

Beast Tamer 31

Chapter 31 Jianmu and the Stars!_I

Indeed, if one has the right connections and resources, finding gifts in reality would be much easier.

However, all of Feng Chenhao's connections were accumulated through his family, overlapping almost entirely with the resources of his siblings.

Not to mention, even if he found something valuable, it would likely be snatched up by his siblings.

And he might even be tricked.

Feng Chenhao had learned such a lesson a few years ago.

For three full days, Feng Chenhao found nothing.

Either it was too high-level and he couldn't afford it, or it was affordable but without anything special.

Two million Dragon Rising Coins could buy a decent Silver Stage Guardian Beast.

But a Silver Stage Guardian Beast was not at all rare to his grandmother.

It was just when Feng Chenhao was about to fall asleep browsing the Beastmaster Web, preparing to check the trade area and then log off immediately.

That he was suddenly captivated by a new item put on sale in the trading area.

Condensed Jade Dew! Someone was actually selling Condensed Jade Dew as a raw material!

Wasn't this raw material monopolized?

And they were selling all seventy-two drops at once!

After checking the price, it was twenty-two thousand Dragon Rising Coins per drop.

Using his Happy Hand of Otaku, Feng Chenhao snatched up all seventy-two drops at the fastest speed possible.

One million five hundred and eighty-four thousand Dragon Rising Coins were spent, but Feng Chenhao did not regret it at all.

As long as the price of the Condensed Jade Dew, a material monopolized by major forces, did not exceed twenty-five thousand Dragon Rising Coin, Feng Chenhao would be fine with it.

Giving Condensed Jade Dew to his grandmother may not necessarily be the most expensive gift among his siblings.

But it was sure to please his grandmother.

Feng Chenhao felt fortunate that he practiced his hand speed almost every night.

Otherwise, snatching up spiritual materials on the Beastmaster Web would be no easy task.

How many people had been told that the item they were rushing to order was 011 une smell!

As soon as Fang Mu put the Condensed Jade Dew up for sale, before he had a chance to take a deep look into Beastmaster Web, he got a notification from the Steward's Network Assistant.

The batch of Condensed Jade Dew that he just posted was already sold out.

The official at Beastmaster Web needed to verify the goods in Fang Mu's hands.

Since Fang Mu had purchased an unnamed Beastmaster Web account, he needed to provide the address for goods verification.

On one hand, Fang Mu was amazed at the ultra-fast transaction speed of Condensed Jade Dew!

The whole process from posting to selling did not even exceed three seconds.

On the other hand, he readily provided the address of the Creator's Guild.

Fang Mu planned to go to the Creator's Guild the next morning to rent a room for a long-term lease.

After which he would use this room as his own studio.

The price of renting a single room at the Creator's Guild was extremely high, with daily rents for each room exceeding ten thousand Dragon Rising Coins.

That's why many Junior Creators choose to make money by offering public lessons.

The fact that a frugal person like Fang Mu would choose to rent a studio long-term at the Creator's Guild

Was because Fang Mu was playing the role of a Grandmaster Creator on Beast Master Web, and he couldn't possibly never interact with people offline.

Due to their distinguished status and because they needed to remain focused while concocting Spiritual Liquid,

Creators not only let their assistants manage their Steward's Network Account, but also let them stand in for them in communications with others.

For junior and intermediate Crafting Masters, sending an assistant to meet with important figures can seem disrespectful.

But a Grandmaster Creator would have no such worries.

Fang Mu couldn't leak anything about the Blood Aged Wine he possessed.

Even if the security situation in Dragon Rising Federation was good, Fang Mu would still be in danger.

And he didn't want to be treated like a blood bank.

But if Fang Mu wanted to help his family, he needed to provide a reasonable explanation.

Therefore, the best explanation for Fang Mu, was to say that he had become the assistant of a strong Creator.

Fang Mu was clear-minded about any affair.

Given his current talents displayed at school, it was not impossible for him to be noticed by a high-star Crafting Master.

The Beastmaster Alliance took a certain percentage from sales on Beastmaster Web.

Nonetheless, Fang Mu still made over 1.4 million Dragon Rising Coins.

Fang Mu didn't tell Fang Qin, Fang Yuan, and Yan Wood about his becoming a Beast Master.

He was afraid that in their excitement, surprise, and joy, they might stir things up.

However, if Fang Mu were to tell them that he was taken as an assistant by a Crafting Master, they would probably feel the same way.

They might even insist on meeting the Crafting Master who took him as an assistant as his parents.

Fang Mu certainly couldn't clone himself.

Just as Fang Mu was about to look for Fang Yuan's Beastmaster Web ID.

He found that the buyer who had just bought the Condensed Jade Flower Dew sent him a message.

[Feng Chenhao]: May I ask if you are a Crafting Master? If I have the funds in the future, could I buy Condensed Jade Flower Dew from you at 23,000 Dragon Rising Coins?

This line was filled with numerous emojis.

Fang Mu could sense this buyer's carefulness from these emojis and the text.

Feng Chenhao?

Could it be his real name online!

Such a person must have quite a social life!

Fang Mu had decided to play the role of an assistant to a Grandmaster Creator, so he replied.

[Stellar Start]: I am not a Crafting Master yet, I manage my master's account on a daily basis. If you need Condensed Jade Flower Dew, you can find me directly with the price of 23,000 Dragon Rising Coins.

Feng Chenhao asked casually, he did not expect to get a reply.

Being able to sell Concentrated Jade Flower Dew in large quantities gave people the impression of abundant Crafting resources.

Even an assistant to a Crafting Master, who managed the accounts, tended to be very arrogant.

This arrogance was determined by social status.

Seeing his message instantly replied to, Feng Chenhao hesitated and then broke into a joyous expression.

The answer from the other side confirmed his guess.

The reply from the Crafting Master's assistant did not reveal any arrogance.

This indicated that he could try to make contact, to establish a relationship.

Getting to know an assistant of a high-star Crafting Master was equivalent to having half a channel to a high-star Crafting Master.

Plus, this assistant referred to the Crafting Master he followed as "Master", suggesting that the assistant had likely been taken on as a disciple.

Such an assistant got substantial attention from the Crafting Master.

For this material tailored to women, Condensed Jade Flower Dew, even if bought for 23,000 Dragon Rising Coins per drop, a little effort and hard work would ensure a small profit as a middleman.

This way, he would have a way to make money, not relying solely on his family for money.

[Feng Chenhao]: Thank you, how should I address you?

Seeing the message from the other side, Fang Mu replied directly.

[Stellar Start]: Just call me Jianmu!

As a biologist in his previous life, Fang Mu always adopted a dialectical perspective towards myths.

Unlike some people, who think that myths are either entirely false or entirely true.

Instead, he viewed myths as a symbol of culture and life.

“Jianmu” is a towering tree in mythology that can connect heaven and earth.

If Fang Mu’s dream was “Stellar Start”, then “Jianmu” would be Fang Mu’s expectation of himself.

One day, a “Jianmu” could connect all the stars in the sky with its branches!