

Be Yours 761

Chapter 761 On the Brink of Death

Although Alicia didn't say it, Jenny could guess what she was thinking.

"I only told you because I didn't want others taking advantage of you. You can still seek revenge on me. After all, Jonathan's death was related to me. H

Although she didn't think she was wrong, she knew it was logical for Alicia to hate her.

Alicia began to waver, and it seemed she didn't truly want to kill herself. Noticing that, Jenny continued, "Think about your brother. He sacrificed so much to save you. Do you really have the heart to let him die in vain?"

Alicia gritted her teeth. Of course, she didn't want her brother's sacrifice to be in vain. But she knew clearly that she couldn't kill Jenny. It would be difficult for her to even meet Jenny as they were from entirely different worlds.

Jenny didn't care about what she was thinking. When Alicia hesitated, she slowly moved closer to her and grabbed her when she was distracted.

instead of toward Jenny. It caught Jenny by surprise. Fortunately, she reacted in time, grabbing Alicia's ankle with one hand and holding onto the edge of the rooftop tightly with the had some combat training and was not weak. Otherwise, began trembling. "Don't let wondered to herself why Alicia made such a scene if she didn't want to die. Nonetheless, she was too afraid to speak for could do was pray that the rescue team would arrive soon. Otherwise, she wouldn't be able to heard footsteps. She didn't know who it was, but she cried, pulled her and Alicia up. It was then she said, unsure how to feel catch her? Do you really want to die with her?" Alec scolded her. He didn't know why he was was on the rooftop, he rushed over immediately. Fortunately, he Alicia, whose legs were trembling. It seemed that she was

Chapter 762 I'm Not Interested in Him

While the two were talking, Alec didn't leave and continued trailing behind Jenny. Only after confirming that she was fine did his heart finally stop pounding in his chest.

Seeing that he had not left yet, Jenny was a little puzzled. "Is there anything else, Mr. Faust?"

"No." Alec shook his head, but his gaze was fixed on Evan. He seemed to be very curious about him, or more precisely, he was curious about Evan's relationship with Jenny.

As if knowing what he was thinking, Evan extended his hand to him.

"Hello, Mr. Faust. I am Evan Clarke, Jenny's family."

The word "family" could be interpreted in many ways. It could mean anything from siblings to relatives and even someone's husband.

Although his expression shifted, his face didn't betray his emotions.

"Hello."

exchanged pleasantries, Alec was ready surgery you mentioned earlier, if it's urgent, you can bring me the not urgent. Your fine. It won't affect her to rest for a few more days, not because he was worried about the surgery being affected. However, he send you the bit hostile. He could tell that something was going on with Alec. "Are the strange to undergo craniotomy surgery because of the cerebral hemorrhage caused the doctors in Bardoff City, he just had to look for you," Evan sneered,

"He approached my mentor

a little stiff and unnatural. "I was just interested in him?" Jenny watched him, not believing he

Chapter 763 How Are You Feeling Now

Gulping, Rowena put on a smile and asked, "What is it? Is there anything I can help you with, Jenny?"

"Not really. I just wanted to know how you are feeling now that the Glasses are bankrupt," she said, deliberately provoking her. Graham, who was in the room, didn't seem to care and ignored the conversation.

Rowena understood it all too well. Graham had always been on Jenny's side.

"It's their own fault that they are in this state. Although I am sad, I won't help them."

There was nothing Rowena could do except cling to the Walters. If she didn't, she would have nothing left.

"Listen to yourself. Haven't you been helping the Glasses?" Jenny sneered at her.

Rowena's heart began to pound, and she began to feel uneasy. "Jenny, what do you mean? I have never helped the Glasses. I know I have asked your father to spare them before, but that was all I did."

might know everything, denial, Jenny handed the information she had gathered to Graham. "Dad, take a

of this, or he wouldn't digested the information, his face fell instantly. "Is all of wouldn't make up false information. In addition,

Rowena, Graham rose, pointing at her and shaking up to comfort him, saying, "Please calm down. It's not worth it getting all worked up and angry over a little, Graham

she paged through them. The first thing she saw was a photo of her and Graham's first cousin, once removed, entering and leaving a hotel together. She continued to flip through the pages and found were also records of her transmitting information to the Glasses and the chat records between her and them found all the information. Weren't her chat

Chapter 764 Divorce

Rowena did not deny it.

Sneering, she replied, "Jenny, before you returned, I never thought of doing this. Although I knew your father doesn't like me, the Walters are still my family. But everything changed since you showed up!"

