

Black Plain 1841

Chapter 1841 Awakening 2

After joining her harem sisters and the rest of the group, Ruth quickly described how it felt to pass on the inheritance of a level 100 expert to these people.

She didn't tell them all the riches she had gained because that was something very special to cultivators. But she said enough to satisfy some of the curiosity of those people.

Not even Forrest had ever had the chance to talk to someone who had actually received something from a God's legacy and was willing to talk.

Fewer than 60 human Gods have appeared in the Spiritual World since the first human reached level 100. Still, even if all of them had left inheritances, that would be very few inheritances for the millions of years and trillions of humans that had existed during that period.

Many of the heirs of those Gods had died or become Gods, so those inheritances were extremely rare, even if you considered the beast inheritances.

Forrest was a very talented person who had already traveled throughout the Spiritual World and passed through many unique places. He was also a member of the Spiritual Church, one of the organizations with the most Gods in history.

But even he had never had the chance to go through such a legacy, and the first one he had witnessed was this one!

So even he had listened to Ruth carefully, amazed at the little she was willing to tell them.

After talking about what she had experienced and found out how long it had been since the inheritance began, Ruth quickly looked around for something to eat before concentrating on meditating.

From what she could sense of Minos, he would not awaken that day, so she quickly focused on stabilizing her soul.

She was thirsty for a Saint-grade medicine that was compatible with her, but since there was no such item in this place or on any of her teammates' spatial rings, she focused on meditating after eating.

The others would soon return to focusing on themselves and spend the next 4 days that way until Minos called for their attention!

By the end of the fourth day after Ruth's awakening, the cocoon of energy surrounding Minos' body had become almost transparent when suddenly, the entire group in the area of this legacy heard a strange sound.

Upon hearing what sounded like a strong heartbeat, everyone in the area turned their eyes to Minos, looked at him, and sensed that he was about to awaken.

Ruth left her meditative state and looked at her husband, hearing another loud heartbeat sound as Forrest raised his guard.

Instinctively, the strongest one there sensed something was about to happen and acted, activating his Soul Avatar.

"Shit! Take cover!" He shouted as he appeared between Minos and the rest of his people, forming a large barrier.

Then, when Minos opened his eyes, everyone there felt cold and indescribable fear, as if his eyes had suddenly grown 200 times larger and a great dragon was watching them.

At the same time, the pressure on their bodies suddenly changed, and everyone there felt like kneeling down, with the weakest starting to tremble with fear.

Even though they were Minos' wives and trusted him completely, the four wives of Emperor Stuart could not control their instincts and found their hands shaking uncontrollably. I think you should take a look at

Luckily for the whole group, Forrest acted quickly and blocked the worst by taking a powerful spiritual blow that had broken out of Minos' eyes when he awoke.

Dragon's Gaze!

Minos released the energy that had been building up in his eyes for the past few weeks, unable to control the ability he had just received from the remnants of the level 100 dragon.

This was a special mental-type ability that could make any creature feel threatened and temporarily weakened while being watched by him. At the same time, this ability could deal a powerful spiritual blow to anyone who was in the direction the user was looking when he activated it.

This was like an invisible spiritual punch, capable of injuring even those who were 100% stronger than the ability user!

Mental strength was not Forrest's strong suit, and when he received the total onslaught of this new skill from Minos, this member of the Spiritual Church felt dizzy as goosebumps broke out all over his body.

But he continued to stand even though he felt terrible. He was not injured, but he was in a very dull state, where even though he knew he was much stronger than Minos at level 83, he felt how much harder it would be to fight this emperor with this new skill.

Perhaps Minos' skill could not seriously injure or even kill someone of Forrest's level. But with it, this Cardinal was sure that Emperor Stuart could easily run away from him if both were in a fight and such a skill was used.

The mental confusion caused by this skill was so strong that even those who were stronger than its user would be temporarily unable to eliminate or track such a person!

While Forrest was impressed by this and Minos' group was trying to recover from this sudden awakening, this brown-haired fellow realized what had happened and quickly got his new powers under control.

'Dragon's Gaze, huh? That's pretty strong. Good thing Forrest was here.' Minos thought to himself, glad he hadn't hurt his family.

But when he saw this ability, he couldn't help but be impressed, realizing how strong this dragon must have been in his time.

Imagine having a skill that could intimidate even those stronger than you with just a look? That was impressive!

Not only that, but among Minos' techniques and skills, this was the first one that allowed him to fight opponents stronger than twice his strength!

'It looks like I got some improvements in the quality of my Physique as well...' Minos thought to himself as he made an apologetic gesture to his group. 'I haven't changed the quality of it, but I have made a significant breakthrough. Now, it should be easier for me to steal the unique energy from these giant bones!'

Minos now felt much more compatible with the bone in the Spatial Kingdom that had his seal.

When he thought about it, even though he had not come close to breaking through to the Divine grade of his Physique, nor had he even improved his soul cultivation, he was delighted.

What Minos wanted most at the moment was to be compatible with those ancient beings. Thus, he had received what he could best deserve in this legacy!

'Perfect! He also left behind a spatial ring.' Minos felt something metallic in one of his hands and immediately put it into his own storage item.

Chapter 1842 Inherited Wealth

As he landed in front of his wives and saw them returning to normal after the horror of moments before, Minos apologized to them and the rest of his group.

"I'm sorry, I didn't want to do that."

Forrest heard that and continued to breathe heavily, feeling the great discomfort of Minos' blow. "That's quite a strong skill. Did you get it from that dragon?"

"Yes, he gave it to me and some other things..." Minos was about to say that when he looked to the side and asked. "How long was I unconscious?"

"Just over 5 weeks," Abby answered him.

"Then we must hurry. We probably drew trouble in our direction when the inheritance started. And this protective barrier will only last another day!" He said, worried about the opponents they might have to face.

"One day?" Everyone there murmured the same question, as they thought this barrier would disappear after Minos awoke.

"Yes, that was how much the dragon told me his barrier would stand after the inheritance was completed. He saw my memories, and that's why he gave us this bonus," Minos explained. Minos explained.

This level 100 dragon had left his legacy long before this Spatial Kingdom suffered the catastrophe millions of years ago. However, after seeing his heir's memories, this dragon remnant realized that his heir's situation after inheritance would not be easy at all.

With this in mind, he had used some of his remaining energy in this world to maintain this barrier long enough for his heir to prepare.

