

Chapter 7 Mom will be with you forever

“You were faking it!” Nora was a little surprised to see her.

Ann shook her head with a show-off smile on her face.

“I have uremia and really need a kidney transplant.” Ann said.

It was a little difficult for Nora to digest the information but Ann continued, “I found that you were an organ donor and your kidney could match for me. You see, what a coincidence!”

“Is this your real aim for coming back?”

“Yes,” Ann shrugged her shoulder and thought for a while, saying, “Oh, more than that, as you know, I got divorced and I think Steward is the best man for me. A few days later, he will restore his sight. Who will let such a perfect man go?”

“I just can’t believe this is what you do!” Nora said.

Nora could not believe that in order to frame her, Ann would be willing to be pushed down the stairs.

“I am not the woman who was pushed down in the video.” Ann laughed at Nora for her being such an innocent and stupid woman.

Nora was so angry that her body couldn't stop trembling. She rushed forward to slap her twice, giving her what she had received from Steward!

"I will never give you my kidney, never!" Nora said.

And soon Ann and Nora started to wrestle together.

Nora felt a sudden pain in her belly and a stream of heat could not stop flowing down from her body.

The bodyguards outside found that the situation was out of control so they went in to separate them.

The doctor helped stop her from bleeding and gave her a test. The results showed that she had been pregnant for less than a month.

Nora couldn't believe she was going to have a baby, because the experts once told her that she could barely get pregnant.

After making sure that she was truly pregnant, her eyes were filled with delight and persistence.

When Steward arrived at the hospital, he went to see Ann first.

Ann was lying in the bed. When he came, she held his hands on her swollen face with tears in her eyes.

“Steward,I do not need Nora’s kidney.She was a such a crazy woman who had lost her mind.And it seems that she is pregnant...”

Hearing that,Steward’s face turned gloomy.

He believed that Nora's real aim to be with him was to have a baby with him.

He did not expect that but he believed that he could deal with it.

He did not want the baby.

Steward wiped away Ann’s tears and comforted her,“You should take a good rest and be prepared for tomorrow’s surgery.As for Nora,I will deal with her.”

Ann threw herself into his arms,and a triumphant smile flashed on her face.

In the ward,Nora caressed her flat belly with both hands,with a look of joy on her face.

Steward’s face and words were all cold,“Did you forget what I have told you?You have no right to have my baby.”

Nora was about to cry.She thought she was accustomed to all this,but still got hurt.

“I did not push her,and the reason why she needed my kidney was that she had uremia.”Nora told Steward the truth.

Steward frowned. Obviously, he did not believe Ann had uremia but thought Nora was making up stories.

“Whatever you say, I do not want this baby.”

Nora burst into tears and asked Steward, “Why didn’t you believe me? You can take her to do the test and you will know I am not lying.”

Steward lost his temper, “I don’t care whether Ann was lying. You owed her. You are the reason why she had to leave me. You deserve all this!”

Nora did not know what to say. Her heart was broken and her eyes were filled with endless agonizing sadness.

“You really think that I owe her? You really think I am the one who should feel sorry?”

Nora just did not understand why she owed Ann all this.

Steward felt angry about her words even though he did not know the reason. He said to her, “Even if I do not love Ann, I would not love you and I would not have a baby with you!” Then he went out the ward, slamming the door.

Nora was frozen like a soulless doll. She kept her position until at dawn.

She finally made her decision.

Chapter 7 Mom will be with you forever

“My dear baby, don’t be afraid. Mom will be with you forever no matter what your father does or say.” She said gently.