

Be Yours 741

Chapter 741 You Worried?

Jenny had just returned to Walter Castle when Rowena stormed up to her, yelling, *Why haven't you stopped your war with my family? Do you want to see your mother dead?!"

Jenny gave her a lazy stare. "Do you really take us for fools, Rowena Glass?"

"I...what do you mean?" Rowena instantly quelled, fear swelling in size in her heart.

They couldn't have figured it out...could they? But the double looked so much like that woman, Rowena nearly didn't stop herself from tearing her face apart when she first saw her.

"What do I mean? You really think you can play us like a bunch of idiots with that sad little fake you call my mother?" Jenny sneered.

Even if she couldn't tell the difference, Graham had been able to based on his years of devotion toward her. Hadn't Rowena considered this when they chose the body double?

it, but they figured Graham wouldn't have remembered like they'd underestimated his love for her. Not only had he been able to tell, but he'd also been able to tell in such a short time. It went to show just screamed, "All these years, and he been Graham's wife for two decades and even had a tongue!" Jenny snapped seeing someone else, screeched, "So what if Graham loves you? I'm the one and went back to her room,

a corner in the living room, grunting, "If she left Walter didn't care where she was going. Rowena was nothing more than a silly clown to

Chapter 742 To Kill Her

Gilbert had told Jenny he'd brought her a surprise, but the man wondered if it would truly be a welcome surprise for her.

"Better a surprise than shock. That way, it'll mean you still have a place in her heart."

Gilbert scowled. In truth, he didn't like that man much either.

Though compared to Alec, he was pretty much a saint. At least he'd grown up with this man and seen several facets of his persona.

The man shrugged and teased, "You better be surprised to see me, Jenny, or else I'll be kicked out of Bardoff City."

Their flight landed in Bardoff City the next morning on a Saturday, with Jenny on the way to fetch them for breakfast.

her surprise. Though she stayed silent, entirely ignoring her. Jenny found this weird because Rowena didn't usually wake up this early. Plus, she shouldn't be so calm right now. Still, Jenny didn't give it much thought.

Rowena made a phone call. "She's left had gone out, she muttered hatefully, "I'll make sure you never set foot drove to the airport. It was situated near the Bardoff countryside, away from the city center. The trip from Walter followed by several black SUVs. At first, she thought she might be overthinking it, but then she realized the cars weren't leaving. In fact, they only crept closer and closer to her as the behavior this morning, Jenny

finally done it," Jenny finally seize and present her tricks for everyone to see. That was partially why Jenny had been trying to piss her off all for help. Though unsure of how skilled her enemies were, having backups wouldn't hurt. Before the call went through, something slammed into the car from the side, knocking it off its wheels and landing on its side on the gape at how bold these people were to think they could get away with this under broad daylight. Did the Glasses really think when she spotted the large gang of foreigners pouring out from the SUVs. Chills ran down her spine when she saw them all taking

Chapter 743 Gunshot

Jenny quickly dodged the shot, though, in truth, the situation had just begun to escalate. She knew that if she didn't come up with an escape plan soon, she might actually die there.

But what could she do? She didn't dare seek help from the drivers driving by in their cars. They'd also be subjected to the mercenaries' mercy, which Jenny was strongly against.

The only way out right now was to literally get out of this situation, she decided.

Jenny dove headfirst for the nearby trees. The foliage would help lower her chances of being shot.

"Ow, fuck!" she yelped as sudden pain blossomed in her shoulder, nearly making her knees buckle. A bullet had hit her shoulder. Blood was already gushing out from the wound.

Yet behind her, the mercenaries were closing in on her, so she bit back the pain and ran into the woods.

was calling Jenny's number after landing at Bardoff Airport. Minutes went on, and still, no one picked up, airplane asked. He happened to Jenny, given she wasn't the kind to go back about? She's probably unable to hear her phone ring because of how loud it is in the airport. Who knows, she might point. Let's head out then." Gilbert passed, and Jenny was still nowhere in sight, nor was her call being picked like that, Gilbert decided to call private dining suite discussing a quietly murmured, "We need to settle this first, of shareholders to gather here today, all for Alec's sake. It was a once-in-a-lifetime effort for him to have more footing in the quest to become the Faust family heir. When else would he get a

Chapter 744 Game Over

As the sky darkened, Jenny grew more aware of how the odds were stacked against her. There was no way she could run out of this patch of the forest now.

But she didn't give up just yet. Gilbert would've been on the search for her by now. So she had to stay strong and hold on until she was rescued.