"That's really convenient..." Forrest sighed, feeling better that he could recover from this attack before worrying about the enemies outside.

He and the rest of the group expected to run into trouble as soon as the level 100 dragon's inheritance ended, even though they couldn't sense what was outside this area. After all, they knew other groups were in this spatial pocket when Minos activated the legacy.

Knowing how valuable a God's inheritance was, there was no way they wouldn't expect something to happen after Minos' awakening!

"Get ready. In a few hours, we will fight our way out of this space." Minos said, without telling much more about what he had been through.

The men of Forrest's group, Harold and the hybrid, soon began meditating to raise their spirits to the maximum before the confrontation.

But Minos' women didn't do that right away. Instead, they approached him curiously.

"How do you feel?" Gloria asked.

"Excellent. Not only have I gained a dragon's ability, but I feel like my body is much stronger now. I could probably fight low-level Sages without using any of my techniques or abilities." Minos replied.

Ruth nodded her head positively and said. "I feel the same way. My body has improved a lot in terms of attributes."

Normally, a cultivator's physical strength was 10% of their spiritual strength. For example, a level 81 cultivator like Ruth would have the same physical strength as a level 70 cultivator.

But now, the two had bodies as strong as those of low-level 9th-stage beasts!

"I also feel that my connection with the giant skeletons has greatly increased. I think I'll be able to help our forces more than before." Minos said, leaving his theory to be discussed with his wives in the future.

His theory was more than understanding the origin of this world. It could even affect the fate of the cultivators, for Minos thought it might allow him to revolutionize the rules of this world!

For now, he would gather more data on his ideas and continue strengthening himself. But he already had some ambitious plans in mind.

Not wanting to talk about it so as not to raise false hopes, he ended up hiding part of what he had gained from this legacy because, in his opinion, the most important thing was not the Dragon's Gaze but his progress in terms of compatibility with those ancient beings.

But Emperor Stuart's wives understood that he had significantly benefited from this inheritance and that his future would be even brighter once he became a Demigod.

They all smiled, congratulated, and hugged him.

Then Abby asked. "Did you win anything else? Like resources?"

It was not only the people out of this protected area who thought that the heir of that level 100 being had gained more than indivisible qualities. Everyone imagined that some wealth had been left behind.

After all, dragons were creatures that were known to accumulate wealth. How could a level 100 being of that kind leave nothing behind?

Knowing this, the four women were curious.

Minos smiled when he heard this and looked at the spatial ring in one of his hands.

"Yes, I won some stuff." He said as he examined what was on the ring.

It was imperative that he use everything at his disposal to help his group increase their strength before they faced the opponents who were surely waiting for them outside of this area.

This spatial ring could be crucial in this battle, depending on what was inside it!

'Let me see. Here it is...' Minos injected a part of his consciousness into this high-level grade-4 item and soon felt an ample space filled with resources and riches.

There were various armor and artifacts that were useful not only for dragons and beasts but also for humans of both genders. There was practically nothing of low or medium level, and almost everything was of high-level grade-4 rank.

'As expected from a dragon. He was really very rich!' Minos thought as he noticed the number of high-grade spiritual crystals, Saint-grade medicine, and even special resources.

There were dragon skeletons, dragon skins, phoenix feathers, sky whale scales, precious minerals, and more.

In short, this ring had enough riches to arm a high-level battalion, provide ingredients for high-level grade-4 alchemists and blacksmiths, and even cultivation items for 9th and 10th-stage beasts and humans!

These items were nothing compared to a Spatial Kingdom with Divine Medicine, but they were second to nothing more!

Chapter 1843 Divine Physique 1

There are 4 million high-grade crystals here, about 50 different kinds of Saint-grade medicines, more than 50 high-level grade-4 artifacts, 7 Golden-grade techniques, 2 bottles of Spring of Life... Some maps of the Spiritual World, especially the Continent of Beasts...'

Minos said in his mental communication with his wives, presenting them with the numbers of the riches he had just acquired.

There were many things there that were not useful to dragons. But things that were valuable to humans and other races had their value to every being in this world. As long as you could barter, any kind of currency was valuable!

There were also many documents and books there, things that Minos would eventually have his men of the Black Plain Army study and catalog.

Depending on what they contained, they could help him with his plans for the Central Continent and the rest of the Spiritual World!

'Besides, there are many valuable things here. For example, phoenix feathers and dragon teeth.' He said to them, causing them to look at him wide-eyed.

This was all very valuable!

"This is fantastic!" Gloria commented.

Isabella then said. "With these resources, the empire will surely have enough to develop and create its first squad of Demigods..." Isabella said. "But Minos, is there anything we can use now? It would be nice if we could protect or strengthen ourselves with it.

Minos nodded positively. "Yes, some arrays, pills, and medicines could be useful for us.

He looked at Ruth and said. "I have something here that is compatible with you. You are close to improving the quality of your Physique, right?"

They all looked at Ruth as she nodded very eagerly. "Yes. Even a Saint-grade medicine can help me evolve qualitatively."

Physique evolution was utterly different from the evolution from level 99 to level 100.

To cultivate from level 99 to level 100, one would have to increase one's strength about 11 times in a short period.

It was impossible to do this without a Divine-grade medicine because nothing but such a medicine contained so much energy AVAILABLE for absorption.

There was even a lot of free energy and laws in the world, but a Demigod's power was INSUFFICIENT to achieve everything they needed. The only way they could achieve what they needed was through Divine-grade Medicine.

But for the Physique, things were a little different. Typically, one would upgrade one's Physique to the Divine grade at the same time as trying to reach level 100.

The power of Divine Medicine was sufficient for both advancements.

However, the Physique evolution required much less energy and laws than the cultivation evolution.

The problem was that an ordinary person's Physique could only be improved once in a lifetime and that one time was just one chance, not several attempts. If one failed to improve one's Physique, one would be limited to that quality forever!

On the other hand, one could not simply combine the power of two Saint medicines to achieve this breakthrough.

In the past, tests had been conducted, and people had even tried using 10 Saint medicines of the same type to improve their Physique, but they still failed.

Why was that? Later in the history of this world, along with the appearance of the first Gods, the cultivators discovered that in addition to the amount of energy needed for the process, a special "push" was needed for qualitative advancement.

That push would not come if you tried to combine multiple resources. Only a qualitatively superior resource could provide that push.

Thinking analogously, it is as if there was an energy filter that filtered what went into a reservoir. Adding more medicine would be like adding more faucets to send fluids into that reservoir. But holes on the side of that reservoir prevented all that energy from building up.

