Chapter 7 - 7: 7 Domestic Beast: Gear Broom_1

Upon seeing this, Fang Mu felt a jolt through his still somewhat weak body.

The Innate Talent: Covenant Blood Contract of his Destiny Guardian Beast, Blood of Abundance, truly brought a big surprise.

On the path of continuous improvement, a Beast Master has to worry not only over resources for strengthening their Guardian Beast.

They also need to make choices regarding their Guardian Beast's contracts.

The number of Guardian Beasts a Beast Master can contract with isn't simply determined by how much spiritual power they have.

Contracting with a Guardian Beast consumes a certain amount of spiritual power.

And the current strength of the Beast Master's spiritual power is related to their ability to comprehend the mysterious patterns from all things in Heaven and Earth.

The stronger a Beast Master's spiritual power, the stronger their ability to comprehend mysterious patterns.

Comprehended mysterious patterns can attach to the Guardian Beast during combat, enhancing the Beast's strength and elemental characteristics.

As one's current spiritual power is related to the ability to comprehend mysterious patterns.

This causes the vast majority of Beast Masters to only contract with one or two Guardian Beasts.

From this point, one can see another advantage of Beast Masters who possess a Destiny Guardian Beast, following their Innate Divine Abilities.

Fang Mu's elder sister, Fang Qin, has had mutations in her spiritual power.

Her spiritual power is much higher than that of ordinary Beast Masters.

Even so, in order to better comprehend mysterious patterns,

Besides her Destiny Guardian Beast, Fang Qin has only contracted with two Guardian Beasts.

Both Fang Yan and Fang Yuan have only contracted with one.

The Innate Talent: Covenant Blood Contract of Fang Mu's Destiny Guardian Beast, the Blood of Abundance, allows Fang Mu to combine his Heartblood with Blood Aged Wine.

Then, through the condensed Covenant Blood Essence, he can contract with other lives, replacing the need for spiritual power.

Moreover, during the contract process, it can cause the contracted life to leap in a positive direction in terms of life levels.

This allows Guardian Beasts contracted by Fang Mu through Covenant Blood Essence, to take a big step ahead of others from the beginning of the contract.

If Fang Mu uses Covenant Blood Essence to contract Guardian Beasts in the future.

As long as Fang Mu has enough blood and sufficient resources, he can contract as many Guardian Beasts as he wishes.

The blood in a human body can regenerate.

The Heartblood regenerates slower.

However, if one is willing to spend Dragon Soaring Coins, purchasing blood-supplying spiritual materials of the Silver Stage,

They can recover in seven or eight days.

To extract Heartblood, one doesn't need to dig a hole in the heart.

There's a type of insect called a Needle Mosquito.

This mosquito doesn't reach the level of a Guardian Beast, but it has been widely used.

The slender and soft proboscis of the Needle Mosquito can pierce the heart wall,

And extract Heartblood without causing much harm.

The Needle Mosquitoes sold on the market only have a blood capacity of one hundred milliliters.

Using this size Needle Mosquito to extract Heartblood, there's no need for measurements.

Just wait for the Needle Mosquito to fill up with fresh blood, then remove the mosquito's blood bag.

Then extract the proboscis that was inserted into the heart.

The small wound will quickly heal under the squeezing of the heart muscles.

Fang Mu plans to wait until his thousand eight hundred milliliters of Blood Aged Wine is brewed.

And immediately extract one hundred milliliters of Heartblood to try brewing a drop of Covenant Blood Essence.

To attempt brewing a drop of Covenant Blood Essence, Fang Mu needs to know how much Blood Aged Wine and Heartblood is needed.

Fang Mu, as a mobile blood repository, has a limited capacity.

The only thing that can help Fang Mu produce blood are various tiers of blood-supplying spiritual materials.

As for possibly existing Guardian Beasts which can help the human body produce blood, Fang Mu has never heard of them.

If Fang Mu can discover such Guardian Beasts in the future, he wouldn't mind spending the Covenant Blood Essence to contract with one.

Right now, Fang Mu is like a hen that lays golden eggs.

As long as the production speed of the Blood Aged Wine and the Covenant Blood Essence can be increased, no matter how much money is spent, it would be worth it.

Because as long as the production increases, the Dragon Rising Coins can quickly be earned back.

Fang Mu sees that his Destiny Guardian Beast, the Blood of Abundance, is nowhere near finished brewing the 1800 milliliters of Blood Aged Wine.

So, he decided to put the Blood of Abundance back in the Destiny Guidebook.

The laws of the Dragon Rising Federation stipulate that a Beast Master, who has awakened his Destiny Guardian Beast, doesn't need to display it under any circumstances.

Of course, doing so comes with certain limitations.

Example being that when joining an adventure team, they would be treated as if they did not have a Destiny Guardian Beast.

Therefore, whether to show the Destiny Guardian Beast or not is subjectively decided by the Beast Master.

Each of his Destiny Guardian Beasts seems very strange.

Fang Mu decides to hide these two Destiny Guardian Beasts well.

Even if one day he must expose them, Fang Mu would choose to expose Fool's Shadow.

And not the Blood of Abundance.

The existence of the Innate Talent: Covenant Blood Contract of the Blood of Abundance allows Fang Mu's spiritual power to be kept in a state of never being exhausted.

While Fang Mu was raising his Beast Master level, his spiritual power was also continuously rising.

This gives Fang Mu an advantage in comprehending Mysterious Patterns, an advantage which others cannot match.

Fang Mu once heard from his older sister.

Mysterious patterns are not only used in enhancing the Guardian Beast during the battles.

They also involved changes in the Life Level of high-ranking Guardian Beasts.

While Fang Mu was sorting out his thoughts and formulating his plans for the next few days.

A broom that looked like it had a steampunk style, moved automatically to the front of Fang Mu.

Then, a clear gear noise came from its inside.

The collision of gears replicates the language of Dragon Rising Federation perfectly.

"Fang Mu, it's time for the weekly big cleanup."

"Will I do the cleanup alone this time or will you accompany me?"

After confirming that the consumption of two Red Jade Mountain Tea leaves had largely revived his body and he could perform activities, Fang Mu placed his hand on the handle of the steampunk-style broom, known as Suction, and said,

“As usual, I will accompany Suction and we will do it together!”

Hearing Fang Mu’s answer and feeling his hand stroking its handle.

The broom, known as “Suction” by Fang Mu, simulated the sound of human laughter through its gears.

Suction is the name given by Third Sister Fang Yan to this Gear Broom that serves as a Domestic Beast.

The Gear Broom is the lowest ranked Mechanical Spirit.

The strength of the Gear Broom is too weak.

Not to mention whether the Gear Broom can reach the level of a Guardian Beast.

Even if it did, no one would contract it.

Because the ability of Gear Broom is to absorb the dust within range.

And this dust happens to be the food for the Gear Broom.

Easy to raise, and possessing practical features.

Almost every ordinary household would have one Gear Broom.

Although not a Guardian Beast, Gear Brooms surprisingly have high Spiritual Intelligence.

As a Mechanical Spirit that is not a Guardian Beast, the spiritual intelligence of the Gear Brooms is comparable to that of some Silver Stage Beast Familiars.

They can communicate simply with their owners and can display emotions such as happiness, anger, sorrow, and joy.

This causes many ordinary households to consider the Gear Brooms as part of the family.

Gradually, the concept of Domestic Beasts appeared in the Dragon Rising Federation.
