Chapter 501 The Necklace Is Much More Expensive

With a snort, Trevor said casually, "Call the police if you lost something. Don't accuse innocent people!"

Obviously, Trevor didn't want the girls to spoil his good time with Luisa.

When Dina heard his words, her face darkened instantly.

Dina placed her hands on her hips as she pointed a finger at Trevor's nose and snapped, "You bastard! How dare you talk to me like that?"

"We don't have to call the police for such trivial matter. I just need to check your pockets and bags if you have my earring or not."

At that time, several boys butted into the conversation as they wanted to please Dina.

"Bro, why are you being so difficult? Just let her search you. It's not even that hard."

"You only have a few pockets and your girl only has a bag. It won't take much time."

Everyone criticized Trevor at once. They seemed to believe that he had stolen Dina's earring.

Because of the way the guys were accusing him, Trevor became angry. Right now, he wanted to give them a few slaps to wake them up.

As Luisa wanted to avoid the fight, she persuaded Trevor softly.

"Just let them do it, Trevor. Your wounds have just healed. You shouldn't fight with them. If they want to check, just let them check. It's not like we have done something."

At that time, Dina smugly grabbed Luisa's bag and opened it.

While looking through her bag, Dina said, "My pearl earrings are not only made of natural pearls, but also they are customized. Not everyone can have it..."

All of a sudden, Dina stopped talking. Then, she took out a pink diamond necklace from Luisa's bag.

A big pink diamond stood proudly in the middle of the necklace and it was the biggest gem on it.

In fact, Trevor gave it to her when he confessed his love to Luisa. However, Luisa didn't wear it much as she treasured it so much.

Seeing the big diamond on the necklace, Dina and her friends became dumbfounded.

Furrowing her eyebrows, Baila exclaimed, "No way. It must be fake!" To have a closer look, Baila grabbed the necklace and looked at it.

Suddenly, she felt depressed. What if the necklace wasn't fake? It would mean that one of them, either Trevor or Luisa, or both were richer than Boaz!

Not wanting to believe that it was real, Dina comforted herself, "Yeah, it must be a fake one!"

All of them knew that they would be doomed if they offended someone who was rich.

At that time, a cold and melodious voice sounded from the crowd, "That pink diamond necklace is real."

When everyone turned to look at the direction where the voice came from, they found a woman who was wearing a purple swimsuit. She had smooth skin and she was extremely beautiful and hot.

Once the boys saw her, they suddenly felt that Dina and her friends weren't attractive anymore.

In an instant, the beautiful woman got in front of Baila. Then, she took the necklace from Baila and examined it before saying, "This is the pink diamond necklace that was sold at an auction in London three years ago. The price is five million dollars!

Compared to this, your pearl earring that cost only ten thousand dollars is nothing. It's not even equal in value to the smallest diamond on this necklace!"

After listening to the woman's explanation, no one thought that Trevor had stolen Dina's pearl earring now.

After all, why would a rich person steal such kind of cheap thing?

At this point, what the man in front of them said was indeed true. He really didn't care about the cheap earring at all!

On the other hand, Dina felt so humiliated that she wished she could find a hole to hide herself.

Nodding his head, Trevor snorted and said, "So, what else do you want to say?"

Not knowing what to do, all the girls looked at each other. Then, they all turned to look at Baila with hatred in their eyes.

They wouldn't be in this mess if it weren't for her! Now, they had offended a rich young man!

At this moment, Baila could only depend on Dina.

Therefore, Dina had no choice but to bite the bullet and said, "Well, I think we misunderstood you. I apologize for my behavior. You won't embarrass the ladies in front of everyone, would you?"

Hearing this, Trevor sneered and said, "You still dare to use the fact that you are girls. I won't let this go easily because I'll make things difficult for you today!

Didn't you say that your earring was lost? I'm going to give you two choices. It's either you find it now or call the police to deal with the matter."

In fact, she just made up that lie as she wanted to slander them. So, of course, she didn't lose anything.