She looked at Jenny as if she were her greatest enemy. In fact, Jenny was her greatest enemy. If she could do it, she would have annihilated Jenny.

"Stop making yourself sound so noble. Just admit that my return threatened whatever benefits you hoped to receive," Jenny retorted.

Glaring at her viciously, Rowena gritted her teeth and replied, "Yes, it did. Even so, it doesn't change the fact that you never should've come back! Let me correct myself. You never should've been born!1'

She roared loudly, finally saying what she had been holding in.

hit a sore spot. Jenny had always thought that her mother might not have had an accident if it weren't for Jenny. Perhaps she and Graham

Graham said that her mother was still alive, they had no news about her despite the many years that had passed. They upset Graham to see the hurt in always be my precious daughter. You, on the other hand...I shouldn't have to cry. Even though she was a tough cookie, she couldn't stop her tears from falling. "Graham! You're too cruel. I've hard, yet in the end, this was how instead of marrying him. If she had listened to a divorce," Graham said, sighing. Since things had evolved to this stage, their pointless marriage should also wasn't surprised to hear that. She had expected chuckle, she looked at Graham and

Chapter 765 It's All in the Past

Rowena was kicked out of the Walter family. The very sight of her disgusted Graham, and there was no way he would allow her to stay, so he had his lawyer prepare for divorce. After everything was settled, he turned to Evan, who was still in his home, looking a little stunned.

"I'm sorry you had to watch the whole circus.'

"Mr. Walter, don't worry about it. Jenny is my family, and you're her family, so you're my family too."

What had happened made Evan realize how much Jenny had suffered at Rowena's hands.

His words changed Graham's perception of Evan. Of course, Graham knew Evan had feelings for Jenny. He had also heard that they grew up together and were childhood sweethearts. However, if he really had feelings for her, why did he only come to pursue her now?

He didn't know the reason, nor did he want to ask. Hence, he stuck to exchanging pleasantries and small talk.

Jenny sent Evan to the door, she said, "Be careful confused Jenny. "If I hadn't left back then and had been by your side all along, maybe you wouldn't have suffered so wouldn't allow Jenny to marry Alec, the past.

It's all in the past." With him around, Jenny would out and patted Jenny's head. "Go back and think he's not feeling very like Rowena, they were married for many years.

back in. In the living room, Graham was still in the same nodded. "Are you

fine," Graham said, though

Chapter 766 You Are All I Have

Late at night in a hotel suite, Rowena poured herself a glass of red wine and downed it without savoring it. Looking out the window at the bustling traffic below, she laughed to herself.

"Rowena, you wanted the world, but you ended up with nothing in the end," she told herself.

She was unwilling to give up, but what could she do?

The Glass family was gone, and Graham wanted a divorce. She had nothing left.

By the time Jolene arrived, Rowena was already drunk.

"Jolene, you are all I have," she said.

All she had was her daughter.

you staying in a hotel?" Jolene received a call from Rowena, who just asked her to come and accompany her without telling her what had

Rowena said with a bitter divorce? What's going on? Did Jenny say was to blame someone else. She never even considered that it might be of Jenny. Graham would not have wanted and her expression turned ugly. "That bitch! I'm going held her back and stopped her from going.

it

"So,

this time," Rowena said. She was well aware that any of those things she had done could make Graham furious, and now this? How did everything suddenly turn out like this?" Jolene sobbed as she and even though her parents argued Rowena tried to comfort her. "At least you have

Chapter 767 Do You Still Plan on Marrying Me?

Although Jolene was deep in despair, she hid her troubles from Rowena, knowing that she'd only make her mom more upset on top of the divorce row.

After she comforted Rowena and coaxed her into sleep, she finally left the hotel and rushed back to James' villa. She had wanted to spend time with Rowena at the hotel, but James set up ground rules for her, and one of them was a ban on spending the night out.

She dared not go against the rules and rushed home as fast as she could, even when the clock had struck midnight.

After arriving at the villa, she cautiously opened the door, thinking that James must have gone to bed at this time. She planned to tiptoe back to her room to hide the fact that she'd been out.

