I want to eat nuts

"Did you just tell me to shut up?" Logan stared at her as if he couldn't believe that she really told him to keep his silence. Never did she see anyone looking as offended as Logan did at the moment, blowing the locks of her hair off her face, she arched a brow and said, "I did, you have a problem with that?"

"Do I have a problem with that?" He parroted looking at her as if trying to see whether or not she was being real. With his hands on his waist, he laughed out in surprise and anger before his smile dropped and his expression turned serious, striding towards her, he came to a stop mere inches away from her. "Now look here," he clutched the front of her jacket and pulled her close to his face almost lifting her feet off the floor. "There are some things that you need to learn and that's -- one) you don't tell me what to do, two) you stay the fuck away from me, and three) you do what I tell you to do...not the other way around, am I clear?"

Levy smiled at him before leaning in close as she whispered, "I think that you really need a hearing aide, but since you cannot hear me the first time, I will say it again. This time with an example to make you understand better.”

A zap of electricity flickered through her body causing Logan to retract his hand at once, as he took three steps behind him and looked at Levy in shock and disbelief. “ Did you just electrocuted me?”

“ Be thankful that I just ‘electrocuted’ you,” said Levy pushing her jacket back and placing her hands on her waist. With a tilt of her head, she continued, “ The next time you try to threaten me or so much as try to make me submit to you then I will—”

“ Hey, Logan there is something that I need to tell you—” Jesse came striding through the door that was left open and Levy smiled upon seeing him come inside, Logan must have understood the meaning behind her smile because he immediately strode towards her and warned. “ Don’t you dare—”

Too late.

A loud pop was heard behind him, followed by tiny squeaks. His eyes widened as he turned around and took a look at the pile of clothes that were dropped on the floor with a terrified-looking hamster trying to burrow his way back in them. He heaved a sharp breath before turning his head to look at Levy, who for some very sadistic reasons looked rather pleased with herself and said, "Change him right back!"

"You forgot the magic word," Levy answered in a sing-song voice.

He breathed heavily before turning on the spot and walking close to her. "Look, I am in no mood for this... if you want to fight with me, come right at me... don't entangle innocent people in this mess."

"He was the one who took me to the prison, I don't think that he is that much of an innocent," said Levy as she raised her brows, she shook her head and whispered, "To me, he is as much of a culprit as you are, so give me something else."

"I am your Alpha, Levy! You will answer my orders!" Done playing around with her, Logan screamed. His voice was loud enough to shake the dust off the ceiling but Levy didn't even flinch. Instead, she poked out her pinky and cleared her ear with a distressed expression, "God, you are so loud... it's like seriously annoying, can you tone it down a little bit?"

"Tone...Tone down... what?" After listening to her words, Logan's expression was similar to that of a T. rex that has been challenged by a velociraptor. He stared at her as if he couldn't make out whether she was being stupid or courageous, "Are you being serious right now?"

"Come on mate," raising her hand slightly she motioned at Logan. "Because of you I spent seven years sleeping with one eye open, you think that I am going to be scared just because you raised your fucking voice on me? Are you for real right now?" She crossed her arms and stared at Logan with an expression that was full of unusual patience and continued, "The only reason I am playing along with you right now, is because I want to live a peaceful life." She tilted her head slightly to the left with a solemn expression and added. "Do not push me until I forget about my peaceful life and throw my hands up, my patience is limited and do you know what happens when people who have nothing to lose, use up their entire quota of patience?" 1

She took a step back. "They flip heaven and earth, all the same."

Raising a shoulder, she tipped her chin towards Logan and said, " Don't push me, for I have nothing to lose ...if I run out of patience, I will flip your life and everything that's important to you upside down, you got that?" snapping her fingers, she turned around and walked away to the end of the corridor. She already had a pretty good idea where Logan was keeping Lily.

There was a faint pop behind Logan, as he turned to look at Jesse, now back to being a human from a hamster. He still looked terrified looking left and right with an expression that was full of nervousness. " W..What happened to me? I...I felt something happened to me right now..." he looked at Logan before letting his gaze roam around the living room before it dropped down to his body and he jumped. " Where are my clothes at?!"

His voice sounded both alarmed and angry causing Logan's eyes to twitch, this wasn't good. Jesse didn't even remember what happened to him after Levy turned him into a hamster, if she was to use that magic spell on him, he might as well forget turning back into a human again.

With a sigh, he looked at Jesse and asked, " How are you feeling man?"

" I feel ...I feel like I want to eat nuts."