The truth was, Trevor also knew that she lied. Therefore, he wanted to humiliate them in front of everyone.

When Dina heard Trevor's words, her face turned blue and pale. The thing was, this was just a setup. At normal times, she would be detained for two days and that was not a big deal for her. However, she couldn't risk it as Mr. Sanderson was coming to the dinner party tonight!

Therefore, she had no choice but to take out the earring from her bag where she put it in before.

As if she just realized it was there, Dina said, "Oh, it's here. It's my fault for not searching it properly. I'm sorry."

However, no one believed her words as it was obvious that she was lying.

"You deliberately wore only one of a pair of earrings. I think you are just fooling us!"

"Wow, I didn't know she would be so scheming. I can't believe I pitied her just now."

"That is disgusting. Shame on you, girl!"

Hearing the words of the crowd, all the girls lowered their heads in shame.

Trevor only sneered when he heard her pathetic excuse.

However, now that he had made them feel humiliated, Trevor didn't want to have anything to do with them anymore.

Waving his hand dismissively, Trevor snapped, "Just get out of here! I don't want to see you guys anymore. It's annoying."

Chapter 502 The Ridiculous People

After Dina and the others left all ashamed and embarrassed, the onlookers dispersed as well.

Luisa then turned to the beautiful woman who had just helped them and said sincerely, "Thank you!"

"You're welcome." As the woman spoke, she handed Luisa the diamond necklace. "Here you are. It's so precious. You'd better keep it well."

With a smile, Trevor asked the woman, "Hey, did you also come to this island to have fun? Where is your friend?"

The woman was cold towards men and only displayed a polite smile.

"I came here with my family. I wasn't in a great mood, so I went out for a walk alone," she explained simply.

Trevor nodded silently. He didn't care that the woman was cold to him.

However, he felt that the woman's appearance and her voluptuous figure looked rather familiar.

Where on earth had he met someone who looked like this woman?

Then, he thought of Lois.

Trevor suddenly had a guess.

After inquiring, it turned out that the woman was indeed Toby's granddaughter, Tasha Byrd!

'Toby had said he would take his granddaughter to go on a blind date at his old friend's place. Why then did he come to this island instead? Was this the site they chose for the blind date?'

While Trevor was thinking, Luisa and Tasha were chatting happily.

Holding Tasha's hand, Luisa smiled and said, "Tasha, my name is Luisa and this is my boyfriend, Trevor Sanderson."

Upon hearing Trevor's name, Tasha frowned and asked Trevor, "Are you a member of the Sanderson family?"

Trevor was obviously expecting this question. He couldn't help laughing and replied, "Yeah, I'm the member of the Sanderson family."

Tasha figured she hadn't been specific enough in her question, so she said again, "I mean the Sanderson family owning this island."

Luisa replied on Trevor's behalf, "Yes, but this is the first time we've been to this island."

Tasha looked dubiously at Trevor and said, "If you didn't already have a girlfriend, I would have thought you were the one my grandpa arranged for me to go on a blind date. Since you are a member of the Sanderson family, do you know who they are holding this blind date for?"

Trevor was rather confused now and he explained, "Well, I've never been to this island before, and except for my close family, I don't know much about other family members. I have never contacted them."

Tasha sighed and said, "Well, I just hope he won't be a disappointing guy."

In fact, Tasha thought Trevor was just an insignificant person in the Sanderson family.

Since he didn't seem to know much about the family, he certainly had a very low family status in the Sanderson family.

Trevor, meanwhile, was a little embarrassed.

The thing was, he didn't expect that Toby and his granddaughter had a close relationship with his family.

Trevor couldn't wait to see his grandfather. Thus, he would have the opportunity to see for which playboy this blind date was organized.

Trevor had already made up his mind to keep a distance from the playboy in the future, lest he should be misled!

After they parted ways with Tasha, Trevor and Luisa had a good time on the island in the afternoon.

