Chapter 941 Are You Doing This on Purpose?

The word "fate" rubbed Paul the wrong way. He scoffed, "Fate? What kind of fate is that? It was just a coincidence!"

Jenny couldn't stand his jealousy any longer. She scooped over to Stephanie and whispered, "Is he jealous?"

Stephanie pouted, mumbling, "Who cares?"

She didn't care what Paul thought. She really did think meeting Leonard today was pretty magical, given they hadn't contacted one another in so many years. What else could it be if not fate?

"Fate works in mysterious ways. Why don't you invite him out for lunch sometime?" Alec suggested nonchalantly.

That made Paul glare at him, questioning the intentions behind the suggestion.

"Do you have that much confidence in yourself?" Jenny asked. Yes, they escaped unscathed, but who knows if luck would be on their side next time?

Their food was then served. Alec immediately served Jenny some soup, replying, "Here. Well talk while eating."

Jenny dug in hungrily, having not eaten anything because of what happened earlier.

"It's not just confidence, actually. If we've done sufficient preparations, all we need left is luck," Alec reassured her. "Like this time. As precarious as the situation was, all of us had prepared backups, which minimized the threats."

Jenny had Paul contact the station while Alec had Vincent bring reinforcements; that was partially why they made it out alive today.

"You say that, but it's not like things will go according to plan each time." What if she hadn't told Paul to get the police? Or what if Zeke had decided to press the trigger on the gun against her temple?

Chapter 943 No Matter What

After shopping for nearly an hour, Jenny and Stephanie finally decided to go home to rest.

Vincent drove a car over for Alec, who then decided to drive Jenny home. Jenny was about to ask if he could drop Stephanie off at home, too, when her friend refused.

Jenny instantly guessed that Stephanie might be trying to give Paul a chance to prove himself again.

"Go on home first. I can have him drive me." It's not like Paul would bite, right?

So, Jenny left with Alec, deciding not to butt in with her friend's decisions.

After the two left, Stephanie turned to Paul and said, 'I'll get a cab. Why don't you go back first?'"

Ultimately, she still decided against having more connections to the man.

The box opened, revealing a delicate cufflink. It was a deep blue shade, which suited Alec very well. Content, he smiled. "It's gorgeous."

"Of course it is. Don't you know who chose this?" Jenny asked with a hint of pride in her eyes.

She knew it was perfect for Alec the moment she saw it, so she didn't hesitate to buy it.

"Well then, goodnight," Jenny waved at him before turning around to open the door.

"Goodnight," Alec replied.

Evan did not show up in front of Jenny for the next few days. Perhaps he didn't know how to explain himself, or he never intended to. Jenny, on the other hand, didn't bother to call and ask him. She decided to wait for him to contact her.

"Is Luke going to end up in jail just like that?" Jenny still couldn't believe it. After all, he was a Faust. Zeke had abandoned him so easily, which surprised her.

Sitting across from her, Alec put some food on her plate. "Zeke is not stupid. Leonard is tightening the noose on this matter. If he insists on getting Luke out, the situation might worsen to a point he cannot salvage. He can't allow Leonard to escalate the situation, so he has no choice but to abandon Luke."

There were too many dark secrets in the Faust family, so Leonard could cause a lot of problems for them if he wanted. Therefore, Zeke dared not act rashly.

The reason he dared not act rashly was that he had not gotten rid of Alec yet. With Leonard in the picture, he would be fighting on two fronts. Even as the head of his family, he could not handle it.

"Does that mean Leonard is rather capable?" Jenny asked, her eyebrows raised.

Chapter 946 Leave It to Me

"You are his friend. Of course, you would speak up for him," Jenny said, glancing at Alec.

She didn't have much of an opinion about Paul, but she felt that he and Stephanie weren't suitable for each other. Perhaps, as Alec said, it was because he didn't know how to love someone due to the environment he grew up in. If that was the case, Paul should learn how to love someone first and then come find Stephanie when he knew how. It made no sense for him to cling to Stephanie before learning how to love.

