

Divorce is the Best Choice by Riley Mccarthy

Chapter 61-64

Chapter 61 Grandpa, nothing forcibly done is going to be agreeable

"We have talked about it again," answered Sarah. The screen of the computer showed the cooperation project between the two companies.

"He said that I don't need to apologize."

Julian was instantly confused: "What does it have to do with us exposing him even you don't have to apologize?"

"I don't want to deal with it. I don't want to argue with him." explained Sarah.

Jason asked her to apologize. She exposed everything to the public.

Even if he made trouble for her, she could say that she had found the reason.

But now he asked her not to apologize. If she still exposed him, with his personality, he might not let her go.

It was not a big deal to get angry with her. If they couldn't get divorced because of this, she would lose a lot.

No matter what, Jason was a legend in business world.

If he wanted to punish her, she might not be able to resist.

"We have to suffer such a loss?" asked Julian, feeling wronged for her.

"Just take him as someone unimportant," said Sarah. She had gradually calmed down. "Leave him alone."

Julian agreed.

Before hanging up the phone, he asked, "By the way, Rita has been asking me when you will go back to New York

I told her to ask you by herself, but she didn't dare."

"I'll go back after getting the divorce certificate on 31st."

“Okay.”

After hanging up the phone, Sarah continued to look at the project information.

After the divorce, she would take over some of the projects of the Yeats Group, which including Noth Group.

Anyway, she had to make a fortune from it.

In the next few days, everything went smoothly.

Friday night.

Grandpa Noth called Jason and Sarah back.

Sarah didn't refuse. Grandpa Noth was a respectable elder, and she knew why he asked them to go back.

They arrived at the house of the Noth family.

The housekeeper took them in.

This time, Mr. and Mrs. Noth were not here, only Grandpa Noth and Edwin, who had just returned.

“Grandpa.”

Said Jason as he walked in.

Sarah also greeted him.

“You are here.” Grandpa Noth was no longer as energetic as before.

He felt uncomfortable at the thought that the two of them would soon divorce. “Come and sit next to me, Sarah.”

“Okay,” said Sarah without hesitation.

She didn't want to sit next to Jason.

Wearing casual clothes, Edwin had a handsome face. Ever since he saw the two of them come in, his smile never disappeared.

“Sister-in-law, long time no see,” he greeted.

Sarah replied.

She didn’t have much contact with Edwin. She met him two or three times a year, so she might just had seen him five or six times in total.

But she remembered him the first time they met.

Because he had a very good-looking face like Jason.

They had a dull dinner today.

Even if Edwin said something from time to time to ease the atmosphere, the smile on Grandpa Noth’s face was not as much as before.

At the end of the meal, Grandpa Noth put down his chopsticks and looked at Sarah who was sitting next to him, with a complicated expression in his eyes.

He asked in a hoarse voice, “Sarah... Are you really going to divorce with Jason?”

“Yes...” before she could finish.

“I don’t want you to leave,” said Grandpa Noth immediately.

“If you miss me, you can come to New York, or you can also call me,” Sarah comforted.

“Can you not divorce with Jason?” said Grandpa Noth in a heavy voice, as if he was several years older.

“As long as you don’t divorce him, I promise he will be good to you and I will let him deal with that Jenny.”

“Grandpa.” said Jason unhappily.

“Shut up,” said Grandpa Noth angrily.

Useless things!

You couldn’t even keep your wife.

“Grandpa, nothing forcibly done is going to be agreeable.” Now, Sarah really had no feelings for Jason.

“I don’t like him anymore. It’s good for both of us to divorce.”

“That’s right,” interrupted Edwin. He looked at his brother and said,

“Didn’t you hurt her by forcing her to be with someone she doesn’t like?”

Grandpa Noth glared at him.

What the hell is he talking about!

The expression of Jason was also very serious. When Jason looked at Edwin, he felt a sense of oppression. “Sister-in-law, let’s go out and have fun later,” said Edwin, winking at Sarah to help her out.

“I have a few friends who can introduce you to each other. After getting divorced, you still have to work.”

“Okay,” said Sarah.