When it was getting dark, Bradley informed Trevor and Luisa that the welcome party on the ship was about to begin.

However, when they went back to the dock, they were amazed to see a long queue with many young and beautiful women.

Trevor was puzzled. Wasn't it supposed to be his welcome party? Why then were there so many people waiting in line here?

Not only were there many beautiful girls, but there were also some well-dressed and visibly successful men chatting with those pretty girls.

Luisa, who was as puzzled as Trevor, asked curiously, "Is the blind date that your family is organizing also going to be held here? It's your family's business after all. I won't be surprised that they decide to hold a blind date at the same time on the cruise ship. Perhaps that's why all these girls are here!"

Trevor felt really embarrassed. He held Luisa's hand tightly and said, "These people are really ridiculous. But fortunately, I have you."

Luisa was deeply moved by what Trevor said.

Suddenly, a familiar voice came from behind them.

"Damn it. You two are also here. What a bad luck today!"

Dina pinched her nose as if there was something smelling in front of her.

Baila chipped in, "That's right, what a bad luck! Anyways, it doesn't matter that you have money to buy a pink diamond necklace. You are nothing compared to Mr. Sanderson who will soon show up on this cruise!"

Chapter 503 Double Standard

Trevor and Luisa paid no attention to the girls.

In fact, they did not take the girls' words seriously at all.

However, the more the girls talked, the more incredulous the two felt.

Trevor and Mr. Sanderson were the same person. He must say, these girls were blind for not being able to see it.

At this moment, he cast a glance in the girls' direction and then held Luisa's hand. "Luisa, let's go."

The party was going to start soon.

Trevor figured that he needed to board the cruise ship now and make necessary preparations so that he and Luisa could attend the banquet.

"Stop!"

Just as Trevor was about to take a step forward, Baila grabbed his arm.

"What the hell are you doing?!" Trevor stared daggers at Baila, making her withdraw her hand in fear.

His face had gotten dark and gloomy after being pestered by the group again and again.

Baila took two steps back. But when she realized that a lot of people were watching, she regained her courage.

"We've been in line for quite a while now, but you just jumped the queue like you own this place. To think, you had the nerve to scold me at the ice cream shop. This is one of a hell of a double standard, you know?"

"That's right. Everyone here is waiting in line. How can you jump the line?"

Sadly for her, only a few of her friends sided with her.

Most of the people here were successful and noble, and the other girls were restraining themselves from doing and saying anything rash.

Nobody dared to follow suit voice out their opinions.

Trevor glanced at Luisa and chuckled. He found the girls' words both hilarious and annoying.

He might not be the one who would participate in the blind date, but he was a member of the Sanderson family.

This was his family's cruise. He could get on whenever he wanted. Waiting in line was what the guests had to do.

After a long period of silence, Luisa decided to ask Trevor what she had been meaning to ask.

"What do you think, Trevor? Are you going to tell them who you are?"

Dina scoffed, "You think you're somebody, huh? Why don't you tell everyone who you are?"

She wanted to ridicule Trevor and make a fool out of him. But when Luisa's diamond necklace earlier crossed her mind, she swallowed the rest of her words.

Trevor must be somebody, she guessed.

Dina surmised that he must be richer and more powerful than her. Nevertheless, in her mind, he was no match for the mysterious Mr. Sanderson.

That was the reason why she found it disrespectful that Trevor could board the cruise ship without waiting in line.

Trevor took a deep breath and calmly said, "Sure. The reason I didn't queue up is that I'm a Sanderson."

He did not tell the girls his first name thinking that they would badger him more.

Although these girls were pretty, their true colors were repulsive.

These girls acted as if they were noble in front of ordinary people. But in front of the rich, they would act so humble so as to please them.

The crowd fell silent when they heard Trevor's words.

Then, they started whispering to one another all at once.

They believed that nobody would dare to pretend to be a Sanderson, especially here. Some were even skeptical as this was the first time they had seen Trevor.

