Chapter 69 It Wasn't Donna

Derrick drove as fast as he could, he was soon out of the base and began to trail very fast after the rogue officers. One of the tyres of the car suddenly made a loud noice and the car slowed down. He quickly guessed what happened to the car.

"Seems the tyre has bursted," he stepped down to confirm but was surprised to see many rogue officers surrounding him. All of them had brutal weapons in their hands. When Katherine saw that, she didn't know whether to step down from the car or not.

It soon dawn on Derrick that a trap had been set for them here and that was why the car's tyre bursted.

Katherine knew that being inside the car won't change anything so she stepped down. She looked around the rogues and hope to see one of them holding her kids but she couldn't see any of them with her kids.

"Here." A giant rogue officer suddenly appeared with her three kids.

the kids.

"Where are my kids?" She screamed.

"Mom!" The three kids shouted but they were not permitted to go to Katherine.

"I'll take you home, okay..." Katherine said and whispered to Derrick, "how do we escape with the kids with none of us getting hurt?" Derrick didn't mind fighting with all these people but his concern was the kids that were with the men. He didn't want them to hurt

"Why did you take Katherine's kids with you? What did you want from her?" Derrick asked the giant rogue officer holding the kids.

Before he could open his mouth to speak, a loud thud was heard and a chaos suddenly began, Katherine and Derrick was shocked well the god of war. Katherine and Derrick watched as Christopher sent all the men knocking to the floor. The children were unharmed and had already ran to meet Katherine during the fight.

to see Christopher beating the hell out of the rogues. His skill was extraordinarily, should they be surprised? Christopher was as Christopher had no cut in his body, except that his breathing was erratic and he had sweats dripping from his forehead. Katherine felt very grateful to him and hence walked towards him, "thanks so much, General."

"You are welcome," he said bluntly and looked at Derrick expressionlessly. Then he turned in an attempt to leave but Katherine quickly spoke, "why don't you let us drive you away in the car we brought?"

The person who drove the car over was one of the Grandwar kings.

bullet from your leg." But to do that, she will need the medical kits.

but Alessio refused to be convinced.

general.

major."

her without turning back.

need a lot of rest, General."

sake, John."

you get this?"

gave me this?"

kidnapped?

was behind the rogue officer's attack.

"General Donna." Alessio answered.

"Donna? My fianceè?" Derrick asked.

confessed that Donna is behind the attack."

Took a while before Derrick responded, "okay."

"Yes, General."

"That won't be necessary," he said without turning back then began to walk further and further away until he faded out of sight. Katherine wondered why Christopher was acting weird. She turned back to Derrick and said, "we need to get out of here now."

"I already informed one of the Grandwar kings to bring a car over," Derrick said.

Katherine looked at her kids and hugged them dearly. While she was having a lovely conversation with her kids, a car drove over.

Whereas, while Samantha was driving 'injured Alessio' to the supreme building to treat him, Alessio ordered for her to drive him over to his house. Samantha tried to convince him not to go to his house since she would have to go back to get the medical kits

In a jiffy, Katherine and the kids alongside Derrick got inside the car and hence, was driven back to the base.

So Samantha changed the route but placed a call across to one of the medical officers telling her to bring the medical kits over to Alessio's house. Soon, Samantha parked before Alessio's lodge. Of course, the lodge was also inside the military base as well. But the building was a two bedroom duplex and looked very beautiful on the inside. It was clearly labelled that it was the house of the lieutenant Samantha stepped down from the car and immediately helped Alessio out of the car. At once, she helped him inside. As soon as she helped him sit on the big couch in the living room, she couldn't help but adore how beautiful the interior of the house is.

Her mouth helplessly formed an O shape, she then set her gaze quickly back at his injured leg, "General, I'll need to remove the

She wondered why the medical officer she called to bring the medical kit hasn't arrived yet so she brought out her phone and dialed the officer's number again. Once she answered, the officer spoke quickly from the other end, "I'm already before the house,

Samantha sped out at once and on seeing the officer, she was saluted but she immediately eased the junior officer and collected the kit from her then walked away. The female officer who just arrived ask if Samantha needed her help but Samantha dismissed

She soon got before Alessio and began to treat him, after a while, she was able to carefully pull out the bullet from his leg after which she placed a gauze gently around it.

Alessio felt relieved and he had already stopped bleeding at this moment. Samantha pushed the kits to a side and asked, "you will

"Dad," a boy's voice suddenly sounded from the room and Samantha was forced to look towards the direction of the voice. She was stunned to see a very handsome little boy who looked like Alessio. He should be six years.

Alessio ruffled his hair and said, "I'll be fine..." "Boohaaa..." the little one began to cry, he was so scared seeing his father this way.

"Hey... I'm a doctor and I have just treated your dad. He will be fine, trust me," Samantha said with a smile. The little one, with

Then the boy looked at Alessio and sat right beside him, Alessio hugged him dearly and said, "I told you that I'll live long for your

The little boy ran straight to Alessio and on seeing Alessio's leg, he cried out, "dad, what happened to you?"

