

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1501

Always Been Yours Chapter 1501-Fortunately, it did not take long before she composed herself once more. Although there was no wedding ceremony to celebrate her marriage to Nicholas, they lived a happy and blissful life together.

A short while later, they decided to return to their respective homes after finally choosing the wedding dresses.

Sabrina watched Tessa climb into the car and leave the premises. However, she did not leave immediately. Instead, once she was confident that Tessa was out of sight, she whisked out her phone from her bag and sent the photos she secretly took earlier to Nicholas.

"Nicholas, I've accomplished the task you gave me. Tess chose this wedding dress."

When Nicholas received the message, he was handling some documents in the office. He glanced at his phone screen, admiring the picture of his pure and lovely wife in a wedding dress. The look in his eyes was so gentle that a person could drown in them.

When Tessa returned home, Andrew immediately approached her as soon as she climbed out of the car. "Young Madam, the housekeeper who works for Old Mrs. Reinhart is here."

"Did she state the reason for her visit?" Tessa asked with a frown.

He shook his head. "I asked, but she did not say. She only told me that she would wait for your return."

When she heard that, she entered the living room with a slight frown.

Inside the living room, the housekeeper immediately stood up from the couch when she saw Tessa enter the room. She nervously called out, "Madam Tessa."

"What's the reason for your visit?" Tessa queried and took a seat on the couch.

The housekeeper answered honestly, "I came here to deliver some gifts under Old Mrs. Reinhart's orders."

The housekeeper didn't wait for Tessa's response before she started carrying several gift boxes beside her and placing them on the coffee table in front of Tessa.

"Old Mrs. Reinhart heard that President Reinhart will be getting married in a month, so she specially prepared a wedding gift for him. As for this gold locket and necklace, she heard that you've gotten pregnant again. She told me that the necklace is for the baby to wear once the baby is born."

She explained the presents on the table in sequence. Throughout her speech, she constantly shot anxious glances at Tessa. She was well aware that Tessa and Timothy were estranged from Amber due to certain events in the past and was rightfully afraid that these presents would be harshly rejected.

She gulped nervously and took a deep breath. Then, when she saw that Tessa wasn't saying anything after waiting for several seconds, she mustered her courage and continued speaking, "By the way, Madam Tessa, Old Mrs. Reinhart also has a message for you. She understands that you and President Reinhart do not like her. Therefore, to prevent the joyous mood from being ruined, she will not be attending President Reinhart's wedding. Therefore, you and President Reinhart do not need to worry about her attendance."

After she listened to the housekeeper, Tessa remained silent for some time before calmly saying, "Okay. You may return now."

Then, she gestured for Andrew to send the housekeeper away.

Tessa was the only person left in the living room. She stared at the presents on the table and was flooded with a complicated feeling.

Later in the evening, Nicholas immediately noticed the gifts on the table when he came home from work. He questioned, "What are these?"

"These are wedding gifts for Timothy from Old Mrs. Reinhart. As for the gold locket and necklace, that's a gift for the baby," Tessa explained honestly without hiding anything.

Nicholas nodded and noticed that she was in low spirits. He quickly understood that her emotions were influenced by her estrangement from her grandmother.

"If you don't like them, you can just send them back," he suggested gently. Then, he walked over and pulled her into his embrace.

She leaned her head against the crook of his shoulder and shook her head slightly. "Forget it. Just leave them there. If I send them back, they'll just be returned to me again the next day."

That was the truth. Over the past two years, Amber often sent gifts to Gordon. She also occasionally sent some gifts to Tessa, as though she was trying to atone for her past mistakes.

In the beginning, Tessa refused to accept the gifts and sent them back to Amber unopened. Yet, the gifts that were sent back were placed in front of the door again the next day.

After a while, she stopped caring.

Even so, she knew that she would never accept Amber's presence in her life. If Amber had not been an accomplice to the tragedies in her life, her mother would not have suffered such an early death.

Nicholas gave her some advice, "Since she sent us gifts, we should treat her as a guest. We can send her an invitation, and she can attend the wedding if she wants to. If she doesn't want to... Well, then, she doesn't need to come."

Tessa pondered for some time. In the end, she felt that his suggestion was reasonable and nodded in agreement.

They chatted until Gregory returned home from school. Then, the entire family shared a warm dinner.

After dinner, Nicholas retired to the study to continue his work. Tessa helped Gregory with his homework, and Gordon amused himself with his toys beside them.

□

□

□

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1502

Always Been Yours Chapter 1502-Although none of them were interacting with each other directly, the homey scene was so harmonious as though it was a scene out of a picture book.

An hour later, Gregory finally finished his homework and pestered Tessa to provide fetal education to the baby in her stomach.

Tessa observed her high-spirited son, rendered somewhat speechless at his intensity.

