

"I don't care. I want to go." She pulled at Graham's arm. She didn't want to miss this opportunity.

Graham frowned, expressing his displeasure. "You're not a child anymore, Jolene. Don't be insolent."

Since Jenny showed up, Graham had been learning to be a good father. Even if he felt displeased, he didn't act in anger.

Unfortunately, Jolene didn't know that. "You're picking favorites, Dad. You stopped caring about me ever since Jenny showed up."

It was treat us fairly?" Jolene

just being silly at Graham grimly told her, 'In believe that Graham would actually say that can still be a princess and be treated well was something that used to belong to a chance. How would you know that I don't have what it takes?" Jolene asked. She had discarded her puppy eyes for something had Jenny in his heart. They had to make their picking favorites. You would have given the company to Jenny even if she were trash. You don't need nothing. However, he looked at Jolene as if she was Jolene gnashed her teeth, getting in exasperation. He had

Chapter 626 Are You Sure You Want to Do This?

Jenny thought that she and Graham were early. However, James was already sitting in the private booth.

"Mr. Walter." James got up from his chair and greeted Graham with a smile.

Though the Windsors and the Walters were not friends, they were still acquaintances. James and Graham had greeted each other before. He didn't know that Jenny was his daughter, so their conversations were usually brief. Now, it was different.

Graham was surprised to find James being so polite. Before, they had only nodded in acknowledgment. "Mr. Windsor."

"Just call me James, Mr. Walter." James had a smile on his face, looking amicable. Graham found this all very puzzling. However, he said nothing.

When they sat down, James handed the menu to Jenny. "You can choose whatever you want. You don't have to be so polite around your senior."

was bewildered. Why hadn't he heard of this from Jenny

Jenny had never dryly, saying, "James and I did not go into too much detail that Graham remembered. He remembered assigning Mr. Birkett to be her mentor, but calling him James. After all, they were going to work together in the future. It so busy. He wouldn't have the time." Jenny heart. He smiled, saying, "I would.

Jenny was speechless.

you come to my house for a meal tomorrow?" Graham wanted to build rapport with James. It was partly because once. He wanted to spend more time with seeing them agree to it so readily. She coughed dryly, cutting them off. "Dad, James, let's

Chapter 627 Our Cooperation

"Relax. She has married into my family and is now part of the Walters. I will not let her affect our cooperation." Graham knew of James' concerns, so he said them out loud to avoid any doubt between them in the future. He never really liked Rowena, much less the Glasses.

Before he inherited the Walters, the Glasses had bullied and tormented him relentlessly. He was merely paying them back for all they did.

James understood. He nodded. "With our forces, it would be hard to take down all of the Glasses, though not impossible."

"I feel the same way." Graham nodded. It would be no easy feat. Although the Glasses did not compare to them, they were still one of the Ten Elites. They would not be easily destroyed.

Jenny grew confident when they said that it was possible. "It's okay. We can take our time taking them down bit by bit."

"Let's talk about how we're going to do it, Mr. Walter." James was intrigued by their mission. He was no longer in the mood to exchange formalities with Jenny, merely focusing on the subject at hand.

at Jenny, unsure whether to talk about it now nodded at him and stood up, saying, "You guys can talk for a bit. I'm going to she simply wasn't too well-versed in the way of business. Staying there might even hinder people were hanging around. Jenny was still worried walked outside the restaurant. A cold breeze blew her head, realizing she was only wearing a thin dress. She couldn't help feeling cold, but it wasn't a from behind. Jenny looked back and saw that it was something the matter?" Jenny raised an eyebrow. She didn't want to grow too close to was put off by her attitude. "Have you forgotten about for a while and just so happened to be preparing to take down the Glasses. Jenny thought it was time to help Jolene find a

"You already have the contract. You promised to help

Chapter 628 What Are You Planning?

Upon seeing James, Brandon greeted him, "Mr. Windsor? You're here too?"

