

Chapter 0055

Chapter 0055

It turned out that the stock market was in an uproar at this moment. The King's group stock that Renea had bought was currently increasing at a tenfold rate.

Except for Renea, there was no one else who bought the stock that had already been stagnant for a few days. Now that they saw that had made a lot of money, they all began to wonder who exactly was this.

This was because there were regulations in the trading market that prevented the disclosure of the personal information of investors. Except for the internal personnel of the market, no one knew who this expert investor was.

However, when everyone else followed her to buy the King's group's shares Renea had sold it already.

An hour after she sold out, shares of King's group began to trend lower.

In just three hours, the limit fell again.

The investors who had followed Renea to buy King's group shares were all waiting now. After all, some of them had bet on their entire fortune.

When everyone thought that it would be difficult for King's group shares to rise again, Renea bought another million shares.

This time some knowledgeable investors followed Renea to buy King Group's shares as well.

"Sir, that person seemed to have seen through our operation," Ebert reported with a serious look.

They had not encountered an investor with such extensive understanding in a very long time. She appeared to know exactly what they would do next, like the back of her hand.

Daron narrowed his eyes slightly. He knocked on the table rhythmically with his index and middle fingers, seemingly deep in thought.

After a while, he said slowly, "Are you sure the information in your hand is true?"

"Yes. I have also sent someone to the stock market to confirm her identity. It indeed her."

"Renea," Daron's lips parted slightly as he read out slowly, "18 years old."

Ebert also felt that it was incredible. He couldn't believe that an 18-year-old girl not only had such boldness but also such a mind. She appeared to possess the boldness and intelligence that Daron did back then.

Daron then resumed his silence. Nobody could tell what he was thinking, because of the way his deep eyes appeared to be shrouded in fog.

Renea, who had only briefly appeared on stage with Richard, was now well known at the Dream High Academy. Numerous Richard's fans had come to talk to Renea or even present her with gifts.

"Renea this is for you. If you have another chance to act with Richard again, remember to ask for his autograph for me." The girl said, as she stuffed the gift in Renea's arm, and before Renea could say no, she had already run away.

Throughout the whole morning, Renea had been receiving gifts from various people. Now her arms were carrying a big pile of gifts.

“Wow! Renea, you are so popular now.” Stella was happy for her.

Upon Stella’s words, Renea smiled wryly and said, “Too much water drowned the miller. Their purpose for gifting me is to fulfill their requests. What do you think they will do if they don’t receive a response?”

Stella immediately understood how crazy the fans could be. She had learned about them on the Internet. She didn’t even dare to consider how wild those fans might be, especially for those celebrities with enormous followings.

“Help me return these gifts later.” said Renea.

Renea felt that She didn’t do anything that deserved the reward. If she accepts the gift, she would have to do these people favors. She didn’t want to be suppressed by others because of some small gifts.

“Renea, you got to help me.” Tia rushed over out of the blue. She caught Renea off guard and the things in Renea’s arm fell all over the floor.