She gritted her teeth and dragged herself onward. It didn't matter where she ended up as long as it wasn't in those mercenaries' hands.

Yet it seemed she overestimated her luck. It took less than half an hour for the men to catch up to her. They surrounded her by the tens, creating a dark black shroud in her vision. Only now did Jenny see just how many meres had been hired to cut her down.

"You have admirable strength, pretty woman," one of the meres, with a head full of platinum blonde hair, said.

Jenny noted down his appearance. This must be the meres' leader. 'How much did the Glasses pay you?'

idea. Still, the money paid out to these said nothing, merely

"Three million?"

are elites in the mercenary world. Three mill

was truly sudden didn't mind telling her this, nor about their employer's information. It's not like she'd live

if sensing it, Jenny asked. "They didn't hire you just she wouldn't be worth that much to them. Nor would they have gone really sharp," the

The Glasses must've planned something big if they even smuggled such powerful men into the country. Were plot include

Chapter 745 If Something Happens to Her

The bullet flew past Jenny as she dodged the shot, leaping off the cliff behind her. There was a river she would land into if she fell; she had noticed it before she was caught.

Still, it was her last resort. That's why she'd tried to negotiate with the mercenaries.

The blonde mere went to the edge of the cliff, unable to spot Jenny anywhere from this height. One of his men went up to him and asked in a foreign language, "What now, boss?"

"Find her, dead or alive!" the man barked out an order.

He had not once failed a single mission undertaken since he started working as a mercenary. He couldn't fail now. He'd find this woman whether she was dead or still breathing.

The men swiftly separated into groups, all in search of Jenny.

conclude that she was in danger. Luckily he had a vast network of eyes and ears in the city, which quickly the gunshot wound in Jenny's friend were there. Graham didn't bother asking who they were;

Gilbert was looking for clues from Jenny's overturned

you joining the search party?" his friend asked, to

"Course I am."

head into the forest, but was distracted by a loud ringtone from behind him. Turning around to look led she hadn't picked

it. His eyes darkened the instant he saw the moment the call was answered. He had started to panic after his spoke up again, this time calmer. 'What did you

you? When?" Gilbert asked,

Chapter 746 I Promise You're Not Hallucinating

Alec instantly tried to dial Jenny's phone number again, but his attempts were all left unanswered no matter how many times he called.

He could only send his men out to locate Jenny as well as try to figure out what had happened.

In the Bardoff countryside, Jenny was awoken by the chills racking her body. She was half-submerged in a bubbling river in the middle of the forest.

How lucky she must've been to not crack her skull open falling down, but also to have been swept to shore by the river's current and not drown to death.

She climbed up the river bank to pull herself out of the water. The gunshot wound on her thigh was still bleeding. If this went on without something to stop it, she'd probably die of shock before those meres found her.

Nearby was a large boulder that she climbed up onto. Jenny then tore her clothes into strips and tied an emergency tourniquet around her thigh to slow the bleeding.

Now that she'd resolved this temporary issue, time to turn to the serious one: how the hell was she going to get out of these woods?

still on her tail, she wouldn't technically was the last time

also hunted down by mercenaries overseas because she helped her mentor with a difficult chemical this time, the meres were coming for her neck, and leaves and bush interrupted her train of thought. Not far away, Jenny spotted what looked had they caught

off the boulder and ducked down

the boulder, asking curiously,

I saw someone here."

had clearly seen someone lying on the boulder earlier up on the hill. Yet no as he was about to leave, the boulder's surface, clearly visible even

Chapter 747 Guard!

Jenny wanted to answer in the affirmative, but she really wasn't in the mood to embrace her pain right now. "Wh-what are you doing here?"

She'd imagine seeing Gilbert or even Alec on the search for her, not Evan, who she'd not seen in ages.

Evan gently set her down, then crouched again. "We'll get to that later. Cmon, hop on."

Piggybacking her out would be easier than a princess carry.

"It's..It's fine. You just need to help me walk.' Though they'd grown up together, she still maintained some distance considering the actual distance between them over the years.

"Just climb on up, Jen. We can't linger here a minute longer. You don't want to die out here, do you?"