James simply nodded expressionlessly, clearly not interested in talking to Brandon. Brandon could tell, so he turned his attention to Graham, who was the real reason he was there. He quickly started chatting with Graham and was able to make him laugh.

Jenny sat beside them, quietly eating, pleased with the situation.

"What are you planning?" James whispered to her, sensing that there was a reason she had brought Brandon.

Jenny grinned and answered, "Don't you think Brandon and Jolene are a good match?"

It caught James by surprise, but he quickly understood what she meant. After taking a look at Brandon, he grinned back at her and said, "Yes, they are indeed a good match."

patted Brandon on the shoulder and said, happily. From Graham's tone, it seemed he would not oppose Brandon and Jolene so happens that James will also be there. The more, create opportunities for Brandon; otherwise, how could she get it was inappropriate since he had already made an who then also chimed in, "I'm good with it in a good mood. She had fool; he had already figured out what she was planning when she brought Brandon brought Brandon to dinner to

Chapter 629 I've Got It Covered

Jenny thought that the conversation would end. To her surprise, Graham continued, "Now that Jolene has reached such an important milestone in her life, what about you?"

"What about me? I'm a divorcee. I'm not in a hurry," Jenny replied, chuckling. Marriage was not on her mind at the moment. There was also Alec in the equation. At the thought of him, she couldn't help feeling a little sad.

As if he could read her mind, Graham said, "I know that you and Alec are very close, but I still stand by my view that you two are incompatible.

James, on the other hand, is a good fit for you. Be it his family background or his personality, he's excellent in all aspects. Why don't you give that a thought?"

When Jenny wasn't around, James told him he liked Jenny and hoped that Graham could help him. It so happened that Graham was worried about Jenny's love life, and he was also pleased that James met all his criteria. Hence, he had no reason to refuse James's request.

With a frustrated sigh, she said seriously, "James and I are just like siblings. There's no way anything can happen between us."

"Why not? You haven't given it a try. Why are you so certain that you don't like him?"

to try, she would find many men wanting to dwell on the topic." What are our chances of it quickly." Jenny was anxious to save someone, so she didn't want it to happen too late. However, acquiring the business of a wealthy family didn't happen overnight, and it required patience. While the rest groups. You just need to keep the attention of the Glasses on you while I look for Suddenly, he realized that she had changed the subject." What about what I just it." Jenny cut him off, refusing to

"You're just you were looking for her? Any updates on that?" Jenny asked. She wanted to know if her mother was of her mother, Graham fell to have disappeared. No matter how hard he searched for her, he couldn't find any sure you'll find her someday." Jenny comforted him, gaining comfort from the refused to give up-he

I don't find her, you have to keep looking for her in the future." It

Chapter 630 He Lost His Memories, Not His Mind

His father nodded. Then, he asked, "Do you think Jolene is that person?"

After a moment of thought, Brandon answered, "I understand what you're trying to say. You're suggesting that it's more likely to be Jenny, right?"

"Don't you think so?" his father asked. "I think that Jenny is better than Jolene in terms of ability, conduct, and connections."

"I agree." Brandon didn't refute his father's statement. "However, regardless of that, Jolene is the rightful daughter of the Walters. Jenny is an illegitimate daughter."

Graham had not married Jenny's mother back then. Even though they were in love, the Walters did not acknowledge their relationship. Therefore, Jenny was not a proper daughter of the Walters.

Jolene, however, was different. She was the daughter of Graham and Rowena. Regardless of how bad the relationship between Graham and Rowena was, they were still married.

sense." His father agreed children. If they all had the true. My father trusted his words. He told me that if a member of the Britt family in your generation marries a daughter of the Walter family, then we will definitely become stronger. Becoming the sights on Jolene wholeheartedly, thinking that she was the one who could change question knew very well that if nodded.

a beautiful woman watched a man rise from his slumber. A strange emotion flashed in her eyes, are you doing?

stared at her,

didn't even remember who he was, and it terrified him. He felt as if he had forgotten something particularly the woman snapped her fingers, saying, "You haven't fully recovered