The baby was only a month old at this point, so it was not time to provide the baby with fetal education yet.

Unfortunately, Gregory didn't know any of that. He only knew that the baby was his future sibling. So, he looked at her expectantly. "Mommy, what should I do for my little sister? Should I read her a book? Or play the violin for her?"

Before Tessa had time to respond, Gordon interjected, scrunching his adorable nose, "Read a book. The violin makes me sleepy." Combined with his delicate facial features, he looked absolutely adorable.

Tessa was mesmerized by his cute appearance. But, at the same time, she was amused by his reaction.

For some reason, he had absolutely no talent in music. In fact, just listening to music made him sleepy.

Immersed in her thoughts, she ruffled his hair affectionately and gently agreed, "Alright. Let's read to the baby."

Gordon was delighted. He quickly went and chose one of his favorite story books, and then he stuffed the book into Gregory's hands.

"Read it, Greg."

Gregory did not refuse. Then, he flipped the book open and started reading the story.

Over the past two years, he had grown and developed significantly. His voice had also changed from a toddler's baby voice to become crisp and powerful.

After they finished reading the short story, Tessa glanced at the time and discovered that it had gotten relatively late.

She firmly declared, "Alright, let's stop here for today. We can continue tomorrow."

Although Gregory looked like he wanted to continue, he obediently nodded and smiled sweetly at her stomach. "Little sister, you have to remember my voice. I am your elder brother, Greg. I will read you another story tomorrow."

"Don't forget about me! I'm your elder brother, Gordon!" Not to be outdone, Gordon excitedly introduced himself to her stomach.

When she observed their friendly relationship with each other, she suddenly blanked out for a moment. That was because she abruptly remembered her previous child.

If that child were alive, the baby in her womb would have three older brothers by now.

While Tessa was distracted by her thoughts, she suddenly felt somebody tugging at her. Gregory's worried voice entered her ears. "Mommy, what's wrong?"

"It's nothing. Let's head to the bathroom to wash up." She snapped back to the present, then she stood up and brought the two children to the bathroom.

One hour later, she finally coaxed the boys to sleep and lightly tiptoed out of the room.

She did not return to her room immediately but hesitantly stood in the corridor instead.

She had kept the child a secret from Nicholas for all these years. As a result, she had been feeling immensely guilty whenever she thought about the child over the recent years.

A few minutes later, she came to a decision and walked toward the study with a determined expression.

Since he was home, he was dressed in casual wear as he sat at his desk in the study. Every movement he made seemed languid and graceful. In addition, his dignified poise gave him an indescribable sense of nobility.

When Tessa entered the study, she was momentarily fascinated by the elegant scenery that entered her eyes.

On the other hand, Nicholas looked up when he heard the door open. His cold and hard expression instantly melted to become as gentle as water.

"Why did you come here? Are Gregory and Gordon asleep?" he asked, beckoning for her to come closer.

She snapped back to her senses and instinctively walked over to him.

He stretched his arms and pulled her into his embrace. Then, he abruptly realized that she was not in a good mood. "What's wrong?"

"I..." She met with his dark eyes, parted her lips, and suddenly found herself at a loss for words.

He could sense her hesitation. Thus, he raised his eyebrows slightly and persistently questioned her, "What's wrong?"

"There's... something I need to tell you." Her courage wavered for a moment, but she closed her eyes and blurted out the truth about her child, "The truth is that I had a child in the past."

After she said that, she tensed nervously, closed her eyes, and waited to hear his questioning voice.

To her surprise, the rage she expected did not come even though she had waited for a long time. Instead, when she finally opened her eyes, she saw him gazing at her warmly.

Tessa was taken aback for a moment and wondered, "Are you not angry?"

"Why would I be angry?" Nicholas countered her question with one of his own.

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1503

Always Been Yours Chapter 1503-The instant Nicholas noticed his wife's cranky expression, he decided to stop teasing her. "To be honest, I've known about it for a long time."

"You knew?" She was absolutely gob-smacked. Then again, considering his ability and influence, she abruptly realized that it would have been easy for him to discover her secret. Hence, her emotions suddenly became complicated once more.

He quietly observed her reaction, tightened his arms around her, and asked in a deep voice, "Do you remember when you asked me about Greg's mother?"

She was caught off guard by his sudden question and glanced at him in confusion. She was puzzled as to why he suddenly mentioned the topic now. After all, they were talking about her child, not Gregory.

His deep and low voice sounded in her ears once more, "At the time, I thought that the timing was wrong and decided to conceal the truth from you. The truth is that... Greg is actually that child."

As soon as the words left his mouth, she froze in shock. His words endlessly echoed around her head.

The truth is that... Greg is actually that child.