"It's normal. You want Stephanie to be happy, and I want Paul to be happy. There's nothing wrong with that." Alec didn't think he was wrong to help Paul. On the contrary, he thought it would be unbecoming of him not to help Paul.

Jenny didn't comment on that, as she agreed. "Don't worry. I just want to give the two of them some chance to interact. If Stephanie likes Paul, she won't like Leonard."

"Okay," Alec nodded, but he didn't agree.

Even if Stephanie didn't like Leonard at the moment, there was no guarantee that she wouldn't change her mind. Nonetheless, it was none of his business. If Stephanie fell in love with Leonard, she wasn't meant to be with Paul. Alec, who was not involved in their relationship, couldn't do anything about it.

After the two had lunch, Alec took Jenny back to the hospital for work.

Jenny messaged Stephanie, asking her to have dinner with Leonard. However, Stephanie didn't have Leonard's contact

As soon as Jenny arrived at the hospital, a nurse hurried over and said, "Dr. Walter, you're finally here."

"What's going on?" Jenny wondered, following the nurse.

"A patient's family requested that you perform the surgery," the nurse informed.

As she spoke, Jenny noticed the patient's family that the nurse was referring to and realized it was an old acquaintance she hadn't seen in a long time.

It was strange, really. Although she and Christopher lived far apart in Parrington, he had frequently appeared before her. However, now that she was in Bardoff City, she rarely saw him.

"Jenny." Christopher walked toward her. He wore a smile on his face, but it was much more restrained than before, and he seemed a lot more mature.

Jenny didn't know what Christopher had been through since she last met him. However, given how much he appeared to have matured, she guessed that the Spades had been through quite a lot.

"Why did you come to the hospital? How is Mr. Spade?*" Jenny looked at him, having an inkling of what had happened.

Chapter 948 Your Mother

"My mother?" Jenny was stunned for a moment. She even wondered if she had heard correctly. Why would Harvey talk to her about her mother?

It was difficult for her to form a response. Since she returned to the Walter family and learned of her true identity, everyone's attention had been focused on her father. Because Graham was the head of the Walters, she had become a daughter of the Walters, and thus, no one cared who her mother was.

Harvey was the first person to bring up her mother.

"Yes, your mother," Harvey confirmed and continued, "Perhaps you don't care who your mother is and think it doesn't matter, but I still want to talk to you about her."

He knew that if he didn't speak up now, he might not have the chance to do so again, and Jenny might never know who her mother really was.

Chapter 949 I Don't Think I'll Make It

"I don't think I'll make it. I've been lying in bed these past few days with fragments of the past swirling in my mind. Your mother is among them, and I remember when I first met her. I remember she was injured at the time as if she was running for her life. I felt something was wrong, but she refused to tell me anything, and later, she suddenly disappeared." Harvey sighed in regret and sorrow.

"Injured?" Jenny was surprised. That was new information.

"I'm telling you all this because I hope you won't give up on finding her. I always felt that something had happened to her, which is why she couldn't come to you.'

Although it was only his speculation, it was not impossible given the situation he had observed.

Jenny understood him. Nodding, she said, 'Don't worry, she's my mother, and I will find her.'

She now had a different attitude toward the matter. Perhaps, she should be like her father and do whatever it takes to find her. What if her mother had really been suffering all these years?

Harvey didn't say anything more after that. Claiming he was a little tired, he asked Jenny to go out and call all the Spade family members in.

"She's Jenny Walter. A friend of mine." Christopher introduced her without elaborating, not wanting Alexandra to know too much.

A friend?

A woman's intuition was always accurate. Alexandra could tell from the look in Christopher's eyes that he treated Jenny differently. Although they weren't doing anything out of line, she felt threatened.

"Hello, I am Christopher's girlfriend, Alexandra." Alexandra reached out her hand to Jenny and smiled sweetly.

Although Jenny was surprised that Christopher had a girlfriend, she didn't ask any questions. She felt it was good that he had a girlfriend around him so he wouldn't be too sad.

She reached out and shook hands with Alexandra. "Hello."

"Christopher's friend is my friend too. Let's hang out together in the future," Alexandra said.