The word pissed Jason off.

Okay?

Did this woman know what kind of person that bastard Edwin asked her to meet.

“Grandpa, I’ll leave with my sister-in-law first,” said Edwin, blinking at Grandpa Noth. “Take your time with brother.”

Grandpa Noth nodded, “Okay.”

Jason: “...”

He frowned imperceptibly.

He felt that what happened tonight was a little strange.

With Grandpa Noth’s character, how could he just watch Sarah being taken away by Edwin.

Especially at the moment when he was about to divorce with Sarah.

“Are you feeling bad?” suddenly asked Grandpa Noth.

Jason didn't react at the moment, "What?"

"Do you feel bad when you see Sarah being asked out by others?" said Grandpa Noth seriously this time.

Next Wednesday is your deadline, and Sarah will divorce you. At that time, it will be someone else who remind her about the weather, and it will be someone else who will give her warmth and support."

"You will completely become a passer-by in her life," said Grandpa Noth, looking up at him.

"If you hear these words without any feelings in your heart, I'll agree your divorce.

But if there's a little, even if it's a little uncomfortableness, I hope you can try again."

"There's no need," said Jason, trying to calm himself down.

Now that he had decided to divorce, he should follow this path.

Even if he would feel uncomfortable and didn't want another man to appear beside her, it was just the possessive desire of staying with her for a long time.

It was nothing.

Moreover, since he had promised Jenny the future, he would not let her down.

"Jason!" Grandpa Noth thought he was so stubborn.

"I'm very clear about my feelings for Sarah." with a serious look in his eyes, Jason continued,

"Divorce is a decision made after careful consideration. I'm an adult and know what I'm doing."

"Whatever!" Grandpa Noth was enraged again. "Don't cry and beg me for help then."

Jason:...

Glaring at him, Grandpa Noth said, "If you dare to marry that Jenny, get out of my house and don't come back."

"Grandpa, she is a good girl. Please don't have prejudice against her." said Jason in a deep voice.

“A good girl? A good girl will destroy other people’s marriage?” Grandpa Noth felt that his grandson was insane.

“Will a good girl be so intimate with you when she knows that you have a wife? Will she ask you divorce Sarah for her? Can you be more thoughtful?”

Chapter 62 Sarah is the only one you feel sorry for Hearing these words, Jason felt very uncomfortable. He only said, “I proposed the divorce. It has nothing to do with her.”

“I don’t understand. Why did you choose to be with her?” Grandpa Noth was angry and anxious.

“What’s so good about her? Didn’t you break up with her before?”

“I misunderstood her when we broke up. I thought she left because I didn’t love her.” Jason explained to her.

Later I knew that she had an incurable disease and didn’t want me to be sad, so she deliberately broke up with her.”

Grandpa Noth: “?”

He was so doubtful.

“Half a year ago, she called me and told me the truth. She told me that her cancer had been cured.” Jason couldn’t tell how he felt.

He didn’t know whether he loved Jenny or not.

When he knew this from Jenny, he just wanted to give her a family so that she could live a carefree life.

He didn’t think too much about other things.

“Grandpa, she left for me. I can’t let her down,” said Jason.

“What about Sarah?” Grandpa Noth was furious.

“Have you considered Sarah’s feelings? From the moment you chose to marry her, you should be responsible for your marriage.”

Jason kept silent.

Jason had to admit that he had been very happy when he was with Sarah.

But he couldn't continue the marriage.

"What's more, do you believe Jenny so much about the incurable disease?"

Grandpa Noth was alert. "If the incurable disease could be cured so easily, your grandmother wouldn't have left so soon!"

Jason paused.

Grandpa Noth continued, "From beginning to end, the only person you're sorry for is Sarah."

Even if what you said is true, it's Jenny's own choice. No one will wait there all the time."

Hearing this, Jason's heart was touched for a moment.

He had mixed feelings.

"Now, you leave Sarah for her. When you regret about it, Sarah has already left." Grandpa Noth made it clear.

"She won't wait for someone who doesn't cherish her."

"How do you know since you are not her?" said Jason subconsciously.

