

Chapter 0020

After Ria finished speaking, she ran off without giving Ria a chance to reject.

"Are you going?" Stella asked with a smile.

During her interactions with Renea, Stella became increasingly curious about her and grew fond of her.

Renea smirked as a hint of grimness flashed across her eyes. She said, "Isn't it a waste of their careful arrangements if I don't go?"

"Are you Renea Morris?" A college senior walked over with a contemptuous glance and asked disdainfully.

"Yes, I am!"

The college senior sneered and said, "The vice principal wants to see you in his office now."

"Alright!" Renea responded indifferently.

Upon seeing Renea's indifferent expression, the college senior was slightly stunned.

'Did Renea not know that she had offended the vice principal's daughter?' She wondered.

"Do you want me to go with you?" Stella asked.

"No need!" Renea said and headed straight toward the academy's office.

Stella tilted her head and pondered for a moment. Then she took out her phone and sent a text message.

"Uncle, we have an urgent situation!"

After sending the text message, she chased after Renea.

Renea knocked on the door of the vice principal's office.

"Mr. Miller, are you looking for me?" Renea asked calmly.

Shane lifted his eyes and looked at Renea from up and down. Upon meeting Renea's cold and indifferent gaze, he was shocked.

He was surprised she had such a deterrent and cold look at a young age.

"You are Renea Morris?" he asked.

"Yes!"

Shane flipped open the personal files on the desk. Then, he said flatly, "During your high school years, whether in the humanities or the arts stream, your grades weren't very impressive. I reviewed your entrance exam records and found that you scored full marks in all subjects."

"Mr. Miller, what are you trying to say?" Renea asked coldly.

To be honest, she already knew Shane's purpose before she came over.

Shane cleared his throat and said righteously, "The school has recently been cracking down on improper behaviors. With such a stark difference in your grades, it's only natural for school to conduct an investigation."

Hearing this, Renea let out a cold snort.

"Mr. Miller, perhaps, you have forgotten Renea achieved a perfect score in her recent preliminary exam," Stella pushed the door open as she entered.

She knew that the hypocritical Shane had no good intentions when he called Renea into his office.

Renea was taken aback. She had already declined Stella's offer of help, yet Stella still came.

Shane, who initially had a dark expression, immediately broke into a smile upon seeing Stella. He stepped forward and asked, "Ms. Kingston, why are you here?"

"I am here to accept your investigation." Stella replied coldly.

Shane broke out in a cold sweat. He said, "Ms. Kingston, you must be joking. Your grade are excellent, and you are gifted. You were born for Dream High hypocritical."

This compliment made both Renea and Stella feel sick in unison.

"Renea outperformed in grades, and anyone whom all the invigilators unanimously approve of can suspected. I think you should investigate me as well. Based on my unconventional appearance, I don't even look like someone who could pass the entrance exam," Stella said earnestly.

Indeed, she didn't get into the academy through the admission exam.

If it weren't for avoiding the control of her strict uncle, she wouldn't have chosen Z city.

Shane was rendered speechless.

Since Stella was under the wing of the principal, Shane dared not investigate her.

"Mr. Miller, you can't start asking questions now." Stella crossed her legs and acted like a hooligan.

Shane's expression darkened as he feigned seriousness. He reprimanded, "Ms. Kingston, don't do anything recklessly. The academy has approved your grades. As for the investigation of Renea's performance, it's due to a report made by someone."

Renea smirked as she spoke slowly, "Mr. Miller, do you still remember Alice, the third-year student, and the incident on May 28th at 10 p.m.?"