When she finally came back to her senses, she looked at him in pure disbelief. "Are you speaking the truth? Is Greg really that child?"

"Of course, it's the truth. Think about it. If you're not his biological mother, then why would he be so special to you? It's all thanks to that special mother and son bond that you both felt. It's only natural to have a special sense of attraction for each other." He nodded and confirmed the truth.

Her entire mind went blank at the revelation, and she did not know how to describe her own emotions at the moment.

"Give me a moment to gather my thoughts." She raised a hand and gestured for him to continue their conversation later.

He knew that it would take her some time to digest the information she had just received fully. Therefore, he simply waited for her quietly.

A few minutes later, Tessa finally organized her thoughts and stared at Nicholas with a complicated look in her eyes. "Have you always known that Greg is my child?"

Nicholas nodded. "I discovered the truth a long time ago.

When she heard his response, the look in her eyes became very complicated.

"If you knew, then why didn't you tell me?" She shot a questioning look at him.

He answered her question honestly, "I wanted to tell you immediately when I first learned the truth. But you were working so hard for your dreams at the time. I thought that you might give up on chasing your dreams wholeheartedly if you knew that Greg was that child. If I did that to you, it would feel as though I was using our child to restrict your freedom. After all, I once promised you that I would never let the children become the shackles that prevent you from pursuing your dreams."

When she listened to his side of the story, she was so moved that her eyes filled with tears. She never realized that he had shouldered such heavy burdens on her behalf without her knowledge.

"You fool!" She sobbed softly and lightly hammered her fists against his chest.

He did not mind. Instead, he lovingly wiped away the tears at the corners of her eyes. "Don't cry."

"Although you were acting with my best interests at heart, you should have told me about something so important sooner," She glared at the man in front of her and expressed her dissatisfaction.

At the sight of his annoyed wife, he immediately confessed to his mistake with an honest attitude to comfort her. "You're right. I failed to consider my options carefully."

A short while later, she relented to his coaxing and asked, "Does Greg know?"

"Not yet. But, I will look for a suitable opportunity to explain the situation to him now that you know the truth," He voiced his thoughts clearly.

She nodded in agreement. Then, a random thought seemed to occur to her. Her expression became somewhat worried as a result. "Do you think Greg will be able to accept the truth?"

"Why wouldn't he?" He countered her question with another question.

She pursed her lips and pondered for a moment but could not find the right words to explain her doubt. It was just a feeling that she had.

He saw through her concerns. Thus, he hugged her tightly and cajoled her. "Greg loves you. He might be surprised to learn the truth at first, but I'm sure he won't have trouble accepting it."

That's right. Greg adores. He might even be happier to learn that I am his biological mother. But what if... She did not dare to bet on the possibility.

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1504

Always Been Yours Chapter 1504-"Let's not think so far ahead. Let me check how Gregory would react to his biological mother before coming to a decision."

This was her way of telling Nicholas not to interfere in this matter.

Although he was worried, he could understand how Tessa was feeling. He wanted to coax her and say that things weren't as complicated as she thought it was, but he did not say anything after noting her serious expression.

Tessa was unaware of the thoughts that were running through his mind.

Once she made up her mind, she immediately had a strong urge to go to the playroom to see Gregory.

With that in mind, she struggled to get away from Nicholas' embrace. "I'm going to see Gregory."

"I'll go with you."

He was still holding onto her tightly.

Tessa did not refuse.

Soon, the two went to the playroom.

Tessa gently pushed open the door, and a hazy yellow bedside lamp shone, casting a warm glow in the room.

She tiptoed into the room and made a beeline to the bed.

Gregory was already sound asleep in his bed. His little face was flushed, probably from the heat.

Tessa's heart immediately softened when she saw this. Memories of the first time she met him flooded her mind, and tears began to glisten in her eyes.

It was no wonder Gregory liked to cling to her.

It turned out that this was all God's plan.

Nicholas sensed that his wife was getting emotional and quietly pulled her into his arms to comfort her.

After a while, he softly said, "Let's rest for now. It's getting late. Don't you still have to send Gregory to school tomorrow?"

Tessa nodded with tears in her eyes.

...

The family sat in the dining room early the following day for breakfast.

Tessa's eyes were teary as she stared at Gregory and fed him. "Have some more."

After breakfast, she treated him with more care than before and looked a little panicked.

Her abnormal behavior immediately aroused doubts in Gregory and Gordon.

Nicholas didn't know what to say. He felt that she was being too cautious, which might backfire.

In fact, he was right.

After all, Gregory was very sensitive.

On the way to school, under Tessa's gaze, he finally blurted, "Mommy, what's wrong with you today? Why are you always staring at me like that?"

She was a little lost for words when faced with his genuine concern. She didn't know what to say.