"Do you think that your father could get your mother back after hurting her heart, so you can also get Sarah back?"

Grandpa Noth said surprisingly. "If that's what you think, I can only tell you that Sarah is not your mother. She won't get back to you."

It was a simple statement.

This made his heart skip a beat.

At this moment, a very strange feeling suddenly surged in his heart, as if something was about to slip away from him and he could not catch it.

"I've already said what I should say. If you still want to win Sarah back, don't divorce after the calm period is over."

Grandpa Noth was worried. "If Sarah is in a hurry, you can use my eighty-year-old birthday as an excuse to delay it."

"No, thanks," Jason refused.

Grandpa Noth didn't say anything more

Thinking that Sarah had been taken away by Edwin for a long time, Jason stood up and said,

"I'm leaving now. I'll come back to see you when I'm free."

"Fuck off!" Grandpa Noth had a bad temper on him.

Jason left the house. Instead of asking the driver to send him home, he took a car and left.

As soon as he left the old house, he thought of what Grandpa Noth said and called Chris.

Chris was about to go to bed. When he saw that it was his boss calling, he took a deep breath and answered the phone with a smile, "Boss."

"Check out what kind of incurable disease Jenny had before." said Jason, with his thin lips slightly parted.

Chris almost thought that he heard it wrong, "Miss Smith?"

"Yes," said Jason, turning at a corner.

"How about asking Miss Yeats to investigate it?" suggested Chris, who also wanted to slack off.

"Miss Yeats is much better at investigating information than us."

After the evidence of the car accident came out, the boss had checked them.

It turned out that they were all truth.

He still remembered the complicated reaction of his boss at that time, as if he was too ashamed and proud to apologize after blaming the wrong person.

"You check it out," Jason said simply.

Sarah could help him find it out in the shortest time.

But he knew what kind of person he was.

Once the result was really the same as his grandfather's assumption, his first reaction must be that Sarah discredited Jenny.

It was better to let Chris investigate it.

"Okay, boss." Chris had no choice but agree.

On the other side, if Sarah knew what he was thinking, she would definitely say, I won't help you at all.

At this moment, she was in the car of Edwin. After driving for a distance, she said, "You can just drop me off. I'll take a taxi back later."

"Why do you want to go back?" when Edwin drove the car, he smiled brightly and handsome. "I haven't introduced my friend to you yet."

Sarah: "?"

She looked sideways and said, "Isn't this an excuse you found for leaving?"

"It's an excuse, but it's also a real one," said Edwin with a pleasant personality.

"My brother divorced you and gave you one billion and four hundred million. Don't you want to make more money out of it?"

"Are you trying to trick me?" asked Sarah.

She didn't get along with Edwin a lot, and every time they got along quite well.

Even so, she didn't know much about him. Although she was not afraid of being tricked, she still had to ask.

"Do you think me as my brother?" said Edwin, "I can fool anyone but you.

You are my sister-in-law. If Grandpa knows that I fool you, he will punish me, not to mention my parents."

Sarah didn't answer.

After driving for a while, she said again, "I'd better not go with you today. I have something to do at home."

"Don't you want to annoy my brother?"

Sarah: "Why should I?"

"He used his ex-girlfriend to annoy you, and you should also find some pursuers to annoy him. That's fair." Edwin said naturally.

"Childish," Sarah said simply.

For countless times, she believed that this man undoubtedly was the younger brother of Jason.

He was so good at tricking his brother.

Instead of leaving Sarah halfway, he took her directly to the racing track in Atlanta.

A group of good-looking people began to hoot at him.

"Edwin, it's so rare that you bring a woman here."

"I remember someone said he was not interested in women?"

"Don't you want to introduce her to us, Edwin?"

"This is my sister-in-law, Sarah," said Edwin casually, joking with them.

"I heard that you three have a lot of good projects recently. Can you share them with me?"

The three of them: "?"

They were confused.

"You are not interested in making money. What do you want a project for?"

"Give it to my sister-in-law to practice." Edwin said naturally with a faint smile, "You know that my brother is going to divorce my sister-in-law.