For a successful breakthrough, you would need a supply of liquid so intense and with such tremendous pressure that the filter and the reservoir itself would be filled and even destroyed!

Only by destroying the qualitative limitations of a human body could one reach a new Physique level.

Under normal circumstances, adding Saint-grade medicines would not work because of this problem.

But Ruth had experienced something extraordinary!

By receiving a lot of the Spiritual Blessings of the level 100 dragon, her body had evolved, and the side "holes" of her "reservoir" had been closed.

With a Saint-grade medicine, she felt she could provide the pressure needed to 'explode' this lower-grade reservoir.

In Minos' case, he had also greatly improved the quality of his body and Physique and was not far from what Ruth had achieved. But his case was exceptional. His Physique was a mutant that could constantly evolve, relying on higher-level resources to improve itself.

His Physique was becoming more and more like the ancient skeletons of this world. Minos would not risk a breakthrough with Saint-grade medicine. He would use a Divine-grade one and ensure the maximum benefit for himself.

Unlike his other wives, who would have to wait until level 99 to try to evolve their Physiques qualitatively, Minos could do it when he reached level 90.

He then summoned the Saint-grade medicine compatible with Ruth and showed her a black fruit. "Eat it and start meditating. You have a good chance of success after what you received from the ancient dragon."

Ruth felt very confident with the feeling of desire she had in her body, and even though it was risky to go through with it, she didn't hesitate to take it and bite into it.

The other women looked at her in silence, feeling that if it worked, Ruth would be the first person in this world in a long time to achieve a Divine Physique!

She devoured the fruit, immediately sat in the lotus position, and began meditating.

Meanwhile, Minos quickly distributed some defensive and offensive items to his wives and pills for them to take in case they were seriously injured.

He did not want them to use these to strengthen themselves artificially but to protect their lives in case trouble came.

Many of the resources in that spatial ring would be most beneficial to the high-level Sages of the Black Plain Empire who were trying to advance to level 90. Thus, Minos would keep them for his men.

Also, some of those resources would only be useful to mid and high-level Demigods. But he didn't have anyone like that in his group yet.

Minos put those items aside and soon began meditating with his wives.

Chapter 1844 Divine Physique 2

Hours Later...

While the people of Minos' group were leaving their meditative states, ready to leave this space protected by the legacy barrier, Ruth was in a critical state of her meditation.

As she finished recovering from the damage from earlier, Forrest immediately looked at the black-haired woman and frowned.

"What?" He exclaimed as he felt the spiritual fluctuation emanating from Minos' wife's body.

Minos and the rest of his wives were already standing around Ruth, watching along with almost everyone else in this group this woman's passing through the qualitative advancement.

Some were looking around, seeing that the barrier over this area was thinning, and slowly, they could see the various groups outside this place.

Feeling that they had little time, some of them were worried about Ruth being able to get ahead in time.

But when Forrest woke up and saw this, he couldn't help but be shocked.

She is clearly advancing to the Divine grade of her Physique! He realized how pronounced the spiritual fluctuation was around Ruth's body.

The entire body of this black-haired woman was covered with a layer of colored energy that distorted the space around her. It was so dense with laws that it seemed it was not of this world.

But Forrest, as a disciple of the Supreme Pontiff of the Spiritual Church who had already read various records of this organization, knew the signs of a Physique's qualitative advancement to the highest level that existed.

The qualitative advancement of a Physique involved three stages. The first was destruction, which consisted of the spiritual pressure of medicine that destroyed the Physique's limitations. Then came the reconstruction, which was the formation of a new 'cocoon' made of stronger laws that strengthened the particularities of that being. Finally, there was consolidation, the "solidification" of the powers at a new level.

The first two were the most difficult because in order to trigger them, one would have to find special circumstances that would normally only be possible through the use of Divine Medicine.

Not only that, but the evolution process was dangerous. If one failed how he direct his powers during the first two stages of qualitative evolution, even death or mental crippling could happen to such a person.

However, Ruth had already passed these two stages, which showed that she had miraculously obtained something capable of providing enough energy and laws to destroy and rebuild her foundations!

"How?" Forrest muttered, seeing that it was only a matter of time before Ruth would solidify her Physique to the Divine grade!

One of the Demigods in his group answered him, something Minos had already told them a moment ago. "The level 100 dragon could not give them cultivation levels because they were too weak. So, he gave them a qualitative improvement.

Minos and Ruth have reached the highest level of understanding that can be attained at the 9th stage, and their Physique has also reached the peak of the Saint grade. Even with a lower-grade medicine, they could attempt this qualitative evolution with a good chance."

Forrest's mouth dropped open when he heard this, but he did not refute it.

It was indeed possible!

Level 100 beings reached this level after using at least one Divine-grade medicine to increase their spiritual energy and physical characteristics to the maximum. After that, their bodies and souls would be so strong that they could go from changing a person's talents to even giving high-level cultivators advancement levels.

Of course, none of this could be done without sacrifice. Therefore, most Gods only gave things to their heirs after they departed this world when it would no longer be harmful to them to lose part of their soul or body. I think you should take a look at

Considering that inheritance from a Spiritual Church had once raised a Church Cardinal's level from 97 to early 99, Forrest readily believed Minos' justification.

"Unbelievable! Inheritances from Gods are truly fantastic!" He exclaimed in a low voice, watching as the spiritual disturbance in Ruth's surroundings changed and gradually decreased in intensity.

Minos saw this and clenched his fists, sensing his wife was about to complete her qualitative breakthrough.

Five minutes later, while everyone was watching Ruth, she opened her eyes, and a golden glow emanated from them.

Immediately feeling her Physique at a new level, she tested her own powers.

But as she circulated her energies through her Physique, Ruth suddenly frowned as she realized a strange connection with the people in her group.

As she sensed this, Minos' eyes became colorful, and he saw streams of energy, invisible to the others, emanating from Ruth's body and connecting to the bodies of everyone there.

"That's..."

Ruth put some of her energy into the connection she felt with these people, surprising everyone.

"Huh? I feel strange all of a sudden." Isabella was the first to speak up, feeling something different within herself, but it wasn't bad. On the contrary, it was something pleasant.

"I feel something too."

"The same for me."

Everyone there said the same until Minos explained. "We are all affected by Ruth's ability. Before, she could heal herself from almost any kind of injury, poisoning, or illness. Now that she has improved the quality of her ability, it seems she can affect people other than herself."

