

"It's not that, but Dae Hyun is fighting with someone in front of the campus," said Hyo Rin.

"What?" Soo Yin immediately stood up with her eyes wide open. She hastily stuffed her belongings into her bag.

"Who does he fight with?" asked Soo Yin who was already walking through the campus corridor.

"I don't know, I also don't know because I don't think I've seen him before," said Hyo Rin who also walked quickly after Soo Yin.

When Soo Yin and Hyo Rin arrived at the gate, it was already very crowded and packed. So that Soo Yin couldn't see because she was blocked by the taller student in front of her.

"Hyo Rin, I can't see it. It's already very crowded in here," said Soo Yin, who kept trying to find a way to see what was really going on.

"Soo Yin, we should just ask the campus security officers to disperse them." Hyo Rin considered that so many students were already watching and cheering against each other.

They continued to shout encouragement if one did not want to fight.

Soo Yin immediately went inside the campus again to call the security who was on duty today. Luckily they were at the guard post as soon as Soo Yin was out.

The security guards blew the whistle loud enough to disperse the students who were there. Until one by one ... they started to leave. Until now, only Dae Hyun and Gong Yoo were left there.

"Gong Yoo," Soo Yin mumbled while looking at his nose which was bleeding.

"Dae Hyun," Soo Yin muttered as she turned to look at her husband.

Soo Yin immediately ran to them when Dae Hyun was about to get up and hit Gong Yoo again.

"Enough!" Soo Yin shouted in a loud voice to make her husband aware that what they were doing was not right.

Dae Hyun immediately stopped his steps when he saw Soo Yin who put on an angry face.

"Soo Yin?" mumbled Dae Hyun who was froze to his place.

"What are you two doing here? You look like you're all grown up but why are your brains still like kids?" Soo Yin cursed without caring if the words that came out of her mouth sounded harsh enough.

"I just wanted to teach him a lesson so he won't talk nonsense," said Dae Hyun while looking at Gong Yoo with a fierce gaze.

"You just don't believe my words," Gong Yoo replied.

"You two come with me now," Soo Yin said in a commanding tone. Then stepped ahead of the two men behind her with Hyo Rin.

Soo Yin continued to walk across the street where there was a clinic.

"What are we here for?" Dae Hyun said when he was in front of a clinic. His hand brushed his sore cheek.

"Don't you realize that your face is battered like that?" Soo Yin said in a raised voice as she looked at the two men in turn. Upset because she didn't think that her husband would act so childish.

"I'm fine," Dae Hyun said lightly even though the corners of his lips were bleeding.

"I'm fine too," said Gong Yoo even though his nose was still bleeding.

"You two, come in right now. Let the doctor clean your wounds," Soo Yin said in a firm tone.

Gong Yoo, who was holding back the pain in his nose, immediately complied to enter the clinic.

"Honey, I want you to clean my wound," Dae Hyun pleaded like a child.

Hyo Rin who saw that was holding back laughter because a grown man like Dae Hyun was being so spoiled with Soo Yin.

"Hurry up and go inside. Who told you to fight," said Soo Yin with a sharp look while pushing Dae Hyun's body into the clinic.

Waiting for the two men to be treated, Soo Yin and Hyo Rin sat on the bench in front of the clinic.

"Soo Yin, I really didn't expect Dae Hyun to be so spoiled with you." Hyo Rin chuckled while covering her mouth so as not to make a too loud sound.

"Hmmm, he is like that," said Soo Yin in an even tone.

"Then who is the other man?" asked Hyo Rin curiously.

"His name is Gong Yoo. I also don't really know him because I've only met him a few times," said Soo Yin.

"Why were they fighting in front of the campus?"

Soo Yin shrugged her shoulders because she didn't know what the problem was between them.

"Are any of you named Soo Yin?" asked a female nurse who had just come out of the room.

"What is the matter, Sister?" Soo Yin said while raising an eyebrow.

"One of the patients doesn't want to be treated. He asked me to send you in," said the nurse politely.

Soo Yin took a deep breath while rolling her eyes.

"Hyo Rin, I'll go inside first. Just wait here," said Soo Yin who had stood up.

"Okay, I'm not going anywhere," said Hyo Rin.

Soo Yin finally entered a room that the nurse had shown. She saw Dae Hyun who was sitting with his back facing the window.

Soo Yin closed the door and walked over to her husband.

"Why don't you want to be treated by the nurse?" asked Soo Yin.

"I don't want other women to touch my face," Dae Hyun said flatly.

"If I'm the one who treats you, I will probably nag incoherently." Soo Yin put her bag on the nightstand. Then reached for a bowl filled with warm water.

"No problem at all, I'll be happy to listen to your nagging," said Dae Hyun in a relaxed tone then turned his body to look at his wife's face.

Soo Yin was silent for a moment as she studied the bruises on her husband's face. His eyelids looked blue with a few bruises on the other side.

"What really happened? Why were you guys fighting?" Soo Yin started wiping the small towel on the corner of Dae Hyun's lips with a bit of firm pressure.