"Is this guy really from the Sanderson family? Hey, don't you know any of the Sanderson family?" a guest whispered to the person next to her.

"I've never seen this young man before," another said.

"Well, the Sanderson family is one of the most prominent clans in the country. I guess it's just natural for me not to know the younger generation of their family."

This was the first time Trevor had come here, so nobody among the guests knew who he really was.

This made people wonder if Trevor was indeed a member of the Sanderson family.

Hearing the whispers around them, Dina and the other girls felt a little flustered.

Only they saw the pink diamond necklace Trevor's girlfriend had. What he was saying must be true.

But, if Trevor was really a member of the Sanderson family, they would be in big trouble.

"Dina, what should we do?" Baila asked in panic.

She was the one who caused trouble with Trevor. If he were to punish them, for sure, she would have it worse than her companions.

"Don't panic! He has a girlfriend, so he must not be the one who'll be on the blind date. I heard that the one who'll pick a girlfriend from the single girls today is the most powerful young man in the Sanderson family! As long as Mr. Sanderson favors one of us, this collateral relative may even have to apologize to us in the end," Dina reassured in a low voice. She was the backbone of the group. She could not panic.

The girls calmed down after hearing Dina's reassurance.

Trevor scoffed when he heard what she had said.

He did not care how powerful other members of his family were.

However, his grandpa was the patriarch of the entire clan. Since when did he become a collateral relative?

With a sneer tugging at the corners of his mouth, Trevor dialed a number and put it on speaker.

Bradly answered the call after only two rings.

"Mr. Sanderson, what can I do for you?"

"I'm at the boarding area of the cruise ship. Send someone to pick me up," Trevor replied.

"Copy that, Mr. Sanderson." Bradly hung up the phone as soon as he finished speaking and went to make the arrangements.

Baila was not convinced, though. She pouted and mumbled, "Humph! Just keep pretending. Let's see how long you can keep this going."

What Trevor had just done made her believe in Dina's conclusion and despise him even more.

Only a collateral relative would feel the need to show off on such an occasion.

Baila swore that when she finally saw the real Mr. Sanderson later, she would complain to him about Trevor!

Chapter 504 The Real Mr. Sanderson

As Trevor was stalled here, the boarding ladder of the cruise wasn't released.

After some time, people started whispering among themselves.

"What is the Sanderson family doing? I don't know if they are waiting for that Mr. Sanderson or if they are deliberately ignoring us."

"I know right. Why aren't they letting us get on the cruise?"

Hearing the discussions of the people, Dina and her friends became annoyed.

"Why don't you guys shut up? Mr. Sanderson is a noble man. So, what if we have to wait a little longer? It's not a big deal."

"This is called the calm demeanor of the real rich man. Do you understand?"

When Trevor saw the way the girls were defending his family, he couldn't help but chuckle.

Even though he was the member of the Sanderson family, he didn't do anything yet there were outsiders who were eager to do the job for him.

When Baila heard his laughter, she stared at him with a frown and said, "We are defending the real Mr. Sanderson. What's there to laugh? I'm going to teach you a lesson when I meet Mr. Sanderson!"

Trevor chuckled and muttered, "You want to teach me a lesson?" Her words only made him even more amused. He didn't know whether he should laugh or cry.

Who could even beat him up in his own territory?

Holding her head high, Baila said excitedly, "Let me tell you. You can't compare with Mr. Sanderson. Stop talking nonsense!"

In her mind, she was hoping to leave a good impression on the real Mr. Sanderson when she saw him.

After that, she would complain to Mr. Sanderson about the things Trevor had done and said!

At that time, under the lead of Bradley, an honor guard went down the cruise ladder.

Once they got to the ground, they spread the red carpet, making the way to the cruise.

The honor guard were divided into left and right sides. Then, they stood gracefully on each side of the red carpet.

Not long after, Bradley gave an order, "Music!"