He was right. The mercenaries were most likely still looking for her, so sticking around was a death sentence to both of them. Ultimately, she climbed onto his back so he could carry her out of the woods.

man's clothes, something she'd familiarized with him since long ago. It instantly made her would've fallen off long ago if men soon met offered, but Evan didn't let get her pointed look him hopefully date Jenny, and she'd finally have a reliable partner. That meant creating opportunities for the two of them to get close, affirmed Gilbert's decision. Evan was men soon exited the forest, not having once met the band of mercenaries. They must've scattered upon seeing how large a group of it onto the freeway and were about to help Jenny into the car when several cars stopped around

His

Alec stepped out of one

Chapter 748 Find Out Who It Was

Only when Gilbert's men had dispersed did he finally turn back to Alec." Thank you for the ambulance, Mr. Faust. On behalf of both Jenny and me."

"No need." Alec knew who this man was now and also knew just how much he disliked him. But that didn't bother him. All that mattered was that Jenny was safe.

"Heh." Gilbert scowled. "I heard you found someone new. I don't think you need to be so concerned about Jenny now, then, or your lover might misunderstand."

He then got into his car and left, not bothering to hear Alec's explanation.

Alec's brow didn't relax even as the car left. He never imagined his memory loss to have such a grave impact. Thanks to the memory loss, he had no idea why Jenny's brother was so hostile toward him.

"Best to regain memory as soon as possible," he thought.

Gilbert arrived at Bardoff Hospital, where Evan waited outside the emergency room while Jenny was being tended to inside.

down beside Evan. "How is out yet." Evan

Gilbert nodded silently.

ex-husband? Alec Faust?" Evan asked. He had guessed as grumpy. "Do you know why I country long before Gilbert invited him. "I wanted to come

"Whatever."

Alec, do you? That's why you had me

"Mhm."

'Are you sure I'll succeed? It's been a decade at least

Evan had been the sole person Jenny confessed her love to in all her years

let your faith in me go to as I want you to be with her, you have to actually like her in the first place, not wanted was a man capable of loving and providing for

Chapter 749 Future Wife

Jenny's ward was quickly crowded with visitors.

Graham's eyes were wet with tears as he gazed at his daughter still passed out on the hospital bed. "Is Jenny...!"*

"She'll be alright, sir," Gilbert reassured him. He still respected Jenny's father even though they'd barely met.

Stephanie and Jade were visiting, too, as news of Jenny being hospitalized had spread far and wide. Sadly, they couldn't do much before when she was in trouble.

Everyone was glad to hear that Jenny would be fine.

"Why don't you all head home first? I'll stay back to keep her safe. She'll be fine, I promise," Gilbert spoke up.

stick around, they couldn't protect Jenny or be of reluctant to leave. "Why don't you leave first, too? I'll if you let me do this, sir. Jenny would only get to worry, sir. No harm will come

"And you are?"

We grew up together nodded. It seemed the only people who really deserved to be by his daughter's side right now were her childhood friends. If only he hadn't sent her away all those years ago...maybe, he would've been one of was still had some of his men stay guard in the vicinity

First, he leaves his only daughter in a village on the grounds of it 'being reasons." Gilbert could empathize with the Evan disagreed. "What reasons? So he could pursue power and influence for his 'family*? He would've made it work if he had

Chapter 750 We Won't Disappoint

Graham had no idea how Evan was so confident. Given Jenny's personality, he didn't think his chances were too high. That woman didn't let her affections go that easily.

As for Evan's romantic interest in her, to Graham, that was nothing more than puppy love. Something an adult would've grown out of by now. Still, Evan was the only man Jenny had ever confessed her love to, so he might have a higher chance of winning her over.

After Gilbert left the ward, Evan gazed at Jenny, who was resting on the hospital bed. With a smile, he said, "Here we are again, Jen. After all these years...you must've been really upset when I rejected you all those years ago, huh? I've never heard from you even once since then."

He didn't grow up in Orchid Village with Jenny and her brothers. They came to know one another at the elementary school in town, becoming friends ever since. The four of them always studied in the same school, from middle school to high school. It was only when Evan was about to leave the country to further his education while Jenny had to leave for Parrington University that they were forced to say goodbye, i

It was at that time that Jenny confessed her love to him, but because Evan had been worried about letting romance affect his future career opportunities, he rejected her and left the country for university.

hadn't stopped regretting meaningless everything was without Jenny. Yet he was afraid to return after leaving, especially after learning about so he wouldn't miss a chance with her again. He was still worried, though, about whether Jenny still had feelings for him after all these years. Or rather, whether what she had for him

Evan really wasn't sure.

Glasses were the mercenaries' incompetence. "Didn't

his three hundred million

our end, we can take care of another small amount. They had to pay the consequences of their mistake, no matter were gonna placate them for their mistake? All he wanted to do was make