However, she knew she would have to discuss this sooner or later. So, she cleared her throat and asked nervously, "Gregory, what do you think of your mother?"

"My mother is you, and I love you."

As he said that, he reached out to hug her.

She immediately embraced him tightly as an indescribable feeling rose in her heart.

After a while, she pried him off and asked again, "I meant your biological mother, Greg. How do you feel about her?"

As soon as she said this, Gregory froze.

Biological mother?

He frowned, not understanding why she would bring her up.

"I haven't seen her, so I don't know how she is. I don't want to know either."

He shook his head as if thinking of something and hugged Tessa again. "Did that woman show up, Mommy? I don't care. I don't want my biological mother. I just want you."

When Tessa heard those remarks, she could tell that his biological mother somewhat repulsed him. He definitely seemed upset when she brought up the topic, and her heart panged.

Nonetheless, she understood where he came from. So, she quickly hugged him and coaxed gently, "I'm just asking. You don't have to worry, okay?"

Although she tried to disperse his worries, this conversation had been imprinted in Gregory's brain.

Tessa had no clue about this.

After she sent Gregory off to school, she was an utter mess.

As a result, she was in a state of gloom for the entire day.

When Andrew saw the despondent air around her, he assumed that something was bothering her. So, he took the initiative to ask her, "Madam Tessa, did something happen?"

"It's nothing, Andrew. Don't worry," she replied with a forced smile.

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1505

Always Been Yours Chapter 1505-Andrew could tell that she didn't want to talk about it, so he did not pursue the matter. Instead, he just reported the matter to Nicholas.

When Nicholas heard about Tessa's state, he knew that Tessa was worried about Gregory.

It was precisely because of this that Nicholas went back early that afternoon.

The instant he strode into the living room, he saw her listlessly sitting on the couch with a heavy heart.

He walked over, distressed, and pulled her into his arms. "Are you still thinking about Gregory?"

Tessa nodded, and her head wandered to the conversation she had had with Gregory this morning.

“I was right. Gregory doesn’t want his biological mother.”

As she said this, she felt even more depressed.

Nicholas couldn’t bear to sit here and watch her suffer, so he coaxed, “Why don’t I tell Gregory the truth? You didn’t know about his situation back then. I believe he will understand.”

Tessa was moved by this, but she felt that it was better for her to tell Gregory herself.

Therefore, she rejected his suggestion.

“It’s okay. I’ll talk to him myself.”

Nicholas noticed her resolute expression, so he did not force the issue further. Instead, he would only intervene if the conversation did not go well.

However, Tessa had no idea that he had this in mind.

When she saw that it was time to pick Gregory up from school, she dragged Nicholas along with her.

Outside the school gate, Gregory was delighted to see his parents picking him up together.

Thus, he excitedly shared the exciting things that happened in school throughout the journey.

Tessa was just listening attentively.

Her behavior made Gregory feel that his mother was acting rather odd.

Later, the family of three had a meal together.

When Gregory saw that Tessa was occupied with Gordon, he immediately took this opportunity to look for his father.

“Daddy, did any strange woman come to look for Mommy recently?”

The way he asked was so tactful that Nicholas didn’t know how to react for a while.

He looked at Gregory suspiciously. “What woman?”

"My... My biological mother."

Gregory looked at Nicholas anxiously once he finished speaking as if surprised that his father was so daft.

Nicholas was rendered speechless by his gaze.

In the end, Gregory continued before he could speak, "I don't care if that woman is my biological mother. I only have one Mommy. You're not allowed to see that woman. She is bad!"

The little guy paused. Then, as if he had thought of something, he reminded, "Also, get someone to stop that woman from disturbing Mommy."

Nicholas was both happy and worried for his wife when he saw Gregory being so anxious.

It seemed like his son was indeed somewhat repulsed by his biological mother.

If Tessa listened to him and told Gregory about her identity, there was a high probability that things might not end well.

At that thought, Nicholas did his best to hide his true feelings and looked at his son seriously. "Why do you dislike her so terribly?"

"I... just don't like her."

Gregory pursed his lips; his voice was dull.

When Nicholas heard this, he felt that there was something he didn't know about.

He gave it a brief thought before pressing the issue, "Can you tell Daddy why you hate her?"

Gregory remained silent and did not answer.

Nevertheless, Nicholas just waited quietly and didn't push.

After a while, the little guy's low voice sounded in the study.

"When I was young, I asked Great-Grandpa about my mother. Great-Grandpa said that the woman gave birth to me because of money."

Nicholas was stunned to hear this.

Then, Gregory's voice sounded angry.

"That woman abandoned me for money, and now there's definitely something fishy going on since she's back. She will definitely find Mommy. So, Daddy, you can't let that woman find Mummy. We have to protect her."