To her dismay, the lights flickered on once she reached the living room. James sat on the couch and shot her an icy glare that sent shivers down her spine. "Where did you go?"

mind. Instead of feeling happy, she was gripped by fear. She was scared he'd go physical on her, even though up to him, explaining calmly. "I went to see my

it. Rowena had to thank her lucky stars that he had not taken action against her.

and walked up to him. "My dad

he snickered. 'Your dad is cursed for how James addressed Rowena, she didn't have the guts to talk not married yet, but you are now my fiancée. I'm warning you vocalize her thoughts and flashed a bitter smile instead, lamenting, to her name apart from the title of James Windsor's fiancée. She Chapter 768 What Do You Think?

Jolene feared all her tricks and schemes would go to waste. More than that, she worried that she might suffer a bad ending and that Jenny would keep winning...

Caught off guard by the unexpected question, James paused and looked at her with a mocking smile on his face. "What do you think?"

"I don't know." Jolene shook her head and spoke the truth—she was truly clueless. When the Glasses were around, and her family was intact, she thought she stood a better chance at marrying James, knowing that he'd defer to the wishes of the two families despite having no feelings for her.

But she wasn't too sure about that anymore.

She looked like a joke in his eyes. He said disdainfully, "Oh, you're not sure now? Does that mean you were confident in yourself before this?" Taking her silence as a yes, he smirked. "Your self-confidence is through the roof."

leaving an answer to her question. Still, he believed that she must have gotten pale-looking Jolene was trembling violently. She knew the meaning behind his words—he'd never marry her.

a loss for her next step. Should she leave in anger or retreat to her room like a loser, pretending

she felt a full recovery, she returned to work at the hospital with a focused mind. After all, Graham was around to provide support, and wrapped up the consultation for a patient, she was about to call the next patient in but froze upon seeing the name on the list. After

with his medical records

here?" She kept a smile on her face and held back waited in line for a consultation," he answered curtly, rendering her speechless. Of course, everyone knew he was here for a consultation, but

Chapter 769 What Does That Have to Do With You

Ignoring his advances, Jenny reiterated her words and added, "I can perform the surgery on you, but you have to understand the risks that come with it."

"Got it." Given that he was willing to come for a consultation, he must have been mentally prepared for the worst-case scenario. Curious about his insistence, she asked, "I remember you said you didn't care about the memory loss. Why would you change your mind now?"

"What are the consequences of not getting the surgery?" he suggested, directing the question back at her.

She immediately understood him and chuckled. "Mr. Faust, you are indeed smart. Without the surgery, you will gradually lose your eyesight and likely suffer a brain hemorrhage."

Alec could opt for surgery when his condition deteriorated, which would not threaten his life, but no one could foresee other uncertainties in his life at that time. Therefore, it was clever of him to get the surgery out of the way.

"When can I get the surgery?" he asked.

moment. "Let's do it in a week. I had no

ask him to leave because it did not seem he would make a move. "Mr. Faust, you may leave now if he blurted out as quite a busybody, aren't you? That is none of your just curious," he look and but to leave, but the feeling of uneasiness lingered. On his way out, he to see him but gathered himself. "Mr. Faust, are nodded but didn't leave. He hung around and chatted with Evan, perhaps out of curiosity about his relationship any feelings for Jenny now. Am I right?" Evan went straight to

Chapter 770 Give Up on Your Vain Hope

Hearing that, Evan raised his brow. "Oh, is that so? Great. I, too, believe that you wouldn't harass Jenny."

"Mr. Clarke, you have a wild imagination." Alec scoffed and left, not willing to speak to him any longer. Evan smiled at the sight and went to Jenny's office.

It was close to noon, and Jenny was done seeing all her patients scheduled in the morning. She said, "Evan, good timing! I'm about to get off work."

"Nice. Let's have lunch together?" He beamed, and she nodded. She brought him to the cafeteria, her attitude vastly different from when she dined with Derrick Clearwater. Evan didn't mind cafeteria food as long as he was with Jenny.

the cafeteria was bustling with hospital staff who weren't close to Jenny but recognized her nonetheless. They looked at Jenny and Evan with curiosity and on them and searched for a table with Evan. Meanwhile, Derrick glared at the two of them. He had harbored suspicion about their relationship, and his guess was proven right. He finally understood the reason behind thoughts troubled him. His average background frustrated him, unlike Jenny and appeared in front of him. "Derrick Clearwater, why are you here alone? I thought you were going after Jenny Walter. Why is she having lunch with another

he hissed, knowing she smiled even brighter at his angry outburst. "You have to know your place even if you want to her dad and requested that he come up with an idea to get Jenny fired. However,

Dr. Poole was a respected director of a hospital department, he was nothing compared to the Walters. McKenna refrained from giving Jenny trouble out of fear of implicating the