

"What else? How should I look at him like? You're really exaggerating," Soo Yin grumbled, who had started to raise her voice. Upset because her husband was always jealous when she looked at other men. Did I have to close my eyes every time I met a guy?

Dae Hyun was silent. Tried to think logically and calm his mind again.

"If you don't want me to see another man, let's go to an ophthalmologist right now," Soo Yin said as her chest was heaving with emotion and starting to get frustrated with her husband.

"What for? Do your eyes hurt?" said Dae Hyun who panicked when he heard Soo Yin take him to an ophthalmologist.

"Let the doctor gouge out my eyeballs altogether. Instead of you having to be angry every time I look at other men. Just let me go blind, maybe it will make you feel relieved and not feel jealous anymore," said Soo Yin while snorting in annoyance.

Dae Hyun immediately pulled his car to the side of the road. Then he lowered his head for a moment. Then covered his face with both hands, hoping the stupid feeling he always felt would end soon.

"Why did you stop? Let's continue our journey to the hospital. I don't have a problem with being blind, the most important thing is that you'll feel happy," said Soo Yin while shaking Dae Hyun's body because she had lost her mind in dealing with her husband.

Dae Hyun slowly raised his head and turned his head sadly at his little wife with full of regret. He regretted that he can always be so stupid.

"Honey, I'm sorry," Dae Hyun said softly with a sad tone. His excessive fear of losing Soo Yin made him keep having bad thoughts if his wife looked at other men.

"How many times have you apologized? After a while I'm also tired, always facing your excessive jealousy. I want you to trust me and our relationship would remain calm," said Soo Yin to express her heart. If once or twice then it was not a problem. But this had been too much. Last night they also almost had a fight.

"I admit that I was wrong. From now on I will try to get rid of my excessive jealousy," said Dae Hyun bitterly. He wasn't sure if he can keep his promise because it was not easy.

"No need. Just let the doctor gouge out my eyeballs to donate to people who want to see the full color of this world," said Soo Yin firmly.

Dae Hyun then pulled Soo Yin into his broad chest. He hugged her waist tightly as he shook his head.

"Please don't think like that. I still want you to see my old face and everything in me. I still want us to look at each other with love," Dae Hyun said softly and his body was shaking. Afraid that Soo Yin would do as she said. Because his little wife sometimes didn't play with her words.

"Don't do anything that puts your life in danger. I beg you once again, don't think you're going to do it all." A drop of water fell from Dae Hyun's eye.

Soo Yin took a deep breath then rested her head on Dae Hyun's chest. To release her tired feeling of facing her problems in this world.

"Honey, don't be silent. I promise that this time I will try even harder," said Dae Hyun while kissing the top of Soo Yin's head repeatedly.

"Of course not. If I was blind then you would be very happy to see another girl who is so beautiful." Soo Yin chuckled amusedly because her husband was already frightened by what she said. Even though she sometimes acted stupid but there was no way Soo Yin will do it. Her common sense was still working fine.

Dae Hyun let go of Soo Yin's body when he heard her keep chuckling and sounded very happy. There was a sense of relief as well as a bit of irritation that Soo Yin had tricked him. But his heart was relieved that Soo Yin didn't take her words seriously.

"So you tricked me?" Dae Hyun pinched the tip of Soo Yin's nose gently. Exasperated because she had managed to make him so scared and almost cried.

"That's the result of being a husband who is too jealous. There's nothing wrong with teaching you a little lesson," said Soo Yin in between her laughter that didn't want to stop.

"You are outrageous." Dae Hyun tickled Soo Yin's waist until she squirmed and continued to laugh very crisply.

"Dae Hyun, stop it," said Soo Yin breathlessly because her waist was so ticklish.

"That's the result for being a little wife who likes to trick and almost made me die of a heart attack." Dae Hyun joined in laughing without stopping his action.

Until finally Soo Yin's body really felt weak from continuing to laugh.

"Enough," she said, leaning her head on Dae Hyun's shoulder.

"Let's get ready, tonight I will continue your punishment," Dae Hyun threatened, carving a mischievous and meaningful smile.

"What punishment?" Soo Yin said as she looked up at Dae Hyun.

"A sweet punishment that will make you soar to the seventh heaven," Dae Hyun whispered sensually and bit the tip of Soo Yin's ear softly.

"Don't dream we'll do what's on your mind," said Soo Yin as she straightened herself up to sit up by herself.

"Why?" Dae Hyun knitted his brows.

Soo Yin poked her head close to Dae Hyun's ear.

"Too bad because my monthly guest just arrived," Soo Yin whispered with a chuckle. Then sat back as before.

Dae Hyun's face, which had been shining before, turned sour again.

"Ughh, what a bad time," Dae Hyun grumbled unenthusiastically.

"Be patient, you just need to wait another week," said Soo Yin.

"A week feels like a year.. I've even been waiting since a week ago," Dae Hyun grumbled, unable to do anything.