Nicholas was at a loss for words when he finally unearthed the truth from Gregory.

Frankly, he did not expect his grandfather to dig such a deep grave for him.

As he thought about this, in addition to Gregory's misunderstanding of his wife, if he told Gregory the truth now, he might not be able to accept it.

"I see. Don't worry. I'll make sure your Mommy is well protected, and no one will be able to bother her."

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1506

Always Been Yours Chapter 1506-Nicholas suppressed all the complicated feelings in his heart and promised.

Gregory immediately released a huge sigh of relief.

At this time, there was a knock on the door. When the father and son turned around, they saw Tessa pushing the door with an inquisitive look in her eye. "Nicholas, Andrew said that Gregory came to look for you."

As soon as she said that, her eyes landed on the little boy standing beside Nicholas, and her gaze immediately softened.

"Mommy." Gregory trotted over and hugged her lovingly.

Tessa gently ruffled his black hair and said softly, "It's getting late. Why don't I help you get washed up for the night?"

"Yay!"

He nodded profusely.

Later, when Nicholas returned to the room, he found that his wife was still wide awake. He knew why she couldn't go to sleep, and his eyes were filled with helpless heartache.

"Didn't I tell you to sleep earlier? Why are you still awake?"

"I have something to ask you."

Tessa didn't beat around the bush. "What were you and Gregory discussing before I came in earlier?"

When he saw his wife's worried expression, he stayed silent momentarily before telling her the truth. In the end, he sighed. "I didn't expect Grandpa to tell Gregory such things. It's no wonder he had never looked for his mother after all this time."

Tessa felt a little unjust and sad after hearing such a tale.

"Actually, Old Master Sawyer is right in saying that," she murmured softly.

After all, when she was pregnant with Gregory, to her, it was indeed just a task that needed to be completed so Remus would fork out the money in order to treat her brother.

Nicholas noticed that his wife's mind was elsewhere and instantly knew that her mind was running wild once more.

"Stop overthinking things. Didn't you also say that a car accident happened when it was almost time for you to go into labor? Once you woke up, you learned that the child was gone. It's not your fault."

Nicholas tried every means to comfort Tessa.

At the end of the conversation, he said, "Also, Grandpa probably said those nasty things because he was afraid that Gregory would look for his mother and wouldn't be able to deal with your absence. He definitely didn't expect that we would meet again after so long and get married."

Tessa felt the burden on her shoulders lightening after hearing his remarks.

Nonetheless, she snuggled into his arms and thought about the matter carefully before telling him about her plan.

"Here's what I plan to do. Let's not rush things. We'll explain the misunderstanding to Gregory. This way, when we reveal the truth, it should be easier for him to accept it."

"Okay. You can do whatever you want. Just keep in mind that if things don't work out, I'm always here in your corner."

Nicholas was naturally fully supportive of any decision she made.

Then, the two talked a while more before falling asleep in each other's embrace.

...

The next day, the family of four had breakfast together.

Nicholas eventually left for work while Tessa sent Gregory to school.

On the way there, the mother and son had a fun chat, and none of them brought up that sensitive topic.

It wasn't until the car stopped at the school gate and Gregory had gotten out of the vehicle that he stood by the gate and looked at Tessa solemnly.

"Mommy, no matter what people say, don't believe them. You are my only mother."

Tessa was momentarily stunned by the sudden shift in his mood before she quickly understood what he meant. Although she was a little dumbfounded, she was really moved by his words.

She looked at him tenderly and said with a smile, "I know. Hurry to class now. Don't be late."

Gregory nodded before turning around and dashing into the school.

Tessa watched his back until he disappeared before telling the driver to send her home.

Unexpectedly, as soon as she entered the living room, she saw her parents-in-law sitting on the couch, playing with Gordon.

"Mom, Dad, what are you doing here?" She greeted them with a smile and walked over.

Stefania and Tobias did not respond immediately but instead instructed Andrew to take Gordon away.

When Tessa saw this, the smile on her face faded a little.

She knew that her parents-in-law had something important to say this time. With that thought in mind, she cautiously asked, "Did something happen?"

"I heard from Gregory that his biological mother came knocking at the door and found you. Why didn't you tell us about this?" Stefania cut to the chase and asked.

Tobias, who was sitting beside her, also spoke up in a deep voice, "What did that woman tell you? Where is she now?"

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1507

Always Been Yours Chapter 1507-Tessa paused for a moment. "You know?"

"Of course, we know. Greg told us to help you in case you needed it," said Stefania. Reminded of something, she smiled. "He knows you love him."

Tessa nodded. She thought that was true. The Sawyer couple decided to ask her about Gregory's real mother. "Tell us about Greg's mother, Tessa."

