

Beyond Deep Space

Chapter: 2

This city is very big, but it is a bit old, retaining the traces of the old times. Many old trees beside the road are very thick, one or two hundred years old.

Relatively speaking, the whole city has inherited the style of the past and preserved it through the years.

In other places, some cities left over from the old era have been abandoned for a long time, and a large area is barren, covered with vines and thorns, and gradually submerged by vegetation.

After returning to the campus, Qin Cheng was still upset about Wang Xuan, and advised him to find someone to understand the reason, why he was abandoned, and ask for an explanation.

Even after graduation, they are allowed to live on campus until all final candidates are determined.

This opportunity is rare, and the chosen ones stay in this city to wait, and will soon go to Nova, where there seems to be some extraordinary discovery.

Qin Cheng was also not selected, and his family tried their best to give him the opportunity to enter deep space.

He will go to the new moon, the moon that revolves around the new star, which is the most important base outside the new star.

Qin Cheng whispered: "Do you know that even if there are only a few rumors over there now, it has already excited the blood of those who got the gossip in advance. No matter what, you have to get a spot!"

Under the moonlight, the shadows of the trees whirled, and Wang Xuan stretched his body on the lawn. He was practicing the "Sanshu" of the old era. It was very practical, and a large number of yellow leaves on the ground were driven into the air, all over the sky.

He didn't stop, his movements were fast, but his breathing was steady, and he said, "I'm waiting for the final result."

The deep space is boundless and the universe is vast, but it is cold and dead. Apart from the old earth, people have only found another new star of life.

However, many years ago, the door to the new star was closed, and it was difficult for ordinary people from the old land to re-enter.

Relative to the new stars, some people gradually began to call this place the old earth.

In the past, this place was called the earth, and it was the origin of human beings.

Perhaps, it is indeed a bit "old", and there are many deserted cities everywhere, overgrown with wormwood and uninhabited.

All of this was caused by a war in the old days.

When technology develops to a certain height, once a hot war breaks out, it will be very scary.

The bustling world was destroyed and became extremely desolate and depressed.

At that time, a large number of people fled into space.

In fact, at that time, human technology was not as bright as imagined. Before the war, bases were established on the moon.

Therefore, those who fled can only temporarily use the moon as a foothold.

It was under such circumstances that human beings suddenly achieved a great migration, discovered and entered a new star of life!

People in the old land still find it incredible.

Many people can't help but wonder about that historical time point. What caused the sudden explosion of cutting-edge technology?

All parties kept secret.

In terms of the technological heights of the year, no matter whether it is a steady-state wormhole or a black technology such as a warp speed engine, it is impossible to realize it in a short period of time.

Some people in the old earth have doubts, and all the answers may lie on the moon!

It's a pity that the consequences of the hot war were too serious. The land was half destroyed, the old soil has not recovered after so many years, technology and other things have seriously retreated, and it will not be possible to land on the moon for a long time.

More than a hundred years have passed, and the population of the old land has only recovered to about one billion. It is far from being able to compare with that of the past, and many places are still desolate.
