

"What is the matter?" asked Soo Yin.

"Mr. Gong Yoo is looking for you and he said that there's something he has to say," said Hyo Rin who was just standing by the door.

"I'll be out in a minute," said Soo Yin.

"Okay." Hyo Rin finally came out first.

"Honey, stay here if you feel you can't contain your emotions. I don't want another mess like earlier to happen," Soo Yin explained then stepped out.

"I'm coming," Dae Hyun said while holding Soo Yin's wrist. He didn't want Gong Yoo to say things and do bad things to Soo Yin.

"But you have to remember what I said. Apologize if needed because a real man will be happy to apologize first," Soo Yin quipped subtly so that her husband's childish nature wouldn't recur.

Dae Hyun took a deep breath.

"Okay, I'll do it." For the sake of his little wife, Dae Hyun will do everything.

Dae Hyun followed Soo Yin's steps out of the clinic. His jaw immediately tightened when he saw Gong Yoo sitting down then smiled at Soo Yin as they walked towards him. Dae Hyun really wanted to punch him in the face until he was battered again.

After completing the administration, they immediately left the clinic to resolve the problems that occurred between them.

Soo Yin took them to a cafe not far away because her stomach was already beeping, asking to be filled. She walked in front with Hyo Rin while Dae Hyun and Gong Yoo were behind them.

The two men looked away from each other and turned their faces in different directions.

It only took them ten minutes of walking to reach the cafe. Soo Yin didn't want the misunderstanding to drag on and happen again in the future. She was too tired to face so many problems that often presented in her life.

"Eat first, we'll talk about the problem later," said Soo Yin with a flat face. It was quite strange because the two adult men in front of her were very obedient to her words.

Soo Yin ordered Ojingeo-tonggui or better known as spicy grilled squid. For Hyo Rin, she ordered Jjamppong or spicy seafood soup. While the two men did not order food. They just ordered drinks. Maybe because of the wounds on their faces, so there was no appetite to eat.

Soo Yin enjoyed her food voraciously. Ate one by one pieces of squid until her lips were smeared with spicy spices.

Dae Hyun and Gong Yoo, who had been observing Soo Yin while she was eating, then handed her a tissue at the same time.

Soo Yin was silent for a moment then chose to grab a tissue that was on the table rather than provoking a commotion in the cafe. She wanted to eat in peace.

No one else spoke so it was quiet and awkward.

Soo Yin and Hyo Rin had eaten until they finished their food until there was nothing left because it tasted too good.

"Hyo Rin, I just found out that the food here is very good. Next time we should come here again," said Soo Yin while wiping her mouth with a tissue then taking a sip of Honey Citron Sparkling Iced Tea which tasted sour and fresh until the remaining half a glass.

"Relax, we'll come here again later," said Hyo Rin.

Soo Yin took a deep breath before speaking any further.

"What exactly happened to make you two fight?" Soo Yin looked at the two men in front of her with a look full of intimidation.

Examining, wanted to know a strong reason. She wanted to act as a mediator and didn't want to side with anyone even though Dae Hyun was her husband because they were both guilty.

The two men were both silent and turned their faces in different directions with sour facial expressions. Both were battered on the face.

"It's better to solve this problem because I don't want another misunderstanding," Soo Yin said in a flat tone.

"He punched me first so I retaliated," said Gong Yoo, who opened his voice first.

Dae Hyun snorted in annoyance.

"He's the one who provoked my anger. Saying that if you two are lovers, you should be aware of yourself before speaking nonsense," Dae Hyun pouted with one of his lips pulled up.

"What am I talking nonsense for. Isn't that right, honey?" said Gong Yoo while looking at Soo Yin's beautiful face which was very adorable. When he first saw her, Soo Yin kept him from sleeping all night.

Gong Yoo came to campus earlier to apologize for yesterday's trouble. He realized that he shouldn't be talking nonsense.

Soo Yin massaged her temples. No wonder if her husband was very angry, it turned out that Gong Yoo had spoken something like yesterday.

"Sir, can you watch your words? Don't let people think something bad. What if your wife finds out? I will definitely get into trouble too. As for yesterday, I don't want it to happen again," said Soo Yin while looking at Gong Yoo's face who seemed to already have a wife.

"Do I look so old that you think I already have a wife?" said Gong Yoo with a sour face.

"Sorry, I thought you were married," said Soo Yin, grinning.

"Actually, I came here to apologize for my mistake about yesterday," said Gong Yoo regretfully.

"Okay, I have forgiven you. But next time don't say that again even though you are still single," said Soo Yin.

"Thank you, Soo Yin. You are indeed a very good girl," said Gong Yoo with a big smile on his face.

Dae Hyun who was sitting between Soo Yin and Gong Yoo wore a cold face. He wanted so badly to smash his nose off his face.

"Hmm," Soo Yin said with a faint smile. Her head felt a little dizzy.

"You too, you should clarify that you don't have any relationship whatsoever," said Gong Yoo while looking at Dae Hyun sarcastically.