

Chapter 170 Is It For Rory

Annabel was at a loss what to do.

Danica came into view when the door opened.

"Annabel?" Danica was caught off-guard to see someone at home at such an hour.

"It's you, Danica." A part of Annabel was disappointed, but she also felt a sense of relief.

The fact that Danica came to clean the home every afternoon nearly slipped her mind.

"Annabel, what are you up to?" Danica's eyes widened a little bit as she caught sight of the suitcase in Annabel's hand.

"I'm leaving. Please inform Rupert," Annabel responded immediately.

Annabel and Rupert's story was all over the internet. Danica was also informed of the news.

But she had a strong intuition that Rupert was not the kind to fall for another girl so quickly.

Danica could tell Rupert had a lot of feelings for Annabel.

She had been working for Rupert for quite some time, but this was the first time she had seen him caring for a girl so much.

He must love Annabel deeply.

But Annabel was leaving him.

Puzzled, Danica pleaded, "Please, hold on until Rupert returns. You will talk about any issues if there are any. To what end are you leaving like this?"

Rory appeared at the door as Annabel shook her head and prepared to speak.

"Are you done, Annabel?" Rory asked and came up to Annabel.

"Yes," Annabel replied.

Rory grabbed the suitcase from Annabel as he gazed at her lovingly. "Nothing left?"

"Nothing." Annabel's tone lacked any kind of feeling.

Rory gave us a gentle grin and said, "Well then, let's go."

Incredulous, Danica took in the scene before her.

What the hell was going on? What kind of relationship did they have?

Annabel stopped when she met Danica's startled stare. She suddenly realized something. She reached into her pocket, retrieved the keys, and gave them to Danica. "Please return them to Rupert. Thank you."

"Why not give it to him yourself?" Danica had not given up on convincing Annabel to stay.

"No." Annabel turned around and followed Rory downstairs.

"Annabel, please get in the car." Rory was such a gentleman that he helped her load her suitcase into the trunk and then opened the door for her.

"Thank you." Annabel glanced around, pursed her lips, and slid into the passenger seat.

Her mood was down for all the possible reasons.

"Don't overthink things, Annabel. I'll get you home, and you'll have to rest well first," Rory remarked and buckled her seatbelt.

"There's nothing wrong with me, Rory. Don't bother me." Annabel, who was extremely exhausted, reclined in her chair and shut her eyes.

Rory said no more words. He turned the car and left the neighborhood.

Rupert drove back home from the hospital. When he approached the community's entrance, he saw a familiar vehicle pulling away.

Wasn't that Rory's car?

What brought him to Water Moon Community?

The muscles in Rupert's eyebrows twitched twice.

Uncontrollably, his head turned to peer out the window, and he caught a glimpse of a beautiful face.

Annabel!

Both vehicles drove past one another. Suddenly, Rupert slammed on the brakes.

Cars behind him kept beeping their horns. Rupert turned around for a better look, but Rory's car was nowhere to be seen.

Did Rory just take Annabel?

Rupert got home with a cold expression. Danica was tidying up the living room.

Danica approached him upon his return and said, "Rupert, you're back."

"Mm-hmm." Rupert's response was uninterested and unemotional.

After a pause, Danica asked, "Have you seen Annabel? She just left."

Annabel had indeed returned.

With his expression stiff as ever, Rupert said, "Where did she go?"

Danica gave Rupert the keys that Annabel had left and shook her head. "I didn't hear that from her. She left with her belongings. She requested that I give the keys back to you."

There was no warmth in Rupert's expression at all.

"Was she alone when she returned?" he asked coldly after a moment.

Danica could feel the chill throughout his body. "A guy accompanied her. He's a pretty popular TV star. I guess his name is Roy or something?"

Before Danica could finish speaking, Rupert made a huge bang.

Danica looked up, startled, just in time to see Rupert deliver a heavy blow to the glass door of the cabinet.

The glass disintegrated into shards.

"Are you alright?" Danica asked worriedly.

Rupert felt a piercing pain in his fist but ignored it. "I'm fine."

After that, he ascended the steps.

Rupert pushed open the door of Annabel's room on the second floor and stepped in.

Everything was put up neatly, but Annabel's belongings were all gone.

Rupert sat on the king-sized bed by himself, a look of rage on his face.

His slim fingers lightly brushed the pillow atop the bed.

That was where Annabel had slept.

It seemed that there was still her unique fragrance on it.

Did Annabel really leave?

And with Rory?

Did she end their engagement and leave Water Moon Community because of Rory?

On the other hand, Heather was browsing the web while lying on the bed.

When she read all the bad things posted about Annabel online, she couldn't refrain from chuckling.

"Bitch!" She cursed Annabel.

Feeling upbeat, Heather asked Bella to go shopping.

In the car, Bella continued to compliment Heather. "Annabel is doomed. Rupert's grandpa almost died because of her. Rupert must loathe her intensely."

Heather snorted and said, "She deserves it."

Heather suddenly had something pop into her head. With a pout, she remarked, "Rumor has it that Rupert left Annabel for Candy. Help me check if it's true."

Bella nodded promptly. "Of course, Heather. It's not something to worry about, though. So what if it is Candy? If we can drive Annabel away, we can do that to Candy as well."

Heather acknowledged this with a contented nod. She pointed to the car in front of them and asked Bella, "Is that Annabel?"

Bella followed Heather's gaze.

It was Rory's car.

The handsome man behind the wheel was Rory.

Annabel was the one sitting next to him in the car.

Bella's face grew cold as jealousy welled up within her.

"Whoa, that's one brazen bitch! She has recently been dumped by Rupert, and now she is seducing Rory!" Bella said resentfully. "Let's follow them and see what they are up to!"