At first, burst of drums sounded first. Then, it was followed by the melodious saxophone and the performance of several instruments such as piccolo and flute.

The grand opening of the ceremony shocked everyone.

At that time, Dina shouted in excitement, "Oh my god! It must be Mr. Sanderson!"

Hearing this, everyone started to look around, hoping to see the great Mr. Sanderson.

"The protagonist of tonight is Mr. Sanderson. So, he should be the one to be welcomed with a grand ceremony."

"But where is he? Where is Mr. Sanderson? I don't see anyone."

Now that Mr. Sanderson finally made an appearance, many people couldn't wait to make friends with him.

Of course, the young women waiting in line were no exception. Their eyes were shining with anticipation.

When Bradly started moving towards the crowd, he got everyone's attention.

It was obvious that this tough man who looked like a bodyguard was here to welcome Mr. Sanderson!

Therefore, he must be walking towards Mr. Sanderson!

On the other hand, Trevor didn't think that Bradly would welcome him so grandly like this. Therefore, he was surprised.

'Did they prepare it to welcome the playboy of my family?'

Without thinking too much, Trevor held Luisa's hand and started walking towards Bradly.

Seeing his actions, Dina shouted with a frown on her face, "Hey! Are you crazy? This ceremony is to welcome the real Mr. Sanderson! Not for you!"

Dina and the girls didn't think that Trevor was the most honorable Mr. Sanderson of the Sanderson family!

However, what happened next surprised everyone.

At that time, Bradly bowed respectfully to Trevor as he greeted, "Mr. Sanderson!" The way he was bowing showed that Trevor's status was extraordinary!

After that, Bradly invited Trevor and Luisa to the red carpet!

The scene in front of them froze Dina and the others. With wide eyes, Dina muttered, "What? Is he the famous Mr. Sanderson?"

Everyone around was also shocked. However, when they noticed Luisa, some of them guessed, "Do you see the girl beside him? He isn't the Mr. Sanderson who is here for the blind date. I think he is just a close cousin."

Although Trevor heard their words, he didn't want to explain about it. After all, he wasn't the playboy.

All of a sudden, Trevor stopped walking. Then, he pointed at Dina and her friends before saying, "By the way, they aren't allowed to participate in this party."

Since these girls were evil people with bad intentions, he didn't want to see them on the cruise anymore.

Without hesitating, Bradley answered, "As you wish, Mr. Sanderson." Immediately, he called several men who were in charge of inspection and registration to fulfill Trevor's request.

Immediately, Dina and the other girls went pale. Right now, they seriously regretted their actions.

Trevor's order was like thunder struck on their heads.

In a daze, Dina muttered absentmindedly, "Everything is gone..."

This whole time, she had been thinking that she was going to have a chance to experience the real life of a rich family.

Now, her beautiful dream was over before it could even begin.

At that time, a loud slap echoed.

Actually, it was Dina who slapped Baila hard on the face.

Gritting her teeth, Dina shouted, "This is all your fault!"

Under the lead of Dina, all the other girls started cursing Baila as well.

If it weren't for Baila, they would have been on the cruise, enjoying the life of the rich people.

Soon, the quarrel became fierce. They started to pull each other's hair and pinched each other.

Just like that, the group of girls lost their decency to maintain their dignity. The sight was really ugly. It was like a battle between shrews!

Chapter 505 An Awkward Encounter

When the girls started fighting with each other, Trevor shook his head speechlessly.

Nonetheless, he didn't bother to meddle in their business anymore.

Without paying much attention to them, Trevor took Luisa's hand and followed Bradley to the cruise ship.

As the clothes they were wearing wasn't suitable for the party, the two of them went back to their room to change their clothes.

After changing their clothes, they went back to the deck. At that time, in addition to the waiters, there were many girls on the deck.

There was no doubt that they were all very beautiful.

Furrowing his eyebrows, Trevor muttered, "What on earth is going on? Why are there so many girls? Did Bradly tell them the wrong address?"

