

The Hidden Billionaire Heiress (Lyra Melvin) Chapter 70

She pulled the dagger out with agile hands.

"Stop it all!"

She bellowed and put the dagger against her wrist, "If you don't let me in again, I'll cut my wrist!"

The bodyguards who were fighting together were stopped by her yelling and looked at her in unison.

"Miss, you can't do this. You can't hurt yourself over this kind of thing. It's not worthy."

Peter was frightened by her action, "If you get hurt, how can I explain to Mr. Frazier and Madam?"

"As you can see, I am a pearl in the palm of my family. In case I get hurt, guess if the Frazier family will be angry with all of you present? What would be the price you would pay?"

She concluded that these bodyguards would be shocked by her status, and winked at Peter while sneering, "If you don't want your family to be broken up, hurry up and get out of the way."

"Miss Frazier, why are you doing this?" The bodyguard in the lead really hesitated, "How about we each take a step back. You take your people and go home. I'll pretend you never come here. How about that?"

"No! I'm bound and determined to go to the third floor."

Irene casually threw the dagger on the ground.

At this moment, the attention of the bodyguards on the third floor was on Irene.

Immediately, Peter led the men to quickly suppress the bodyguards.

The two sides, which was originally evenly matched, instantly switched to the situation that Irene had the absolute advantage.

"Miss Frazier, I'm negotiating with you sincerely, but you're playing dirty!"

"What do you mean by playing dirty?" Irene sneered, "I call it outwitting."

After saying that, she waved her hand to let her people bring the bodyguards away.

A man's vaguely angry bass suddenly came from below the stairwell.

"Hem, what a outwitting."