Grandpa is worried that she won't earn any money after divorce, so he asked me to invest some profitable projects with her."

Chapter 63 What would do you about your desire

Everyone was dumbfounded.

They looked at him suspiciously.

The handsome young man in racing suit said, "Isn't your brother very rich? He didn't give a penny to your sister-in-law after divorce."

"No," Edwin cheated his brother. "You know how stint he is. Think about what he did when he cooperated with you."

"He is stint indeed."

"Your sister-in-law is so pitiful."

For a moment, everyone looked at Sarah with a complicated and pitiful look.

When other people married into a rich family and were forced to divorce, they could at least get some money.

But the sister-in-law of Edwin had nothing.

Alas.

Sarah was speechless.

"Well, for the sake of Edwin, I'll give some projects to you." the handsome young man said decisively,

"Transfer your investment capital to me and wait for a dividend every year."

"No, thanks," said Sarah.

The handsome young man was dumbfounded.

Edwin said casually, "She's shy. She doesn't want to use anything related to my brother."

"This project has nothing to do with Mr. Noth. It's our own project," the young man explained. "You can rest assured."

Sarah didn't say anything.

She just looked at Edwin and asked what he was going to do with her eyes.

“Wait a little longer,” said Edwin in a low voice. He had specially come back to watch the drama. “I’ll send you back after the conversation.”

Sarah was speechless.

Why did she feel that it was a trap?

Whether she wanted to leave or not, she could only stay and have a chat with them for a while.

She couldn’t even get a taxi in the wilderness.

About more than 20 minutes later.

Suddenly, a car came in. The light of the car was so bright that people couldn’t open their eyes.

After a while, a man with slender legs and outstanding temperament got out of the car.

He was wearing a long coat and strode towards them.

“Edwin, your brother is here.”

“Why do I feel that your brother doesn’t look good?”

“He looks murderous.”

Hearing that, Edwin smiled with his legs crossed.

He tricked all the people secretly. He said in his casual tone,

“Don’t forget to praise my sister-in-law when he comes later. He likes someone to praise his wife.”

“Aren’t they going to divorce?”

“Do you want others to say that you married a worthless woman after your divorce?”

It was a simple statement.

The group of people reacted at once.

They had thought that they were the only ones who cared about their dignity, but they didn't expect that Mr. Noth also cared about it!

Praise.

They must praise her.

Praise her affectionately!

When Jason came over, he saw Sarah standing there talking to someone on the phone.

Edwin was chatting with a group of men who were not masculine at all.

In an instant.

Then he came to a conclusion that Sarah didn't like these faces.

They greeted, "Hello, Mr. Noth."

"You came so fast." Edwin still said causally.

Jason glanced at the crowd coldly and then looked at Sarah, who was still on the phone Everyone noticed his expression, looked at each other and began to praise her.

"Mr. Noth, your wife is so beautiful. Why didn't you bring her out for a get-together before?"

"Exactly."

"I heard from Edwin that her sister-in-law was good-looking, I thought he was joking."

"Mr. Noth, are you really willing to divorce Miss Yeats?"

They said one after another seriously.

The look in Jason's eyes darkened. He took their curiosity as if they were waiting for him to divorce so that Sarah was available.

"If you have time to care about me, why don't you pay more attention to your projects?"

When Jason thought that they would surround Sarah, he was displeased.

“Do you have the nerve to celebrate the new year with your performance?”

Everyone’s eyes fell on Edwin.

What happened?

Why did they feel that Mr. Noth was angry?

“Well, that’s all for today,” said Edwin in a slow and dandiacal voice.

“We will discuss the details after my brother divorces my sister-in-law. It seems a little inappropriate to talk about it now.”

“Okay,” they agreed.

They all thought that he was talking about the project.

All of a sudden, Jason’s beautiful eyes turned cold, and he held his breath.

The people around shivered.

With a faint smile on his lips, Edwin waved at Sarah, who had just finished answering the phone, and said,

“Sister-in-law, let’s go!”

After putting away her phone and looking at Edwin, she saw Jason was also here. She took a glance at him and looked away.