Realizing this was the case, Forrest couldn't help but congratulate the Stuart family. "Haha, congratulations to you, Ruth, and your family. You have fantastic, unique abilities. With something like this, you can fight together much easier now."

With Abby's army of dead creatures, Minos' control over those creatures' minds, and Ruth's regeneration ability, they could form a team that would be hard to fight in a few years.

The greatest weakness of the cultivators who could use the power of the dead was their bodies. But with Ruth's ability, Abby's defense would be much better, which was very relevant to the strength of the Stuart family.

But then Gloria activated her ability and formed mercury bows, realizing something the others didn't.

"It seems that this also regenerates our spiritual energy. As long as we don't use much of our power, we can even fight continuously without exhausting ourselves!"

Everyone noticed this, and their eyes sparkled with excitement!

Chapter 1845 The Siege

When they realized the extent of Ruth's ability, everyone in the group became excited.

This was an impressive power for a Sage to have!

But this was the reality of the Divine grade!

Normally, people in the Spiritual World believed that all the greatness of the Gods came from their powerful souls. In fact, their souls were so powerful that it was hard to tell how much of their powers were influenced by that alone.

However, their Divine Physiques greatly influenced their powers. After attaining this quality, their innate abilities significantly changed, giving them unimaginable possibilities before the qualitative advancement.

Many people associated how impressive the Gods were with their souls, but much of it was the merit of their innate abilities!

After reaching the Divine grade, Ruth's ability was even able to regenerate the spiritual energy in the bodies of her teammates.

The only weakness of Ruth's ability at the moment was that she was still only a level 81 Sage, and she would not be able to keep her entire group under the effects of her ability for long.

But as long as she got stronger, that would change a lot!

To give you an idea of how ridiculous Ruth's power was right now, she would practically no longer need to cultivate to recover spent spiritual energy. Her own ability could already regenerate everything she consumed for her own use!

Minos smiled at his wife, happy she had succeeded and awakened such great potential. But he didn't stay in that state for long and soon turned back to his wife.

"Raise your guard. Our protection will fall!" Minos said aloud as he activated his Soul Avatar and prepared for the many enemies nearby.

Everyone in his group put their smiles aside and circulated their energies to form their huge, powerful versions.

They quickly formed a circular formation with the Demigods and Minos at the front and Harold and Emperor Stuart's wives in the middle.

An instant after they all raised their guards, cracking sounds were heard above them, and then the entire barrier fell.

Immediately after the barrier fell, they felt the spiritual fluctuations of the four groups waiting for this moment, and each of these beings flew toward them.

'Forty enemies between levels 88 and 93.' Minos immediately counted the number of enemies, a bit stronger than he thought his group could handle.

The team members realized the same thing and had ugly expressions on their faces.

They were not in a situation where they would either give up what they had or die. But their chances of winning without any casualties were not great!

However, the beings from the groups that approached them also noticed the strength of these people.

'Six Demigods and six Sages, most of the latter of low level.' A phoenix flying alongside two nine-tailed foxes thought to herself.

Meanwhile, the people of Mairin's group quickly realized the identities of those people, the group from the Spiritual Church and the group from the Black Plain Empire.

'Emperor Stuart, huh? So that guy came to this event... Is he the one who activated the level 100 legacy?' One of the strongest humans, level 93, thought to himself as he gave Minos a look.

He did not underestimate Emperor Stuart. This guy had great talent, so he might have awakened such an inheritance. If that was the case, then a terrible enemy of Vico and possibly the Western Region was right in front of them.

If Minos escaped and were allowed to grow, he would surely reach level 99 as he had received the level 100 inheritance!

One of the other groups, consisting of humans from the Divine Continent and an elf, was also there, staring intently at Minos' group.

"That human..." The pointy-eared woman looked at Minos strangely, realizing that one of her people had already connected with him.

"Syndra, is there a problem?" One of the elf's allies asked, noticing her strange behavior.

"This level 83 human is linked to someone from my tribe."

When she said that, all the groups finally stopped advancing and stopped a few hundred meters away from each other while surrounding Minos' group.

Before a battle like this, which wouldn't be easy given the strength of each group, each party had to try to engage in dialogue. In certain situations like this, it was possible to negotiate a way out.

If that were not possible, the surrounding groups would at least have to organize to share the enemy's collected resources. Otherwise, the conflict would escalate until only one was left with all the items.

Each party had its own concerns and fears, so no one took the first step in a hurry.

Seeing the enemies floating in the air, Minos looked at the group of three beasts and saw two nine-tailed foxes, one level 88 and one level 89. Next to them was a level 91 phoenix.

Minos then said in a loud voice. "Friends of the Continent of Beasts, do not oppose me. I am a friend of the Nine-Tailed Fox Tribe, and I will soon visit your home. If you do not attack us, I promise to bring gifts to your people."

"Oh? Your Majesty is really good at getting out of trouble, huh?" One of Mairin's natives said aloud, realizing that Minos was trying to destabilize the enemy group.

"Your Majesty, don't tell me you're afraid?"

"I'm afraid I'll have to kill everyone here," Minos confidently said. "Some of you I would rather have on my side. The Spiritual World will soon face a disaster. I'd rather have more friends than enemies when such time comes!"

The elf looked at Minos with narrowed eyes. As an elf, she knew something terrible would happen in the world!

But she didn't know if Minos was serious or trying to escape the trouble. "Your Majesty? Are you a ruler of the Central Continent?"

"I am Minos Stuart of the Black Plain Empire," Minos said to the woman before showing his group. "These are my family and friends from the Spiritual Church. Elf, you must have felt or heard strange rumors in your tribe. You know that something will happen. So do not stand against us today. When the time comes, I will help those willing to fight for the Spiritual World."

But today, I have no intention of sharing what belongs to me with strangers. Stand back, and we can share my wealth when we are on the same side."

"Tsk!" In the other group of humans, also from the western region, one of the men there did not like Minos' words. "Are you afraid, Minos Stuart?"

"As I said, I fear I must kill you all. You are important talents for the future of our world. It would be a shame for you to die here." Minos clenched his fists as he showed his chaotic aura to these people, making even the elf feel uncomfortable.

As Minos showed more of his aura to these beings, they almost felt like a giant dragon was in his place!

