

The Hidden Billionaire Heiress (Lyra Melvin) Chapter 54

Fred had just come out of the smoking room when he heard several nurses running and complaining.

"What's with that young lady of the Matthews family. Doesn't she need to recuperate quietly? How could she be so hysterical! We certainly has our work cut out."

Fred stopped a nurse and asked, "Who did you just say, the young lady of the Matthews family?"

"How many other young ladies of the Matthews' can afford to stay in the VIP ward?"

The nurse shook off his hand and ran away.

Fred had a bad feeling in his heart.

He had been with Melvin since he first started working for the Freeman group, at least seven or eight years. He had no family nor friends, but Melvin gave him the job.

And Charlotte was the first person who smiled at him and the first person who said she was friends with him.

To him, Melvin was family, and Charlotte was someone more than family that he wanted to guard.

He was fond of Charlotte, but he could only hide this feeling in his heart and bless her.

But now, seeing that she was not doing well, and that Melvin ran after Lyra when Charlotte was seriously injured, he really felt aggrieved for her!

Fred clenched his fists, and something in his heart grew firmer and firmer.

...

After coming out of the hospital, Lyra got a call.

She was in a good mood when she got the news that Charlotte had been admitted to the emergency room again.

Lyra went to the training base again. Now that she had finished dealing with that fake bitch, it was time to push forward the work progress.

Because her little Volkswagen Santana was scrapped last night and she hadn't had time to buy a new car, she had to take a taxi.

The staff were respectful when they saw her, and the person in charge briefed her on the equipment condition and processes that were being improved.

Lyra went around the entire base and roughly checked on everything, and felt that there were no major problems. The show should soon be ready; after the rehearsal, it could officially be aired.

There was a young female employee whose eyes were glowing at the sight of her, rushing up to enthusiastically ask for autographs.

seen your 'Lover' video. You're absolute gorgeous. Will you be joining the

to meet a fan girl in their own training base, but I won't be a star. This autograph-signing thing is not walked around the girl and went away with eyes. She put away the excited expression on her face and looked down

of the trainees

pages when she suddenly spotted a familiar name and face when it came to the Melissa Walsh.

had once been very ill, for which Lyra

out of the orphanage because she couldn't get the money for treatment, and the

the trainee roster of the talent show now, so it seemed Melissa had page for a long time, whose also seemed a bit excited, so she hastened to a good friend of yours, Director? Need won't be fair to the other trainees in that case, and I'm sure she doesn't

to meet with Melissa for as a lonely orphan in the world, in that way Charlotte and the others could not find a gap to crack her defense. Melissa was her friend, and Lyra did not want her to be involved and get roster as if

...

to the general ward from the

by the doctor again, she was not through blurred vision that a tall figure in a suit

it was Melvin, she held the otherwise

her grip

Matthews, I'm not Boss.

Her heart was suddenly filled with disappointment and she heartbroken to see her like this, his tone indignant, "Lyra has really gone too far this time. Funeral

his words, and her eyes remained

Melvin doesn't believe me. He won't even come to the wrong. It's Mr. Freeman. He actually suspects you and even wants to look into what to the rest of investigating what happened 13 years

found out

her