

Chapter 64 Handing Over The Paternity Test Result

Wendi must have told him everything she saw in Western Ocean City so she's not so surprised he knew. She was just surprised that he mentioned it too early.

"Yes."

"I didn't know that the one night stand we had then would lead to you being pregnant for me. Honestly, I wasn't in my right senses when I spent the night with you," he said. Donna had already written to him after it was established that Richard wasn't her children's father. Since Christopher also had a slight resemblance with the kids, she had written to him to claim the kids as his.

Christopher never spent never any night with Katherine in the past. Infact, after he disappeared from her life, today is the next time they would be seeing. But if he doesn't claim her child, how can he win her heart?

Katherine felt very awkward with what he said, she said quickly, "my kids are not for you, General."

"Don't tell me you don't already know this. You can already see the similarities between my kids and I."

"My kids are not yours, sorry. Is there anything else you invited me here for?" She asked.

He looked deeply at her and after a few seconds, he declared powerfully, "The kids are mine."

He added, "not just the kids alone, even you, Katherine. You are mine."

Katherine was already feeling uncomfortable in his office, "I think I should leave now." Then she stood.

"Get ready, by 8PM tomorrow, I'm taking the children for a DNA test. When the prove is out, will you still able to say kids aren't mine?"

Katherine didn't say anymore word but just walked out.

As Katherine took the elevator downstairs, she couldn't help but wonder why he was speaking with so much confidence. He sounded like someone that gets what he wants no matter what the other party thinks or feels about it. He was already claiming her kids and her as his? Did he think she was the little girl of the past that use to crush on him? Many things has changed now.

Katherine was ninety percent sure that he was their father. If he's not the one, who else could it be then? As she approached her car, she saw someone already leaning on the car. She walked closer and saw Derrick.

"Marshall!" She saluted.

"What did he say?" Derrick asked.

Katherine sighed, "Marshall, I'll be needing your help." She then answered his question, "He said he would be performing DNA test on my kids tomorrow."

Katherine continued, "he said the kids are his. I don't know how he already knows that the kids are for him." Katherine mumbled in confusion. "I don't want him as the father of my kids." She looked at Derrick's face pitifully.

"Why?"

"I just don't." Katherine didn't want to Derrick and that Christopher and her had a past together." She said and added, "Marshall, he said we should go to the hospital tomorrow to perform a DNA test, can you please follow me?"

"To do what?"

"I know this is wrong but I want you to claim you want to perform a DNA test on the kids too, afterall, the kids has the same resemblance as you as well. Then I will tell the doctor to switch the result. The doctor will write Christopher's name in yours and your name on that of Christopher's result." Katherine said.

She continued, "so it will come out as you being the father of the kids while he would be dissapointed to realize that he's not the father of the kids."

Her heart was beating abnormally as she made this offer. It sounded rude or awkward telling Marshall to do such a thing but she really didn't have anyone else that could do such for her.

She can't let Christopher claim her children.

When Marshall wouldn't speak even after many minutes had passed, Katherine felt very bad assuming that his silence probably meant 'No.'

"Marshall, why are you here?" She decided to change the topic.

Derrick held her by the hand gently and pulled her to himself gently, "you prefer for me to be the father of your kids, right?"

Katherine's mouth shivered, "no."

"No?" He repeated and hummed, "I'll help you. Get inside the car, I'll drive you home."

Katherine nodded and went to sit at the seat beside the driver's seat. Derrick sat at the driver's seat and began to drive.

Whereas, from the seventh floor, Christopher was watching all that was happening between Katherine and Derrick. He he saw how Derrick held Katherine's hand and pulled her to himself.

He assumed that something must be already going on between Derrick and Katherine. He didn't come here just so he could work together with Derrick and strategize ways to defeat North American countries but primarily to help Wendi revenge her brother. Wendi is his wife.

He then went to sit and placed a call across to Donna. Once she answered, he asked, "what's the nature of the relationship between Derrick and Katherine?"

"General, not only are they living together under the same roof, they are also secretly married." She answered.

"Married? I see..." He said thoughtfully.

"Yes, General." Donna answered and he hung the call up.

"Kimberly!" He called and his female assistant that was nearby ran quickly inside his office. "Put plan A into action and let's see if that will work."

"Got it, General," Kimberly said and walked out.

When it was the following morning, as early as 7AM, Katherine received a call and seeing that it was from a strange number, she hesitated before eventually answering it.

"Katherine, I'm already waiting for you outside. Please bring the kids so we can go for the DNA test," Christopher's voice came through.

Katherine checked her wrist watch and seeing that it was just 7AM, she wanted to complain that it was too early. Will Marshall even be available at this time?

"I'll call you back," she said and hung the call up. She then stood and went to take her bath, after she had finished dressing, she told Samantha not to take the kids to school today.

The kids were already dressed in their uniform when Samantha announced to them that they would be going somewhere else instead of school today.

Katherine then walked over to Derrick's room and knocked gently. The door opened and Derrick appeared. He was already dressed as well, "I know he's already outside. Let's go."

Katherine was relieved, she had thought that Derrick will still probably be sleeping and that she may be disturbing him. Derrick, Katherine and the three kids walked outside together.

Christopher stepped out of the car when he saw that Derrick walked out with them. This was the first time he would be seeing Derrick this close. His mother already told him that Derrick was his blood brother although they had different fathers.

Christopher wondered if Derrick just escorted Katherine and the kids outside but to his surprise, Derrick lead them to his car while he just stood and watch. Then his phone rang and seeing that it was Katherine that was calling him, he looked up to see her already seated at the front seat of Derrick's car.

He answered the call nonetheless.

"Drive, we will follow," Katherine said to the phone.

"Well," he said and hung up. He had thought that he will be the one to drive Katherine and the kids to the hospital but turns out Derrick would be the one driving them.

He hung up without saying a word and got inside his car then he began to drive. Donna had already helped him pay off a doctor of the hospital they were going. Donna and Christopher were sure that Christopher wasn't father of the kids but Katherine was thinking that Christopher was the father.

The doctor that Donna paid must lie about the DNA result after performing it just so Christopher can claim the children. Took more than eighteen minutes before he parked at the garage of the hospital.

He stepped down and watched as Derrick also parked. Derrick stepped down alongside Katherine and the kids and they walked to him.

"Lead, General Christopher, we will follow," Katherine said to Christopher. He wordlessly turned and lead them all to the paternity department. The doctor that Donna had paid was already waiting for them so Christopher spoke, "I'll be performing a paternity test on the kids."

"Got it, sir. Please come with me," the doctor said but Derrick spoke at that moment, "I'll be performing a paternity test on the kids as well."

"Hurray!" Mark suddenly shouted. All these while, the kids had always wanted Derrick to perform a paternity test on them but he had always refused. "I'm so sure you are our father," Marie said to Derrick lovingly.

"He sure is," Mark held Derrick's big palm lovingly. One could tell that the kids loved Derrick but they didn't even glance at Christopher at all.

Christopher has a plan and a goal. He set out everything before coming here. So he remained calm.

"Sure, sir." The doctor recognized Derrick to be the god of war of the city and he was scared of the aftermath of what he was about to do. He lead the two god of wars and the kids to the laboratory, then he collected the blood sample of them all and told them they could wait special visitor's room.

They all went to wait at a special room until the doctor appeared with the test result. The doctor then hand over the test results to Derrick and Christopher.