Chapter 1846 New Allies

"What?" The level 88 nine-tailed fox shouted as she felt the aura coming from Minos' body while unconsciously lowering her head closer to the ground and returning to her bestial form.

The phoenix of this group also felt impressive pressure coming from Minos and transformed into a huge orange flaming bird.

The elf narrowed her eyes and looked at Minos, feeling a chill in her body that she usually didn't feel in ordinary beings. Only high-ranking individuals of special races caused this sensation in her!

'What is it with him?' The elf wondered. She could clearly feel the chaotic energy in Minos, which was even greater than that of level 95 dragons!

But Minos was only a level 83 young human!

Realizing this, she could not help but become more cautious, trying to understand what this level 100 legacy had given this human.

The personnel of the two groups from the Central Continent narrowed their eyes, forming ugly expressions. They all retreated a few meters, terrified by the sensation coming from Minos' body.

Unlike the beings from Elves Island, Divine Continent, and Continent of Beasts, they knew Minos' abilities very well!

This man could create black holes that could swallow those several levels above his cultivation. However, from what they knew, Minos should not have such a terrifying spiritual fluctuation.

"This is terrible! This person doesn't even look like a human anymore! His aura is like that whale's and the dragons' from before!" One of the people from the Central Continent shouted, feeling that Minos resembled those three creatures who had argued before this event began.

The phoenix narrowed his eyes when he noticed these humans were slightly afraid of Minos. "It seems that his words were not completely unfounded. He really must have a way to kill us."

"What should we do, senior Eos?" The level 89 fox asked, unsure of what to do.

"He said he was a friend of your tribe... Don't you know anything about that?" The big bird asked.

The Phoenix Tribe and the Nine-Tailed Fox Tribe were very close. Not only were they allies on missions, but they also had many partnerships on the Continent of Beasts.

However, they did not know everything about each other's lives!

"No. This is the first time I have heard the name Minos Stuart." The nine-tailed elder behind him commented in a low voice as each of the groups talked to each other.

Aside from the Central Continent, Minos' name only circulated in a few places on the Divine Continent. On the Continent of Beasts, no creature had ever heard his name.

"He must be a prodigy... He must have met a low-level member of our tribe." The level 88 fox said.

"Is that so?" The phoenix asked his companions in a low voice before looking at Minos and asking. "Is what you said true? Are you a friend of their tribe?"

"Yes, a good friend of mine is a level 80 nine-tailed fox. I met her when I rescued her many years ago when she got into trouble trying to hide from the Blood Triangle Pirates.

Anyway, I am going to take her to visit her tribe. I will do that as soon as I leave this Spatial Kingdom. Minos said as he looked at the others around him.

Fighting there would be difficult, but not only that, fighting there against these 4 groups could bring him trouble in the Phoenix and Nine-Tailed Fox tribes, as well as increase his trouble with the Elves. I think you should take a look at Minos didn't want that, so he would rather not have to fight.

When they heard Minos' story, the two foxes believed him and were happy to hear that he had saved one of them from the Blood Triangle Pirates.

Months ago, this group of beasts had 5 members: 3 foxes and 2 phoenixes. But after an encounter with the group sent by Maximillian, which had the future leader of the Blood Triangle Pirates, they lost two of their companions.

After that, these three creatures hated the Evergreen Family group even more!

"Alright, we won't fight you if you help us." The phoenix shouted and moved away from Minos' group, demonstrating that he would retreat if he got something.

"Don't do that!" One of Mairin's humans shouted, sensing that it would be terrible if these beasts left their siege. "Such a human is terrible. Now that he has demonstrated all this power, killing him and his group is our only salvation!"

No matter how few they were, this group had a level 91 phoenix, a member of one of the ten strongest races in the Spiritual World!

The elf group there wanted to say something, but they followed the elf's lead, and seeing that she was silent, none of them said anything.

Minos ignored these humans from the western region and asked. "What do you want?"

"Help us avenge the deaths of our companions. We want your help in finding and fighting Drogo Evergreen's group."

"The emperor's grandson?" Forrest could no longer keep quiet when he saw that this beast wanted to get Minos and the rest of their group into trouble. "Minos, think before you accept this. It could complicate your situation with Maximilian and create something that could be used against you after the war."

Minos already knew that Drogo was the heir to the Evergreen Empire and the future leader of the Blood Triangle Pirates. But he had long ago promised Emlyn that he would help her take revenge for what had happened to her and her late husband.

So he said. "All right, I'll help you. But it will cause me trouble, so you will have to travel and fight with my group from now on."

The two foxes looked around and understood that if the phoenix decided to do this, the other people around them would immediately become their enemies.

But revenge was even more important to these beasts than to ordinary beings!

The dead nine-tailed fox was the wife of the level 89 elder, and the dead level 89 phoenix was a prodigy of her tribe who could become the future tribe leader.

Avenging her was so important to them that they were willing to die for it!

"OK, let's ally!" The flaming bird shouted, attracting the attention of everyone in the area.

Minos smiled upon hearing this, seeing his chances increasing, while Forrest broke out in a cold sweat, thinking of the trouble this would cause them outside of this place.

'Fuck! I'll think about it when I leave this damned Spatial Kingdom!' This level 93 guy decided to 'sweep the dust under the rug.'

Chapter 1847 Time to Battle!

Minos looked at the group of the elf as he saw those beasts looking in the direction of the Central Continent's enemy teams.

"So, what will it be? You don't have to ally with me. As long as you retreat, I will owe you a favor. I'll pay you back when I go to Elves Island for the Continental Tournament." Minos proposed.

He especially disliked elves. Not only were they arrogant, but they also played with the fate of others.

But the previous incident in the Ancestral Sea would not prevent him from having friendly relations with some elves. Minos knew that in the fight against the future enemies of the Spiritual World, the elven tribe would be one of those who could help his group the most.

The elves were few in number. But even though there were only a few thousand of them, each elf had the potential to reach a high level, and many of them eventually became Demigods.

Ignoring them in a catastrophe would be foolish, and Minos was willing to work with them.

He added. "My empire will work to defend this world from the possible catastrophes in its path. You can charge me. I will welcome anyone who is willing to fight, and I will give what I can to feed these people."

Under normal circumstances, the whole group around Minos would ignore his words. After all, who could support even members of the elven tribe?

But Minos had just inherited the legacy of a level 100 dragon!

In known history, only 15 dragons had ever reached level 100. All of them were extremely wealthy, far more than some of the human Gods or even other beast races.