Tessa mused over it and decided to tell them the truth. They would find out eventually, after all. "It's a misunderstanding. There is no mother of his." She chose her words carefully and explained everything.

The Sawyer couple was shocked, and they stared at Tessa in disbelief. "So, you're his mother."

"Yes." Tessa nodded, smiling dryly. "I got into a car accident on my way to the hospital, and the doctor said I lost the baby, so I thought he was gone."

The Sawyer couple had no idea what to say, and silence fell between them. A while later, Stefania chuckled. "No wonder Greg insisted on choosing you. So, this is why."

Tobias nodded in agreement. Tessa thought so too. It felt like fate wanted this to happen.

Stefania asked, "So, how will you tell Greg about this?"

"I'm first going to clear up the misunderstanding and tell him I'm his real mother," Tessa said.

The Sawyer couple didn't agree. "I think you should just tell him the truth. Being so roundabout will only deepen the misunderstanding."

"Greg's not like the other children. You don't have to complicate things," said Tobias.

Tessa thought they had a point. After all, Gregory did convince them to come over to help. She made a decision. "I know. I'll talk to him at night."

The Sawyer couple sat around and played with Gordon for a while, then they left.

That evening, Tessa went to pick Gregory up as usual. Before she left, however, Gordon hugged her. "Where are you going, Mommy? I wanna go too." He blinked and looked at Tessa cutely.

Tessa bent over and carried him up. Without hesitation, she answered, "I'm picking Greg up. You can come with me if you want." As she spoke, she walked out of the living room.

There were already a lot of cars waiting outside when they arrived at the school. When the last bell rang, students started coming out of their classrooms, then they made their way to the school entrance. Tessa was standing at the roadside, holding Gordon's hand. She searched for Gregory among the crowd, and a moment later, he hurried over to them. "Mommy, Gordon," he called them happily and came up to them.

Gordon broke free of Tessa's grasp and held Gregory's hand. "I've been a good boy today. When we go back, I want to play with your robot."

"Sure thing. We'll do that when we get back." Gregory nodded and told Tessa to quickly get in the car.

The boys got in the car, and Tessa cocked her eyebrow. Hm, did Gregory tell Gordon to come with me today? They must be up to something. In fact, her guess was correct.

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1508

Always Been Yours Chapter 1508- Mommy Is My Mommy

After getting into the car, Gregory pulled Gordon over and whispered something in his ear.

Seeing that, Tessa couldn't help feeling even more curious. "What are you brothers whispering to each other about?"

"Nothing," Gregory replied, winking at Gordon.

Gordon played along. Nodding in agreement, he spoke in his toddler's voice. "Mommy, I didn't say anything."

As everybody knew, their clumsy denial was no different from revealing their lies outright.

She burst into laughter but did not pursue the matter any further. That was because she had already guessed the contents of their conversation from the furtive but probing looks that Gregory kept giving her. Gregory was probably worried that she would go out to meet his fictitious biological mother, so he was asking Gordon to tag along with her.

Thinking about her son's concerns, she couldn't help feeling warm and tingly inside.

That evening, the entire family gathered in the living room after enjoying a harmonious dinner together.

Thinking that the timing was right, Tessa dismissed the servants around them and turned to look at Gregory with a gentle gaze.

"Greg, there's something I need to tell you."

Gregory was an intelligent child, so he immediately guessed what she wanted to tell him.

"I don't want to listen. Don't tell me about that woman, Mommy! She's a bad woman!" He covered his ears and refused to participate in the conversation.

Seeing that, she quickly stepped forward and crouched down in front of him.

"Greg, you're mistaken. There is no such woman," she comforted him gently.

He glanced at her suspiciously. "Really?"

"It's true. When have I ever lied to you?" Tessa nodded vigorously.

Only then did he believe her words and remove his hands from his ears. "Then, what did you want to tell me?"

"I wanted to tell you that I'm actually your biological mother." After revealing the truth, Tessa looked at Gregory nervously.

Dumbfounded by the revelation, Gregory blankly repeated her words in disbelief. "You're my biological mother?"

She nodded again and continued staring at him anxiously.

Seeming to blank out in shock for a moment, he then joyously threw himself into her arms without warning. "That's great! Mommy is my mommy!"

His words filled her with a debilitating sense of relief. She happily hugged him back, thinking that her mother-in-law was right—she had been over-complicating things after all.

Beside them, Nicholas watched the interaction between mother and son in delight. After a while, he stood up and walked over to separate them. "That's enough. Stand up and sit down properly. Don't put too much pressure on your mother. Don't forget that your little sister is in her belly."

Following Nicholas' reminder, Gregory immediately looked at Tessa in concern. "Mommy, are you okay?"

"I'm fine. Don't listen to your father's nonsense." Tessa comforted her son and turned to the side to glare coquettishly at Nicholas.