"Trust me." Samantha said.

tears on his face looked at Samantha and asked, "really?"

Alessio looked at her and said, "thank you, Major Samantha."

Yet no one in the base knows about this. Where is his wife?

She turned and saw Alessio's son, "John." She called with a refreshing smile.

"And where is your mom?" Samantha asked, her mouth literally shivering.

"Don't bother. Of course, as a doctor, it's my job to help people heal," Samantha said.

"Thank you for saving my dad," the boy said with a loving smile.

"My father said it was a gift from my mom to me."

"I told him before coming out to give you," he said.

"Perhaps, I should check on you later, General," she said as she picked up the medical kit from the ground.

Samantha smiled and turned then walked out. As she got outside the door, her heart sunk in dissapointment. So Alessio has a kid?

Samantha then stood, seeing that the father and son were bonding together, she thought it was best to give them some space.

Oh! Then her dream of becoming his girlfriend one day can never happen. Samantha felt hurt and decided to try to stop crushing on Alessio. How can she be crushing on a man who already has a son and probably has a wife somewhere? As she took the first step in an attempt to walk towards her car, a soft tiny voice spoke behind her, "hey miss."

"I have a gift for you," the little one removed the pendant around his neck and stretched it to her, "have this." Samantha bent in a bit to have the same height with the kid then she collected the pendant slowly. Seeing the drawing on the

"I've never seen her, I guess that after giving birth to me, she placed the pendant around my neck and ran away." John said. Samantha stood and turned from the boy, she didn't want to cry before him. Tears rushed down her face and the pain she thought she would no longer feel began to rip her heart apart. She felt as if her heart was being twisted with a sharp knife.

Samantha immediately cleaned the tears on her face and turned to him, "of course I like it. But hope your dad won't mind that you

"Thank you," Samantha said and quickly walked away from him. Once she got inside the car, she watched him standing small before the entrance of the hosue and hot tears streamed down her face. She grabbed the steering tightly and endured the great pain

Katherine's kids. Derrick hadn't really taken the kid's protection seriously until now. How many times will the kid's keep getting

The rogues killed many of their soldiers of course but obviously, one of their mission is to kidnap Katherine's kids again. Derrick already put proper plan and measure in place that will keep the kids heavily protected. But he was most interested to know who

"Hey...what happened? Don't you like it?" The little one did not know why Samantha suddenly turned from him.

pendant, her heart raced a thousand miles away and she almost slump to the floor. Her mouth shivered in shock, "John, where did

 Derrick had increased the security around the house and around the kids. Honestly, it will take more than a million soldiers to get torturing her. Then she saw as the little one turned after which he carried his small legs into the house.

While he was in his office, a knock landed and he permitted the person who knocked to come in. Alessio walked in and saluted him then spoke, "sir, one of the rogue officers we captured had confessed the identity of the person who sent them?" "And that is?"

Derrick placed a call across to Ian Joh at once and he answered, "godfather, some rogues attacked our base yesterday and went away with the kids of the surgeon General. We overpowered the rogues and captured one of them. One of the rogues had just

"What! Can never be my daughter. I'll be there in a couple of hours. Please don't make an irrational decision," Ian Joh said.

Derrick wasn't surprised, isn't it logical to think that Donna may be behind the kidnap cause who else could be behind the kidnap?

Richard is in prison and Donna seems to be the only one who seemed to have grudges against Katherine.

But Derrick didn't want to make an irrational decision cause of Donna's father, Ian Joh. "Bring her to me."

"Alright, general." Alessio said and walked away. The pain in his leg had now reduced.

"One of rogues confessed you sent them to kidnap the kids and I believe them," Derrick said. "What! Marshall... You don't even trust me? Why would I do such a thing? What offence has the kids committed against me? Can you bring this rogue and let him say it to my face?" She asked confidently.

Donna raised her hand and slapped the particular rogue soldier accusing her, "have you gone out of your mind? Where did we *dotblackgradondotcom, password is blackdragon, the video contained our meeting with the person who sent us."

"Yes, you were the one that sent us, "one of the five rogues insisted. ever meet?"

Derrick immediately visited the website and entered the password, seeing the video open, he immediately played it. But his eyes

He soon came back with the five rogues that were still alive. All other rogues soldiers were dead.

"Bring the rogue who confessed over," Derrick and Alessio left quickly.

Soon, Donna appeared.

Next Chapter

The five rogues were made to kneel by Alessio in Derrick's office. "What nonsense are you people talking about? Have I met you before?" Donna shouted angrily at the rogue officers.

"Are the rest dumb?" Derrick asked Alessio seeing that the other four rogue soldiers are not saying a word. "Speak, was it General Donna that sent you to kidnap Katherine's kids?"

The four rogues exchanged glances, as if they were scared to say something, "there is a video encoded on furrowed at whom he saw having a meeting with the rogue officers. It wasn't Donna.