

The Hidden Billionaire Heiress (Lyra Melvin) Chapter 46

Just...

Lyra wondered if Melvin was involved in this and how much he was involved in this.

Seeing her face getting more and more sullen, Kellie asked weakly, "So, Director, what are you going to do?"

Lyra handed the phone back to her, looking indifferent, and she just continued working, "No plans for the time being. You can leave now. We still have a proposal for the TV talent competition franchise to submit. I need to finish my work first."

"Huh?"

Kellie was stunned, "Director, if you let it be, the opponent will only get more arrogant, and things may get worse."

Lyra didn't answer, already focused on getting to work.

Fine, she had tried. Kellie thought to herself.

She couldn't figure out what was going on in Lyra's head, so she sighed helplessly and left the office.

In just a few hours in the morning, it quickly fermented online and soon shot up to the What's Trending list.

Because Lyra's side had not given any response, and it seemed like someone was manipulating the public opinions online, thus the majority was rooting for Charlotte at this point.

Even Lyra's experience of having lived in an orphanage before was exposed, as well as her employment with Angle Group.

Numerous reporters flocked to the Angle Group building, waiting for a chance to catch an interview.

At the same time in the stock market, Angle Group's price plunged two percent in just one hour, and it seemed to be on the fall.

Nearly all the comments were supporting Charlotte.

"Poor Miss Matthews, she was so in love with Mr. Freeman. But that side chick came between them!"

"This woman should've gone to hell. Arrest her for intentional assault, hello?"

"Yes, such a homewrecking slut deserves to die. No wonder why her papa and mama don't want her."

"As a fan of Cody, I petition the company to fire this unscrupulous person immediately! An employee like this will seriously afflict my idol's reputation!"

"Ditto."

"+1, the people have spoken!"

"..."

On the recliner in the room, Charlotte was looking at her phone, smiling from ear to ear.

how

Angle Group would probably fire Lyra in order not

Keith saw her for what she really was, he was likely to kick her out of her laughter, because of which, her originally able to laugh like this when was the last time that she got job, without Keith as the backer, how should that bitch continue to was really well-thought-out; Collaborating with Irene had saved herself lots of an excellent mood Charlotte sipped her tea in an holding her phone and keeping up with the situation was Kellie from Angle Group. Things seemed to be getting this continued, the director would lose her job, she, the director's assistant who had just passed her probation a few days ago, would have to be fired as fidgety, but she could do point

center of chaos didn't seem to be concerned

the computer and mulling

fuss online, she hadn't phone rang suddenly

her head and saw that it was an unfamiliar she did not want to answer, but the number called three times in a row, annoyed by the

to see who was answered and a familiar low carefully, the voice sounded rather anxious, to work when things are already like that on the internet?

Melvin?

he was the

had her phone number changed, so she guessed that he probably did not know about this matter. But even if he didn't, that was quiet for a few asked again, "Hey? Got so scared

Lyra was amused.

such a novel writer, you know? Maybe you can earn more to you about the real deal here.

lower. He suddenly realized that since some time ago, the two of them would start quarreling as soon nose into my business, you should keep your fiancée well in check. If she pisses me off, the consequences could be overwhelming for also stay away from me in the future. I'll say this again— it's none of was already beeping on the phone before had gotten up on the

So grumpy.