

Chapter 0017

"Tsk, what makes you think that I am following you? We just happen to be taking the same path," Stella said arrogantly.

Renea couldn't be bothered to pay any more attention to Stella.

When they entered the same classroom, both of them were slightly surprised.

"Since we are so fated, how about being desk mate?" Stella asked, with her brows raised.

Without getting any response, Stella took a seat beside Renea.

Renea ignored Stella and took the economic book from her bag to read.

On the other hand, the bet between Renea, Sophia, and Kailey had been discussed on the school forum.

Someone had organized a gambling game, betting on who would win.

There had long been posts on the forum about the true and false heiresses of the Morris family.

Now many were placing bets on Kailey and Sophia to win.

After all, one was the true heiress, while the other was the vice principal's daughter. No matter how incapable they were, everyone felt that they would be better than Renea, who scored only 249 marks.

However, there was only one person on the whole campus who was betting on Renea to win.

Dream High Academy had been an obscure ruler that required all incoming freshmen to take a preliminary exam, and the results of this exam would be posted on the scoreboard.

Students with outstanding scores would receive special attention from the school. They might even be recommended to media companies for a chance to become famous overnight.

The preliminary examination was going on under tension, and there were no less than five invigilators in every examination room.

Each student's performance would be evaluated by all the teachers. The comprehensive scores given would determine the final results.

"Next, Renea Morris, please be prepared." The host said as it was her turn to go on the stage.

As the lights on the stage suddenly dimmed, Renea appeared onstage in a red dress.

All the teachers below the stage were astonished by her red attire.

The overly vibrant red color wasn't a very popular choice because it was difficult to look good in it.

However... Renea defied convention by bringing a distinct style to the red color tone. Coupled with her long black hair, she exuded a cold allure and a captivating charm.

She looked like a fairy.

A festive tune began to play.

Renea gracefully danced to the music while exhibiting a graceful and elegant dance posture.

The joys and sorrows encapsulated within the music were vividly portrayed through her dances as if she had become deeply immersed in the music.

It wasn't until the music stopped and the dance concluded that the judges finally snapped back to reality.

This was the only performance in which the teachers collectively awarded the students with high scores.

The teachers were truly appreciative of Renea's performance.

Richard White, who was standing outside the examination room, was so captivated by the scene that he had forgotten to leave.

Especially when he looked at Renea's cold and emotionless eyes, he felt a sense of familiarity toward her.

"Ahem, Richard, we should go." Mike Brown reminded him in a low voice.

He was afraid that if others discovered Richard's presence on campus, there would be an uproar. At that time, he couldn't leave even if he wanted to leave.

Richard retracted his gaze and said coldly, "Contact her for me. I want her to be my dancing partner for next month's musical concert."

"Alright, I will contact her." Mike quickly responded.

As long as Richard was willing to leave now, Mike would agree to anything he wanted.

According to Mike's knowledge of Richard's character, Mike knew Richard would directly approach Renea if he rejected him.

However, he admitted that Renea's dance just now was indeed stunning. Paired with the special new song at the concert, he believed such an amazing dance would captivate the audience.

"Next, Kailey Morris, please get ready." The host told the Kailey.

After Renea left the stage, Kailey stepped onto the stage.

Kailey appeared on the stage wearing the same red dress as Renea, which stunned the teachers.

Usually, students wouldn't wear the same outfit or perform the same act for an exam.

Kailey smiled confidently. She had purposefully chosen the same outfit as Renea. Because she was determined to make everyone know she was better and more exceptional than Renea.

She wanted to show everyone that even though they wore the same attire, there was a huge difference between them. She possessed the nobility of a true heiress of the Morris family, whereas Renea was only a poser.