

Chapter 6 That will be nice

"Baby girl, what is going on? What are you hiding from me?" Nancy asked

"Just come back I will tell you everything" Lala replied.

Nancy who just drove into her apartment revised her car and went back for Lala. She was surprised to see Lala with a huge suitcase. She quickly came down and ran to her dear friend.

"Oh mine what happened? Come here let me get you out of here" Nancy said, she took the suitcase inside the car and the two of them drove out immediately after Lala entered the car.

"Are you telling me that you are now a free woman?" Nancy asked with excitement in her eyes.

"Not yet, but very soon, your beloved friend will be finally free," Lala said

"This is not true. I can't believe you finally left Lucas ha ha ha ha this is too good to be true. Baby girl, we are going out to celebrate this. Get ready we are parting this marriage with a very good wine ha ha ha" she laughed.

Nancy was finally happy that her best friend Lala has left her abusive marriage. However, Lala was not happy at all she still want to try harder to make her marriage work if not for her child, she was almost sure that Lucas will change and return her love even if it was once.

Days later. Lala brought out the wedding gift old Donald gave to her. She had never opened the brown envelope. It was still sealed, she was hoping to open it together, with Lucas. She wanted to give it to Lucas on the day he will finally confess his love for her. Unfortunately, that day never came and she decided to find out what was inside.

Lala allows her friend Nancy to go to work before opening the gift. She wants to know the content before sharing it with her. So she tore the envelope and saw some documents inside. She brought them out and opened them. The shock on her face was beyond anything in this world.

Lala couldn't hold the tears in her eyes. Just how much did old Donald love her that he gave her one of his estates? The same one he had forbidden his family members its ownership. He specifically stated in his final will that his largest estate should be in the hands of his lawyers until the rightful owner come to claim it.

They had asked each other who could that be. Until the end of his will, he did not mention giving anything to Lala which makes everyone marvel because the old man was too fond of her.

How then he gave out something to each family member including the workers without leaving at least one thing for Lala they all asked.

In Lala's mind maybe it was because she is married to Lucas and whatever belongs to her husband belonged to her and Lucas was the heir to his great company. The Donald's group dominated the Whole of Newland.

Seeing this document now proves how much the old man cherished her and it was because of her love for him that kept her in that marriage. It was the same love that makes her believe that her husband will change one day.

Lala cleaned her eyes and contacted the Lawyer whose name was written down in one of the documents she held via phone call. The two booked an appointment to meet the next day.

The next morning, Lala came to the lawyer's office. She was asked to sit down by his secretary. Within a minute, the young lady came out.

"Mr. Brighton will see you now," the Secretary told Lala immediately after she came out of the lawyer's office.

"Thank you," Lala said and move inside the lawyer's office.

Mr. Edward Brighton lift his face from the file that he was working with to meet Lala's gaze.

"Welcome, Miss. I am Barrister Edward Brighton. You are welcome to Brighton's law firm. How can we help you" Edward said.

"Miss Edison, but you can call me Lala," Lala said timidly and handed over the brown envelope in her hand to him without saying any more words.

"Please seat down," Edward said pointing at the seat before him. Lala sat down and started looking around the room.

Brighton scanned through the document. At one glance, he knew the content. He was the one who prepared the document for Old Donald Five years ago. He can never forget how the old man called him one morning to read his will and to wed his unprepared grandson to a timid, looking girl.

"Wait a minute, is she the girl that was married to Donald's arrogant grandson three years ago". Edward asked in his mind. He looked at her again. He remembered her, she was the one. But wait, what happened this girl seating before him, looked different from the girl he wedded three years back.

"We have been waiting for your appearance since the death of old Donald. We thought maybe there is no one old Donald kept the property for. Why didn't you come all this while?" He asked

"I was busy with something, but I am here now." She answered.

Edward made a call, and within a short time, his assistant came in.

I want you to prepare a document about the Donald Mega estate the income and the expenditures of the estate for the past three years. Make sure to include the total assets both liquid and solid. Get them ready within a 24hour.

"I will do that boss," the man said and left the office.

"I am sorry that all you need to take over the estate is not yet available, however, I can assure you that I will get all the necessary documents ready within 24 hours. Meanwhile, if you are free, I can take you to the estate now." He said.

"That will be nice. I will love to see the estate." Lala replied.