Among them, only Gordon was very confused by the conversation.

“Mommy, Greg, what are you talking about? You’re his mommy, so why is he saying that you are his mommy?” He certainly had the right attitude about asking for an explanation when he did not understand something. Hence, he glanced at Tessa questioningly.

Tessa burst into laughter. “It’s okay if you don’t understand. You only need to remember that Greg is your biological elder brother.”

He nodded.

At this moment, Gregory suddenly recalled what his great-grandfather had once told him in the past. His originally happy expression instantly crumpled. He naturally believed that his mother was not a money-grubbing woman, but it was true that his mother had abandoned him at the beginning. Therefore, the incident had always been a thorn in his heart.

Seeing the change in his expression, Tessa asked in concern, “Greg, is there a problem?”

He glanced at her hesitantly. Pursing his lips slightly, he eventually could not resist voicing the doubts in his heart. “Mommy, Great-Grandpa once told me that you abandoned me because of money. Is that true?”

Tessa was taken aback by his question, but she had always known that he was secretly bothered by what happened in the past.

“What your great-grandfather told you is not the complete truth. Some stuff happened back then. By coincidence, I happened to be involved in a traffic accident when I gave birth to you. By the time I regained consciousness, the doctor informed me that you were stillborn. That’s why I’ve always thought that you were no longer alive.”

Although she concealed some of the circumstances surrounding the incident back then, she emphatically explained that she had not abandoned him on purpose.

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1509

Always Been Yours Chapter 1509-After Gregory heard her explanation, he couldn’t help feeling astonished. He never imagined that there were so many circumstances surrounding his birth, but he finally understood that his mother had not abandoned him on purpose. Hence, the dissonance in his heart vanished instantly.

Now that they had cleared up the misunderstanding, the relationship between mother and son became even closer than before.

After chatting happily for some time, Tessa abruptly realized that she had not informed her younger brother about the truth. Thus, she immediately began looking for her phone.

Nicholas watched her search for some time, then he inquired in puzzlement, "What's wrong?"

"I haven't told Timothy about this. He should be awake by now, so I want to tell him." While explaining herself, she prepared to dial her brother's number. In her elation, she completely forgot that she had kept her first pregnancy a secret from Timothy.

Her response made him raise his eyebrows slightly. Then, he seemed to come up with an interesting idea. A wicked smile appeared on his face, and he began to dig a hole for his brother-in-law.

"Actually... Timothy has known the truth from the beginning."

As soon as Tessa heard those words, her temper flared.

"Does everybody know? Was I the only person who was kept in the dark about this matter?" She shot a fierce glare at him.

Nicholas was just about to defend himself from her accusations when the video call with Timothy connected.

"Tess, why did you call me so early in the morning? Did something happen?"

Timothy had already showered and dressed by this time. He appeared on the screen, dressed in casual and comfortable clothes.

Before Tessa could answer, Gregory excitedly rushed over. "Uncle Tim, I just learned that you are my uncle! Just like Gordon, we are close relatives!"

"What are you saying? Since when have we not been close relatives?" Timothy looked at Gregory in amusement, but he immediately realized that something was not quite right.

At this moment, Gregory pouted and retorted, "Stupid Uncle Tim! When I said we were close relatives, I didn't mean what you're thinking right now. I meant that you're my biological uncle! Mommy is my biological mother!"

As soon as Timothy heard those words, he knew that his guess was correct.

His sister's strangled voice sounded in his ears. She was speaking each word through gritted teeth. "Timothy Reinhart, it would seem that you've been itching for a beating! How dare you conspire with your brother-in-law to fool me? Are you my brother or not?"

"Tess, I'm sorry." Looking at his furious sister, Timothy immediately cowered and admitted his mistake.

Unfortunately, his apology was too late. She gave her younger brother a severe scolding.

While being scolded by his sister, Timothy suddenly noticed his brother-in-law standing nonchalantly by the side. A sudden idea popped up in his head, and he decided to push the blame onto somebody else. "Tess, I actually wanted to tell you when I first learned the truth. However, I decided against telling you after being persuaded by Nicholas. He told me he had his own arrangements."

Upon hearing that statement, Tessa abruptly remembered what Nicholas told her last night. Although her temper subsided slightly, her anger did not go away completely.

She shot a fierce glare at her brother. "I'll deal with you when you return!" After saying that, she turned to Nicholas and angrily declared, "For the next whole week, you can sleep by yourself. I'm going to sleep with Greg and Gordon."

"That's great!" Gregory danced and cheered.

Likewise, Gordon was delighted by the news.

After ending the video call, the two boys excitedly hogged Tessa's attention. "Mommy, we'll help you move your things. Since you're going to stay for a week, you should move your toiletries over."