When she walked up to him.

Before Edwin could say anything, Jason asked coldly, “Did you have a good time here?”

“I’m happier than being with you,” said Sarah, not respecting him at all.

Everyone: “1”

Fuck!

Is the sister-in-law of Edwin so tough!

“We haven’t divorced yet. You should think about what you should do and what you shouldn’t.”

Without respecting her, Jason said coldly, “I don’t want to see any bad news about the wife of the CEO of the Noth Group on the Internet.”

As he spoke, Jason took a deep look at the people over there.

The three men’s hearts skipped a beat.

Why did they feel that Jason’s eyes were full of malice?

Sarah rolled her eyes at him and ignored him.

He was the last qualified person to say that.

“Brother,” said Edwin in a low voice, leaning over to his ear. Aren’t you lack of confidence when you say this to my sister-in-law?”

Jason looked at Edwin.

Why should Jason lack confidence.

My sister-in-law is innocent, and she didn’t do anything wrong.” Edwin boldly said, but his tone was very gentle and slow.

“As for you, you divorced her for the sake of your ex-girlfriend. As your brother, I have nothing to say but being awed.”

Jason: “...”

“A totally scum,” said Edwin, patting Jason on the shoulder.

‘Are you asking for being beaten?’ said Jason in a cold voice.

“You can just beat me up.” Edwin implied, “How should you deal with your desire?”

“Edwin!” Jason shouted coldly.

Half a year had passed.

He was getting more and more inappropriate!

“Why are you so serious?” said Edwin with a smile, keeping a distance from him.

“I’ll send my sister-in-law back first. Remember to go to the company and send back what grandpa wants.”

The last sentence was said to others to avoid arousing suspicion.

He and his brother were both here. If his sister-in-law didn’t take his brother’s car to leave, there would inevitably be rumors.

Using his grandfather as an excuse, no one would be suspicious.

After all, the whole circle knew that the second young master of the Noth family was not interested in making money, nor in work.

“Grandpa asked you to do it.” Jason glanced at Sarah and Edwin.

Hearing that, Edwin raised his eyebrows.

Was he jealous?

“You can send back what grandpa asked for together.” Sarah finally got a chance.

She still said in an indifferent tone, “Give me the key to the other car. I’ll go back by myself.”

“No, you can’t.” Edwin unlocked the car and took the key to the driver’s seat.

“Grandpa asked me to send you home safely. If I let you go back alone, Grandpa will skin me alive.”

Chapter 64 This is my brother’s ex-girlfriend

Sarah was speechless.

His acting skill was as good as Rita’s.

She didn't waste any more time with them. She walked over, opened the door of Edwin's car and got in.

The moment the car drove away, Jason tightened his grip on the car key, his knuckles turning pale.

Just as everyone thought Jason was about to leave, his deep gaze fell on them.

The pressure was so strong that they didn't dare to take a deep breath.

"Mr. Noth, is there anything else..."

"Do you like Sarah?" asked Jason in a deep and cold voice.

Everyone was dumbfounded.

They were confused.

Before they could react, he said ruthlessly, "From now on, you can give up. She only likes people looking handsome."

No matter how they reacted, Jason left after warning them.

It was not until his tail lamp disappeared from everyone's sight that they realized what had happened.

"Did he just say that we don't look good?"

"That's too much. There are dozens of girls chasing after me. I just live on my face."

"Is there any possibility that they like your money, not your face?"

"Or your sweet words?"

"Jason is talking about us, not only me."

Everyone was silent.

Jason was filled with anger.

He wanted to take Sarah back and ask her what was on her mind when he thought of her refusal to take a car with him in front of so many people.

No matter what he thought.

He didn't go with her.

He also knew that by the time he arrived, Edwin had left. It was impossible for Sarah to let him in.

Since what happened last time, she must have changed the password of the lock

He had to admit that.

He knew Sarah well on this matter.

It was true that Sarah had made up her mind not to let Jason in from now on.

Looking at the buildings on the roadside that were constantly retreating, she asked Edwin, "Are you in a bad relationship with him?"