The dragon tribe was one of the oldest in the Spiritual World, and it had existed since the very beginning of the world when the cultivation level limit was level 60!

After the destruction of Panvuter, this remnant, later called the Spiritual World, was weaker than it is now because the cultivate-capable beings were not accustomed to the new cultivation laws. Until their descendants became accustomed to the new reality, they were limited to a shallow level of strength for a long time.

But even though they came from such a time, the Dragon Tribe had accumulated wealth ever since!

Thus, the wealth of a level 100 dragon could not be measured, and Minos' words were not questionable at all. If he wanted to, he really could support even elves!

This elf heard Minos' words and hesitated. As arrogant as they were, elves had one unique characteristic that even their greatest enemy had to recognize their importance. They were the guardians of nature, the beings most in tune with the cultivation laws of the Spiritual World.

They were the ones most concerned with maintaining the order of things and preventing a world disaster. At the same time, any changes in the world would reach the elves first, and they were usually the only ones who could be trusted to act for the world's good.

Many times in the past, the Spiritual World had experienced difficulties that nearly destroyed several ecosystems. But in all of these times of trouble, the elves had shown themselves willing to work for the good of the world.

But make no mistake. They did not do this for the sake of other races. They did it for the sake of the Spiritual World, the world that had blessed them with the most extreme abilities that could make even the strongest of them live long lives, sometimes over 320,000 years!

For this reason, the elf couldn't help but be touched to see this human with great talent and prospects set himself up as a Spiritual World warrior, willing to do anything to protect it.

"Very well, human, I will retreat with my group. But I have the Nature Laws as a witness to your words! If you go back on what you said, may you be struck by lightning!" She said as her eyes glowed an intense green.

After her words, a golden bolt of lightning appeared in the sky of that dimensional pocket, causing an intense sound capable of destroying the eardrums of cultivators without Soul Avatars.

Everyone there noticed this powerful lightning and the ridiculous abilities of these beings from the Elves Island, who could make treaties with beings of other races at will.

Minos had made promises, and she had quickly made the laws of this world validate a contract against him!

Minos bitterly laughed, but he had been sincere. If he did not fight for the Spiritual World in the future, it would be the same as giving up his life, becoming a slave, or being destroyed.

The two groups of humans from the Central Continent were furious when they saw that Minos had made two of the teams surrounding him and his people change sides with just his words.

But they still had most of the humans and Demigods there, so even though they feared Minos' monstrous abilities, they stood their ground.

The elf had nothing more to say and quickly retreated with her group, somewhat surprising her 4 allies from the Divine Continent.

"Syndra, was it worth it?" One of the Demigods asked the level 89 elf. "I think the legacy could have helped us a lot more than he will if he lives."

She said in a low voice as she left through one of the portals in the area. "That human is not simple. He had his destiny tied to one of my tribe members when he was weaker and had not yet received this inheritance... His potential is much greater than you think!"

As this group disappeared from the area, Minos turned his eyes to the western region men and women in the group of about 30.

The two foxes and the phoenix were not in their formation, but they already had enemies in mind and were ready to fight.

Seeing that the enemies would not back down even after his words, Minos gave up trying to talk with them and closed his eyes for a moment.

Then, he consciously used his new ability for the first time!

Dragon's Gaze!

All the humans of the two opposing groups saw Minos' eyes grow huge and felt as if they were small prey in front of the biggest predator of the Spiritual World.

Even the beasts allied with Minos felt pressure on their bodies at that moment, impressed by this human's inherited ability.

In a single moment, all the humans below level 90 felt very bad, as if they would faint.

But when Minos' cultivation level rose to level 85, everything changed, and several bodies fell from the sky, the weakest ones already dead.

Minos' ability was not simple. By raising his cultivation level, he immediately reached a new class that could significantly affect even level 91 enemies.

Even without fusion, Minos was able to defeat several 10th-stage opponents!

Chapter 1848 Sacrifice in Vain

While high-level Sages and even Demigods were falling dead from the sky like raindrops, the enemies of Minos who had endured his new ability were not doing well at all.

Even the strongest one there, level 93, felt sick from Minos' powerful mental move and couldn't help but be shocked by the power of that blow.

"Motherfucker!" The strongest one there shouted, feeling immense hatred towards Minos, but also towards the beasts and the elf who had given up fighting this monster.

If Minos were allowed to continue growing, the Central Continent would have a massive problem in the future!

Maximilian was terrible, but if Minos reached his level, one of the level 93 Demigods did not doubt that things would be even more chaotic for those lands.

Minos seemed to have the same expansionist interests as Maximilian!

New wars of conquest or defense of territories would surely occur if Minos were allowed to grow.

And now, with the resources of a level 100 inheritance, Minos could surely grow much more easily alongside his family and the members of the Black Plain Army!

"Damn it! We can't let him escape. This is no longer a battle for resources but for the peace of the western region!" Another of these men shouted as orange flames rushed towards them.

The level 91 phoenix was already attacking this group alongside Forrest, while the two foxes used their abilities to distract the remaining opponents.

They thought they would fight, but after a single glance from Minos, all the opponents they could face individually had died!

In this case, they quickly joined Minos' group to attack these 10th-stage humans.

They did not have much offensive power, but with their innate mental abilities to manipulate the minds of their targets, they could at least try to reduce the efficacy of these individuals.

Combined with Minos' attack, their chances of success were not small.

Not content with just one attack, Minos immediately caused several swords to emerge from the vacuum of space and slash at the bodies of the remaining 8 individuals in the opposing group.

Forrest used the Seraph's Feathers and targeted the strongest of the enemy group, planning to kill them without much consideration.

He did not want problems with the powers of the Western Region. But when he was attacked, Forrest saw no problem in eliminating all of them!

Seraph's Sword!

After activating his second most powerful offensive skill, a gigantic golden blade appeared in the hands of his Soul Avatar, slicing through space against the enemies who were being attacked from practically all sides.

Amid this, Abby promptly fused her techniques, causing skeletal creatures to emerge from underground.

At the same time, Ruth had linked her innate ability to each group member, including the phoenix and the two nine-tailed foxes.

Ruth had a good impression of Emlyn's tribe because of this beast. So, with those beasts on her side, she did not hesitate to bind those three to her ability.

After sensing this, the phoenix immediately noticed that his spiritual regeneration had increased significantly.

Going above and beyond, he went all out against one of his level 91 opponents.

Phoenix's Feathers!

Boom!