Trevor's mind was filled with so many doubts.

But how would a capable assistant like Bradly make such kind of mistake?

With a frown on her face, Luisa asked in confusion, "Are we at the place for a blind date?"

When he couldn't think of a reason, Trevor agreed with Luisa.

"Yeah, I think so too. Let's go and ask Bradly about it."

Every girl turned to look at Trevor when they saw him walking towards the crowd.

Even though he was with Luisa, many girls stared at him with flirty eyes. Under the limelight, Trevor couldn't help but feel embarrassed.

After all, he wasn't here for a blind date. Therefore, he didn't want them to look at him like that!

Trevor felt morose in his heart.

The two of them walked towards the back to the deck that was a little far away from the beautiful girls.

Only then could Trevor breathe a sigh of relief. However, not long after, two old men came over towards them. Both of them were acquaintances!

Raising his eyebrows, Trevor stared at them.

One of the men was Toby who he met on Platinum while the other old man was the one who he just had a chat with not long ago.

In order to hide his embarrassment, Trevor greeted them warmly.

"Good evening, Mr. Byrd and Sir..."

Hearing his greetings, Elwood Sanderson felt a little annoyed. Although Trevor was his grandson, he greeted Toby first!

Immediately, Toby's expression changed slightly.

In fact, when Toby met Trevor on Platinum, he had already guessed that he was Elwood's grandson. Now, he had confirmed his guess.

After asking about the whole story that happened on Platinum, Toby looked at Trevor playfully and teased, "You guys must have seen the blind date party over there?"

With a nod, Trevor said awkwardly, "I really don't understand this. I mean who is ridiculous enough to come up with this kind of bad idea for his grandson and invite so many girls for the blind date? To be honest, I felt really uncomfortable staying in that kind of place. So, I left there quickly."

When Elwood heard his words, he became really angry.

Not only Trevor brought a girlfriend without his permission, but also he ridiculed him for arranging a blind date for him!

Thinking about it, Elwood said with a gloomy look on his face, "It's my idea. Do you have any problem with that?"

Hearing this, Trevor's eyes widened. Who would have thought that the person behind the event would be standing in front of him?

When Trevor met him before, he thought that the old man was a kind person.

Therefore, he didn't expect him to do this kind of ridiculous thing.

Suddenly, a thought flashed in his mind. Since he planned the blind date, it meant he was also a member of Trevor's family.

Then, how should he address him now?

After thinking for a while, Trevor thought that he should say something to persuade Elwood since they were relatives.

"Actually, I don't think it's a good idea. I'm not talking about the blind date. But the fact that you invited so many people at the same time is a bit ridiculous. What kind of playboy is your grandson?"

On the other hand, Elwood was amused to hear his words. Shaking his head with a smile on his face, he said, "Brat, I'm your grandfather! Why are you insulting yourself?"

Chapter 506 Trevor Is The Playboy

'What? I'm his grandson? Really?'

At first, Trevor was stunned for a moment. When he finally processed his words, his eyes widened.

It meant the old man in front of him was none other than his grandfather!

It was the reason why Trevor felt that he was familiar and amiable when they first met.

However, when Trevor thought about it, he realized that the blind date was held for him!

'Does that mean I have been calling myself the playboy the whole time?'

Immediately, Trevor felt embarrassed and he wanted to disappear at the moment.

Only then did Trevor know who his grandfather was.

When he came back to his senses, Trevor started calling Elwood "grandpa" which made the old man happy again.

After talking for a while, Trevor looked at Luisa and said in a firm voice, "Grandpa, this is my girlfriend, Luisa. You don't have to hold any blind date for me because I have her."

In fact, Trevor believed that the kindness shown by Luisa when she met his grandfather for the first time left a good impression on him.

At that time, Luisa held Trevor's hand nervously and said seriously, "Mr. Sanderson, we really love each other."

For some time, Elwood studied Trevor and Luisa. Then, he said, "I don't doubt your love for each other."

