Chapter 313 Result Of The Training

"I don't care about anything else, you bastard! You can't touch Luisa!"

Trevor coldly scolded as he narrowed his eyes at Theo, causing him to roar in anger.

He raised his hand and intended to smack Trevor across his face, but he missed.

Trevor subconsciously blocked Theo's attack with his hand even though he was caught off guard.

Witnessing his body move like that made Trevor's eyes light up in excitement. He never thought he could use the skill he learned in the budokan today to counter his opponent's attack.

Bradly also explained a lot of combat skills to him apart from basic training, but he didn't expect that the things Bradly taught him would come in handy so soon.

Once Trevor managed to dodge the attack, he used his elbow to hit Theo's chest before he could attack again.

The sudden impact immediately knocked Theo on the ground as he groaned in pain and covered his chest.

Trevor's eyes widened when he saw Theo on the ground. His gaze then shifted to his hands and gaped at them.

He had only trained for a day, but he didn't expect to make such huge progress when it came to fighting and defending himself.

His muscles were still sore from training, but he had made it.

He wondered how stronger he could become if he continued practicing.

'I guess the training that Bradly made me do isn't so hard after all,' he thought with a smirk.

When the other hooligans noticed that Theo had lost the fight, they roared in anger.

One of them even screamed at the top of his lungs and shouted, "You fucking brat! Do you have a death wish?!"

But even though they were mad at Trevor, they still couldn't believe he knocked Theo down just by using his elbow.

Theo had trouble standing back up at that time, but as soon as he did, he cautiously stayed in place and glared at Trevor.

He didn't want to admit it, but he was terrified of the possibility that Trevor might actually be good at fighting.

Not to mention, he only brought a few of his men this time, so if Trevor had an agreement with the Burke family and cooperated with them, they would most likely be at a disadvantage.

Theo went quiet for a moment as he clenched his jaw, thinking about retreating and backing away from the fight.

Then, he grunted and spun around as he announced, "Just wait, you little twerp. I'll ask more people to help me, and I'll make sure to beat you up until you can't walk anymore!"

The Burke family heaved a sigh of relief when they noticed the hooligans retreat.

However, Keyla wasn't satisfied with the outcome at all. She put her hand on her hip and gave Trevor a disapproving look as she said, "Look at what you did! You offended them! Our family is going to suffer for what you did."

Trevor opened his mouth to explain himself, but before he could do so, Luisa pushed him aside and frowned at Keyla.

"Mom, what the hell are you talking about? Those people were obviously extortionists. They want to make us pay them back by force! None of this has anything to do with Trevor!" Luisa shouted and glared at her. "Besides, do you really want me to be with those hooligans? If Trevor didn't stop them, I would probably be dead by now."

As soon as Keyla noticed how mad her daughter was, she pursed her lips and stayed quiet.

"Let's just forget what happened," Rodney exclaimed with a sigh as he tried to ease the situation. "We don't have time to argue about this anymore. They're going to come back soon, so we have to pack up our stuff and hide in a nearby hotel."

"Fuck, you're right," Keyla said with a frown. "I have to pack up all my jewelry!"

At that point, she didn't care if she made a negative remark against Trevor. All she cared about was herself, and Trevor understood that. He simply shrugged when she immediately packed up her stuff without thanking him for what he had done earlier.

While Rodney and Keyla were busy packing, Luisa came up to him.

She then pointed at the door and said, "Trevor, I can't let you get involved in this. It would be best if you went back to school first. We can solve this problem by ourselves."

Trevor's eyes lit up, knowing that Luisa cared about him.

"Luisa, I'll be fine. You really don't have to worry about me," he reassured. "I'll take you and your family to the hotel so you guys can settle down there. After that, I'll leave. Those people are dangerous, so I can't just leave you alone. I really hope the situation will be better soon, though."

A flash of determination came across Trevor's eyes as he looked at Luisa.

He wouldn't have meddled in the matter if Theo and the other hooligans had come to Balfour and forced him to pay.

Since Luisa was involved in this predicament, he didn't want to idly stand by and wait for a miracle to happen.

Therefore, after Trevor accompanied Luisa and her family to the hotel, he didn't go back to school.

Instead, he drove back to the Burke family's house, knowing that Theo wouldn't back down on his word.

Three minibuses had been parked in front of the house when he got there, and several hooligans were guarding the entire place.

All of them had strange hairstyles and were smoking while playing cards downstairs.

The Burke family made sure to turn off the lights when they left, but when Trevor looked at the window, he noticed that someone had turned them on again. It must be Theo and his men.

He also heard a faint sound of broken glass inside one of the rooms, making him clench his fists in frustration.

At that point, he knew that Theo and his men were back to cause trouble again by vandalizing the Burke family's house.