The men coming from the west region felt great pressure. After a few moments of being attacked from all sides with no chance to counterattack, the first fell under Forrest's blade!

By this time, the skeletons that Abby had summoned were already under Minos' mind control, and several of these creatures were making 'suicidal' moves to attack the humans of this group.

Living humans had to be careful when dealing with those of a similar or even higher level. But these summoned creatures had no such problem, and as they attacked with everything they had in the short time they had before collapsing, several of them tried to make direct contact with the enemy bodies.

"Shit! What the fuck is that?" One of those humans felt two level 90 skeletons pinning him down as the phoenix used his feathers to slash at his body.

Seeing the desperation of some of his men suffering similar problems, the strongest one still standing looked at Minos full of hatred and decided to risk himself even if he had to sacrifice himself.

'Dying to kill Minos Stuart is no tragedy for me.' He thought as he used his final move, disappearing from where he was standing and appearing in front of his target.

As he appeared there, he screamed like a crazy man and slashed at Minos' left shoulder with an axe, imagining that he would destroy his target's body with one blow.

While grinning and screaming madly, this man saw that his attack touched Minos' left shoulder, destroying several layers of the young man's defenses and partially damaging his armor.

Using his sacrificial art, this man reached a level of power that would endanger even level 95 Demigods!

With that power, even Minos' high-level grade-4 armor could not completely stop the blow, paving the way for the blade to pierce through the brown-haired man's shoulder.

Minos felt the pain of being hit in the shoulder, but his opponent would die in vain!

Since his body had reached the level of a level 83 dragon, his body's natural resistance was already as strong as that of a level 93 human!

Moreover, since Ruth was sharing her skill with Minos, the cut on his shoulder would only cause him pain without any danger!

"Is that all? You need much more!" Not waiting for this opponent's sacrificial art to bear fruit, Minos immediately used his sword and slashed horizontally at his neck.

As he broke this Soul Avatar's neck in half, Minos and everyone in his group saw the soul projection disappear and the small body of this level 93 Demigod fall from the sky.

He quickly shrank, lost all his life force, and turned pale before his heart stopped beating a second before he crashed to the ground.

At that moment, the battle was decided!

With the last level 93 enemy falling in front of Minos, the remaining 4 level 91 and 92 Demigods had no chance.

Quickly, the rest of Minos' party moved in, and by concentrating their attacks on the remaining four, they would soon end this high-level battle for the resources the level 100 dragon left behind!

Chapter 1849 Back to the Empire

As the last of Minos and his group's enemies fell lifeless to the ground, he and his people lowered their spirits and sighed as the battle ended.

This had been a good battle for them to test their powers after weeks of cultivation and training without running into much danger.

Without Minos' new ability, the new feature of Ruth's regenerative ability, and the change in enemy numbers due to Emperor Stuart's persuasion, everything would have been different.

After finishing another high-level confrontation victoriously, these people smiled and relaxed a bit, sitting down on the outskirts of that destroyed area, while the more exhausted ones there, Abby, Ruth, and Forrest, sat down to meditate.

Seeing many high-level bodies, Minos ignored the fatigue in his body and the slight pain in his left shoulder.

That wound had already closed with Ruth's skill, but the pain would still last for some time.

However, seeing so many useful corpses for nurturing the northern region's spiritual roots, Minos immediately began to collect his spoils.

The spatial rings of these individuals belonged to those who killed them. But who would want those corpses there but the beasts?

Minos asked the phoenix. "Do you want the bodies of this one you killed? It will be useful to me if you don't want it."

"Is that so?" The phoenix muttered. He had only killed one enemy, and only because of the help of Minos' group.

Even though such a body had the potential to feed him for a few months, he didn't care and said. "You can collect it. I'll just keep this person's spatial ring."

Minos gave the rings that now belonged to Forrest's group and this beast, keeping most of the rings due to his earlier attack.

After storing the bodies of each of these beings, he counted his earnings from the spatial rings of the enemies he had killed.

Among them, the richest was the man who had struck Minos' shoulder and left behind incredible artifacts and resources that were likely to be found in this Spatial Kingdom.

Any group that entered this place would always have the secondary goal of finding things for their elders and higher-level experts. So when Minos found some things in those people's spatial rings that were higher than their levels, he did not find it strange and simply celebrated.

Without having to exert himself through searching and several hours of hard work, he had obtained several items for his future Demigods!

Two hours later, Minos' party had finally recovered from the previous battle and left the area where the great lake, the sky whale's advance to level 90, was.

Before leaving, the group had said goodbye to Harold, who had decided to return to the Flaming Empire before the group continued its journey in such a dangerous Spatial Kingdom.

The group had then located one of the portals in this area that led to another pocket of space, through which they carefully made their way to a new part of the Ancient Dragon Spatial Kingdom!

Outside of the Ancient Dragon Spatial Kingdom, several elders from various powers of the Spiritual World were in the area, waiting for the return of their young prodigies.

While a 'mountain' of scales was scanning the area with his eyes closed, a spatial disturbance suddenly appeared from one of those portals, and several experts looked in that direction.

The dragon opened his eyes to see who was returning from that space, but it was not the first to leave his tribe's ancient Spatial Kingdom.

Since more than half of the event had already passed, several low-level individuals who had entered that space and survived had returned to the Flaming Empire.

Seeing that it was only a level 82 human, the giant dragon ignored the red-haired man who had just emerged from one of the portals and closed his eyes again.

But Minos' men in the area and the Edwardstone family soon moved when they saw Harold again, curious to know about this man's earnings and the current situation of Emperor Stuart.

Oswald, a high-ranking elder of the Edwardstone family and a level 89 hybrid, quickly appeared beside Harold to welcome him back to his state.

"Your Majesty, did something happen to the party?" The local imperial family elder asked, anxious to know why his leader had returned alone.

Harold smiled and reassured the men. "Guys, don't worry. Our group is still in one piece. Most of our people have made breakthroughs within this Spatial Kingdom and are still looking for opportunities."

Upon hearing this, Oswald sighed in relief, seeing that all was well with Minos and the rest of the group.

Harold looked in the direction of his capital and said. "Let's talk about their situation in my city. I want to tell everyone in the family about our progress at once."

The men understood, and before the level 89 Sage returned to his post and the three left for Payton, Oswald congratulated Harold on his advancement to level 82.

"Congratulations on your promotion, Your Majesty. The whole empire will rejoice when they hear of it."