Their excitement and initiative were only natural. After all, they rarely had the chance to sleep with their mother.

Naturally, Tessa did not refuse their suggestion. Taking their hands, she walked away with an angry snort at Nicholas.

Gregory also had a triumphant look on his face.

Seeing that, Nicholas raised his eyebrows slightly. The look in his eyes was dark. Sleep alone? Impossible!

That night, Tessa and her two sons played until very late at night before they finally went to bed.

At this time, the tightly shut door was gently opened from the outside. The light from the corridor spilled into the room, and a dark silhouette appeared at the door. It was none other than Nicholas, who had been given the cold shoulder by Tessa.

Nicholas looked at the silhouettes on the bed with a warm look in his eyes.

Read Novel Always Been Yours Chapter 1510

Always Been Yours Chapter 1510-Unexpectedly, Nicholas had just walked out of the room when his wife, who had been sleeping soundly in his arms, suddenly opened her eyes.

Tessa stared at the handsome man in front of her, feeling annoyed and exasperated.

“Send me back,” she ordered, slapping his shoulder.

However, he continued forward without changing his direction. At the same time, he coaxed her with various sweet nothings.

“I’m sorry. I have reflected upon my mistakes. Please come back and sleep with me. I can’t fall asleep without you.” Then, he lowered his head and kissed her on the forehead.

She initially had the intention to struggle against him, but they had already arrived at the bedroom. Before she could protest again, he covered her lips with a kiss.

Naturally, it was impossible for them to make love since she was pregnant. Nevertheless, his actions left her with no strength to struggle any further.

The next morning, things progressed as expected. Both Gregory and Gordon were extremely incensed.

“Evil Daddy! Mommy told you to sleep alone. How dare you secretly steal Mommy from our beds?!” Gregory reprimanded Nicholas across the dining table.

Gordon nodded in agreement. “Evil Daddy. If you continue to be naughty, Mommy will punish you.”

Tessa watched their interaction from the side, laughing happily.

When Nicholas saw the smile on her face, a look of helplessness and affection appeared in his eyes.

After breakfast, Nicholas went to work and Gregory went to school.

When Tessa returned home from sending Gregory to school, she was surprised to see her parents-in-law waiting for her.

Upon further thought, she quickly realized the reason for their visit. It was most likely about whether Gregory had accepted their biological relationship.

And the reality turned out to be just as she predicted.

As soon as Stefania noticed Tessa's return, she anxiously asked, "Have you told Greg?"

"Yes." Tessa nodded, then took the initiative and gave them a brief rundown of what happened last night. "You were right, Mom. I was over-complicating the situation. Greg took the news very well."

Hearing those words, Stefania and Tobias finally laid their worries to rest. Afterward, she began to discuss marriage-related matters with Tessa.

"All the preliminary preparations have been completed. The new house has also been renovated and furnished. The only thing left is choosing the decor for the wedding venue. Since you're here today, why don't you see if there's any particular arrangement that you prefer? The designer sent me many pictures of the designs."

While speaking, she took out her phone and pulled up the designs on her phone. Then, she handed her phone to Tessa to view and choose a design.

Tessa was taken aback for a moment, then she laughed and pushed the phone back to Stefania. "Mom, aren't you forgetting something? I'm not the bride."

Stefania blinked.

Likewise, Tobias nudged his wife with his elbow as a reminder.

"Oh! What I meant is that Sabrina is busy with her work at the company. She told me that you will handle these matters on her behalf, so I decided to leave the choice to you." Stefania quickly made an excuse to cover up the part where she nearly revealed the secret.

Tessa did not suspect Stefania. Hence, she helped to choose a design for the wedding venue that she thought was pretty.

They later had lunch together, then the two elders went home.

Tessa judged that there was no reason for her to stay at home alone. Her mother-in-law had mentioned that the furnishing of her brother's house had been completed, so she decided to visit the house.

Before leaving the house, she called Nicholas to inform him about her destination.

Unexpectedly, Nicholas was worried about letting her go alone. Seeing as he had an important meeting that he could not afford to postpone later, he sent Edward to protect her instead.

Half an hour later, Edward picked Tessa up and headed to the new house. Along the journey, he kept glancing at the rearview mirror as though he had something to say.

Tessa naturally noticed his odd behavior and curiously asked, "Mr. Jackson, is there something you want to tell me?"

"I..." He initially hesitated but quickly made up his mind. He asked grimly, "Young Madam, how much do you know about your friend known as Mona?"

His question surprised her so much that she blanked out for some time.

"Is there a problem with Mona? Why do you ask?" Returning to her senses, she glanced at him suspiciously.

He immediately tried to conceal his intentions with a nervous laugh. "There's no need to wonder about my intentions, Young Madam. I was just asking a random question."