

Chapter 0057

Chapter 0057

Posts about Renea kept by various rich people flooded the school forum.

The matter of Renea as the fake daughter in the forum long ago had once again been brought up again.

Everyone had also started to look at Renea strangely. Even worse, they were secretly talking bad about her behind her back.

Renea, on the other hand, handled criticism as if nothing had happened. She seemed unaffected by the situation and continued to go to class and eat as usual.

No one wanted to sit with her, so she sat alone. No one wanted to stand with her when queuing too. Not having to queue was quite enjoyable to her.

"Who the hell is making this up?" Stella stormed over as she cursed.

Renea, however, smiled nonchalantly and handed the soup in front of her to Stella, saying, "Don't get yourself too worked up on a hot day like this. Here have some white gourd soup to get rid of the heat in your body."

"How can I not be angry? Did you see what they say?" The more Stella thought about the angrier she became. It appears as though she was the one being chastised online.

"No, I have to call Uncle Yama and ask him to clear your name."

Stella had just fished out her phone, when Renea stopped her and said, "It's not a big deal. Don't get your uncle involved. I can still handle such a small matter.”

“Do you mean you know who posted it?” Stella asked with curiosity.

As soon as the post came out, she checked it immediately. Yet, it was a newly registered anonymous account. And there was no information in it. Hence, there was no way to find out who was it.

Renea's lips covered up into a smile, and a meaningful look crept up her eyes.

The hospital had once again issued a notice of critical illness. If the operation was not carried out soon, the patient would be in danger.

Tia had no choice but to beg Kailey.

“Kailey, please help me. If my dad could not have surgery, he would be in danger.”

Kailey looked like she was in a dilemma and said, “It's not that I don't want to help you, but $50,0000 is not a small sum. Well, you know that I just returned to the Morris family, so I can't take out so much money at the moment.”

“Kailey even you or not, we're willing to help me.” Tia was desperate.

For someone who came from an ordinary family like her, it was good enough that she didn't have to worry about her clothes and food, how could she have extra savings?

$50,0000 was a huge amount of money for a family like hers.

Tia had thought that she wouldn't have to worry about her life anymore, but she had not expected such a thing to happen.

Kailey suddenly got an idea as she looked at Tia and said slowly, "Tia, although I can't help you, there is someone who should be able to help you."

Hearing this, Tia looked up as if she had seen hope.

"My elder sister, Renea. She has got the money that Grandpa left for her. $50,000 isn't a big deal for her."

Kailey's words made Tia's eyes dim instantly.

Kailey noticed the change in her emotion and asked with feigned concern, "What's wrong? Did you ask her already? Is she unwilling to help? You guys are friends."

"What friend? She has become friends with rich people now, and she doesn't treat me as a friend anymore." Tia said indignantly.

"How can this happen? There should be some misunderstanding. How about I go and ask her with you?"

Howard Tia didn't want to go and beg Renea again. After all, they had already fallen out.

"Tia now is not the time for you to be angry. Your father's illness is more important."

After hearing Kailey's words, Tia thought of her father's illness and compromised in the end.

An evil smile crept up Kailey's face when she left arm-in-arm with Tia.

Every evening, many people strolled in the park next to the school.

Renea had to go to the library outside the campus alone because Stella had left due to something coming up.

She knew that seats in the school library were all occupied if she went at this time.

Renea honestly didn't see this as a huge deal. The library outside the school was even quieter and more suitable for reading. At the very least, she wouldn't be disturbed by weird people for no reason.

"Renea!"

Renea's path was blocked by someone suddenly.

Looking at Kailey and Tia, who had approached her, Renea's brows tightened unhappily.

"Renea, have you heard about Tia's dad's situation?" Kailey went straight to the point.

Renea just replied in a cold voice, "No." After that, she bypassed them and walked away.

Renea, Tia's father is in urgent need of $50,000 for the operation. Since both of you have been friends for so many years, you should help her." Kailey spoke for Tia.

Tia also immediately stepped forward to block Renea's path and said, "Renea, please just help me. As long as you're willing to help me, I can do anything you want me to do."

"Find a doctor if you are sick. I'm not a doctor."

"It's just $50,000 yet, you still can't lend it to me." Tia accused her in a choked voice.

The commotion alarmed the passers-by who were taking a walk in the park, and they all gathered around to watch.

Seeing more and more people gathered around Kailey curled her lips smugly. Then she stepped forward and said, righteously, "Renea, you and Tia have been friends for so many years. Now that her father is seriously ill, you should help her. Besides $50,0000 is nothing for you."

"Then, why didn't you help?" Renea turned her head and retorted.