Harold smiled, hearing something similar from his family elder.

"This is nothing. The first Demigod of the Black Plain Empire emerged a few days ago!"

"Oh?"

Meanwhile, in another area of the Ancient Dragon Spatial Kingdom, a group of 2 elves, humans, and beasts were facing off against a group of humans from the western region who were arguing at that very moment.

After encountering each other, both sides exchanged a few blows, as both sides had their reasons to believe that the other party had interesting resources.

However, when they realized that their strengths were not far apart and noticed each other's origins, they lowered their spirits when one side proposed a deal.

"Humans of the Eastern Empire, you are enemies of that damned one from the northern region, right?" One of the elves whom Minos had robbed asked, already knowing who this man was after several weeks of traveling through this Spatial Kingdom, meeting several other groups, and fighting for resources and information.

Knowing who these opponents were and who Minos was to them, he thought of an exciting thing.

"Why don't we unite against this damned Minos Stuart? I'll help your group to destroy this filthy human!" The strongest elf declared.

"Oh? Are you enemies of Minos Stuart?" One of the members of the group sent by Vico asked.

"Yes, we had the displeasure of meeting the filthy one weeks ago."

Hearing this, the leader of the group sent by Vico thought about the possibility and felt it might be interesting to ally with this other group with more up-to-date information about Minos' group than the one they had.

"Good, let's join forces to eliminate Minos and his people!"

Chapter 1850 A Problem for the Future

It had been six weeks since Minos' group and the beasts of the Continent of Beasts had joined forces...

After leaving the previous space pocket, Minos' group traveled through another area of the Ancient Dragon Spatial Kingdom, where they had not encountered many problems.

With 7 Demigods between levels 90 and 93 in the group, not many of the teams that entered this Spatial Kingdom could compete with Minos' people.

The pocket of space where they had stopped to search for resources and Calvert Evergreen's group had no challengers to Minos or enemies of those beasts.

As a result, their time in that pocket had been relatively peaceful, with the most they had to do being to protect themselves from the spatial dangers of that unstable place.

Once again, Minos' group had been confronted with a spatial storm and traps left by the dragon tribe.

But without losing any of their companions, Minos' group had made good use of the opportunities offered by this pocket of space. This was especially true for Forrest's group, who had secured several useful resources from their faction elders.

By finding part of the dragon's treasure and 4 corpses of ancient experts who had entered and perished in this space pocket, they had managed to collect several items for their elders.

Minos and his group had also managed to obtain resources for high-level 10th-stage experts in this space, as well as some fact, the only one in the group who had increased strength was the nine-tailed fox, who had previously been at level 88.

interesting resources for high-level Sages.

However, no human in the group had advanced in cultivation. In fact, the only one in the group who had increased strength was the nine-tailed fox, who had previously been at level 88.

With this breakthrough, this fox had reached the maximum level she could achieve with her genetic inheritance and had completed her purpose for entering this dimension!

As the future leader of the Nine-Tailed Fox Tribe, she was ready to take on the responsibility of her tribe once she left this space.

But first, she and her elder and fellow phoenix tribe member wanted revenge!

When the group had explored enough of this pocket, they went through another portal, searching for more resources useful to their people and in the hunt for the Evergreen family group.

Arriving in a new area, Minos and his people remained vigilant as always, for the parts of this Spatial Kingdom had their own dangers.

But as soon as they reached this other part of the former home of the dragons, they all realized that something unpleasant had happened there.

This whole place, which should have been filled with trees and ancient dragon buildings, was devastated, and only the dragon buildings were left standing. All the vegetation and natural components of this area had been destroyed!

In addition, powerful and chaotic energy remained in the atmosphere of this area, telling Minos' group a bit about what had happened there.

"It seems that the dragons that entered this Spatial Kingdom had a high-level battle with the sky whale we saw earlier." Minos was the first to speak up, noticing the dragon's aura mixing with the sky whale's.

His wives and the Demigods of Forrest's group became more serious upon hearing this, sensing how terrible this confrontation had been to leave this area even worse than the other one where the whale had made his advancement.

The phoenix then muttered. "It looks like one of the dragons has died... I can feel a negative sensation in the air."

This beast could talk about it better than anyone else because of his special characteristics, the mythical power of his lineage, and his knowledge of the strongest tribe on the Continent of Beasts.

Dragons and phoenixes were not friends, but they had known each other since the beginning of this world.

"This is terrible. If this sky whale had killed one of these dragons, the two strongest tribes in the world would face each other!"

At the thought of a level 99 dragon facing off against an elder of the sky whale tribe, everyone there felt goosebumps.

This confrontation could plunge the entire Spiritual World into chaos!

"What are we going to do, Minos?" Forrest asked.

"Whatever happened here is out of our control, so let's not worry about the future for now," Minos said to the beasts in his group before answering Forrest. "Let's observe what's going on in this area. It seems that the battle of those three destroyed all the living things in this area, so we can easily search this place for items. After that, we can take a look at that dragon construction."

He pointed toward a spot that should have been covered by vegetation but now only had a layer of dirt and dust over it, not enough to hide it.

With that, the group quickly set out to search the area for any corpses, spatial rings, or artifacts that could have withstood the battle between the three creatures.

Even though there was no vegetation to hinder them in this area, this place was still huge, and it would still take the group 3 hours to check the entire surface before they went to the dragon building.

After checking the entire area, they found some interesting items.

For example, Minos had acquired a dragon tooth, which one of the two dragons had probably lost during the previous battle.

One of the beasts in the group had gotten a piece of diamond in the shape of a dragon's claw, something very valuable in the beast world.

Other than that, the group had only found a few medium-level grade-4 spatial rings.

From the position where they had found these items, it seemed that a group had witnessed the battle of those three, but they had perished in this space as a result.

After dividing these items, the group moved to where the previous dragons had arrived months ago, where they had remained for most of the event.

Arriving at the entrance of this place, which was inside a large cave, they noticed that a massive stone door with several special symbols on it was opened.

In Minos' group, only he understood what was written there.

He frowned. "This is a dragon graveyard!" He remarked, using some of the knowledge the level 100 dragon had given him in the previous legacy.

But since there were no reports of a graveyard in this space, everyone in Minos' group, who knew a lot about the history of this Spatial Kingdom, was surprised and looked strangely at the place's entrance.

But before anyone could ask any questions, they all felt a terrifying aura coming toward them as soon as they passed through the entrance.

"What?"
