Chapter 135A

Chapter 136 Charity Auction

Annie scanned the bar and discovered Annabel sitting in the corner. However, her companion wasn't a man but a rather familiar woman.

After staring at the woman for a while, Annie finally remembered that the woman was Anika—the person in charge of Leo Studio.

Back when Benton Group was involved in a plagiarism scandal, Anika stepped forward to testify for Annabel and proved Marilyn was guilty of the act.

What was the relationship between Anika and Annabel?

Didn't they say Annabel was merely a bumpkin from the countryside? Why was she with Anika?

The two of them conversed and giggled, as if they were always on good terms.

Annie was slightly confused. She quietly sat somewhere not too far away from them both and heard that Annabel would be attending tomorrow's charity auction.

Charity auction?

Annie flashed a devious smile before quickly sending Heather a message. "Annabel will be attending Leo Studio's charity auction tomorrow."

Heather soon replied, "You get ready."

After a few glasses of wine, Annabel began to feel slightly tipsy.

Anika stopped Annabel from taking another sip of her wine and said, "Don't drink. Come over to my place for a nap."

"Okay." Exhausted, Annabel rubbed her temples.

Feeling slightly drunk, she stood up and walked to the door with Anika.

Out of the corner of her eye, she suddenly spotted a familiar figure.

Annie?

Annabel frowned, wondering whether or not it was a coincidence bumping into Annie at the bar.

After a night's rest at Anika's place, Annabel woke up at noon the next day.

As she massaged the space between her eyebrows, she saw Anika's message.

"I'm going to prepare for the charity dinner. There's breakfast in the kitchen that you could heat up. I've also sent you Leo Studio's new product launch for the next season. See you tonight."

Good friends were always considerate. A sense of warmth welled up in Annabel's heart.

After breakfast, Annabel carefully went over the plan Anika forwarded her and added a few comments.

Tonight's charity dinner would be held at a five-star hotel.

As the person in charge of the charity dinner, Anika went to the hotel early in the morning to ensure they were fully prepared.

After greeting Anika, Annabel took her seat in an inconspicuous corner.

This charity auction would be held by Leo Studio with many celebrities invited.

Heather asked Hooper for an invitation and entered the auction hall.

She looked around the venue and saw Annabel sitting in the corner. However, Rupert wasn't there. ①

It seemed he wasn't too fond of Annabel. Otherwise, she would not have been out the previous night and come to the charity auction alone. ②

Heather's eyes glimmered with undeniable mischief.

"I'm going to teach you an unforgettable lesson tonight, Annabel." ③

At eight o'clock in the evening, the auction officially began.

The emcee announced, "Welcome to Leo Studio's charity auction! All proceeds will be donated by the studio to charity. Thank you all for the support. Tonight, a total of ten items donated by Leo Studio will be up for sale in the hope that they will find their new owners. Now, the auction officially begins. The first item up for auction is a porcelain bowl. It is an antique from the Tang Dynasty!"