"We are good," said Edwin frankly. "If it's not good, he will punish me for what I said and did."

Sarah was a little surprised.

She did not see through the relationship between the two brothers.

Edwin had been playing tricks on his brother, and it seemed that Jason wanted to teach his brother a lesson.

It didn't seem like they were in a good relationship.

"The way we get along with each other is different from other brothers. I like to trap him and wait for what will happen.

Although he is angry every time, he won't really punish me." Edwin said to Sarah.

"I didn't see it," said Sarah in surprise

"He indulged me because of one thing when I was a child," said Edwin, taking the matter of the two as a story.

"My brother was very boring when he was a child and didn't like to talk. He might only reply when other said a lot."

“Because of this, the children in the community disliked him very much, so they went to beat him together.”

Edwin said with a smile. “That day, I happened to go to see my brother. When I saw so many people beating him, I blocked them for him.”

“As a result, they knocked me out at that time. My brother was scared,” said Edwin with a smile. “He has been protecting me since then.”

“Oh,” said Sarah lightly.

This reason was a little beyond her expectation.

“Sister-in-law,” said Edwin with a smile, looking at her.

Sarah: “What?”

“Do you still like my brother?”

“No.”

“That’s good. Keep it going.” every time Edwin spoke, his words were beyond the expectations of Sarah.

“His life has been too successful since he was a child. He has almost never suffered any setbacks.

He can get the feeling of failure from you.”

Sarah was speechless

She didn’t answer but opened the window to get some fresh air.

After driving for a while, she saw a figure in a white sweater at a turn when she was two or three kilometers away from the community.

She took a closer look and found it was Jenny.

When she saw Jenny, Jenny also saw Sarah sitting in the car.

Before Sarah could figure out why Jenny was here, Jenny rushed towards the car at a crazy speed!

“Swish!”

Edwin braked quickly and his casual expression disappeared.

But they were too close to each other. Even if he braked, the car still hit Jenny. “Bang!”

A muffled voice sounded, and Jenny was knocked down on the spot.

The car stopped at this moment.

At the same time, Sarah and Edwin opened the door and got out of the car. The two of them were a little nervous and worried.

“Are you crazy?” seeing that Jenny was still awake, Sarah immediately checked her situation.

After a while.

Blood came out under Jenny’s legs.

Looking at that position, Sarah immediately realized that Jenny had a miscarriage.

She took out her phone and quickly called emergency. It was the first time that her heart had been so heavy.

“I’ve told you... To make Jason completely ignore you....” said Jenny intermittently, with her pale face.

“From now on, he will definitely hate you.”

Edwin paused.

His brother?

“He can only be mine, and no one can take him away.” after saying that wealdly, Jenny fainted.

It was not until then that Edwin noticed the face of Jenny. After thinking for a while, a person popped up in his mind.

“Is this the ex-girlfriend of my brother?”

“Yes,” answered Sarah.

She didn't know what she felt now. She hated to be framed.

But at this moment, she only felt that Jenny was so stupid that she lost her humanity for a man and didn't care about her own life.

She couldn't find the meaning and purpose of doing so.

Fortunately, the ambulance arrived soon.

Edwin and Sarah went with them. Although it was an accident, they still had to go.

During the operation, Edwin and Sarah sat on the seats in the corridor.

Thinking of what had happened just now, he asked, "What did she mean by saying that to you?"

"Literal meaning." Sarah answered simply.

She knew very well that she would be blamed soon.

When Jason came, Jenny would definitely say that she had a miscarriage after being hit by Sarah and Sarah wanted to kill her.

The thought of dealing with that gave her a headache.

She was really tired of dealing with this kind of thing and didn't bother to explain, but the calm period of divorce hadn't passed.

Noticing her emotional change, Edwin asked, "What's wrong?"

"Nothing," said Sarah, leaning her head against the wall. In order to avoid more trouble, she said to him,

"After your brother meets Jenny, no matter what she says, don't interfere or explain. I'll take care of everything."

With Jason's character, if Edwin helped her, Jason would definitely feel that she had even bought off Edwin.