After saying that, he heaved a sigh and added, "But as far as I know, Luisa comes from an ordinary family. You two are not from the same social rank. So, I'm afraid I can't agree to your relationship!"

Elwood's words made Trevor frown. He had expected this kind of reaction since his father had warned him about it.

Elwood really cared about the social status of a family.

Truth be told, Luisa's family was above average in Jork.

Nonetheless, her family was insignificant compared with a business tycoon like the Sanderson family.

As Trevor liked Luisa very much, he couldn't give up just because his grandfather didn't approve their relationship.

However, Trevor still tried to convince his grandfather.

In a firm voice, Trevor argued, "Grandpa, no one arranges marriage in this era. Besides, it doesn't matter that much whether Luisa's family is of high status since the Sanderson family is powerful."

Elwood knocked on the cane in his hand and scolded, "Do you think the Sanderson family has no enemies? If something happens, I don't think this girl will be able to help you. If anything, she might even drag you down!"

From his grandfather's point of view, his words were reasonable and Trevor understood that.

However, he believed that he and Luisa would be able to overcome all the obstacles they might encounter in the future.

Trevor took a deep breath and said solemnly, "Grandpa, Luisa and I can support each other in dangerous situations just like we did when we were under the threat of the pirates. Our love for each other is true and priceless! Why don't we make an agreement? No matter what kind of test you give, I will overcome it with Luisa. If we did, will you approve our relationship?"

His words showed determination and confidence he had in their relationship.

In fact, this was the promise Trevor and Luisa made after getting rid of the threat of the pirates.

They promised that they would be there for each other no matter what problems they would face in the future.

Seeing the firm attitude of Trevor, Elwood's eyes lit up.

At that time, Toby also nodded approvingly and persuaded Elwood, "They have experienced life and death together. I don't think you can separate them at this point. Plus, you have always worried that he will find a girlfriend who only cares about the Sanderson family's money. But obviously, this girl has no interest in it."

As if he was thinking about something seriously, Elwood closed his eyes and kept silent for some time.

In the end, he shook his head and sighed helplessly. It was needless to say that he had failed to persuade his grandson to change his mind.

After some time, he looked at Trevor and Luisa as he said in a low voice, "Okay. You two can be together, but...both of you have to pass my test!"

Chapter 507 A Difficult Test

Now that Elwood finally agreed, Trevor and Luisa hugged each other happily.

Luisa was jumping up and down in excitement.

Seeing the love between the two of them, Elwood felt complicated.

On one hand, he was glad that his grandson found true love.

On the other hand, he felt that it was such a pity that Luisa couldn't be helpful for Trevor.

To get attention from the couple, Elwood cleared his throat.

After that, he said in a serious voice, "Don't be so excited, Trevor. My test is very difficult!"

With a smile on his face, Trevor said confidently, "Grandpa, just say it. We will complete whatever the test is!"

Nodding his head, Elwood turned to look at Luisa and said, "Well, if you want to be Trevor's girlfriend, you need to be able to help him manage the company. So, I'll arrange a company in Jork and you have to run it. I want you to make it a better commercial company in five years!"

In fact, this test sounded easy as many companies would take the initiative to cooperate as long as the Sanderson family invested.

Of course, Elwood wouldn't make it easy for them. Not long after, he added his conditions.

"But, no one will know that the company has something to do with the Sanderson family. In order words, the other companies that are under the Sanderson family won't give you any form of assistance in the future! Besides, the company I will arrange for you must have a market value of more than one billion. What you have to do is to double the amount in five years. Only then will you pass the test!"

Since the tasks weren't easy, Luisa subconsciously held Trevor's hand tightly and said firmly, "I will try my best to complete the test, Mr. Sanderson!"

When Elwood saw the look of determination on Luisa's face, a sense of appreciation flashed in his eyes.

At that time, Trevor said thoughtfully, "Grandpa, we won't assist Luisa in any form, but if both sides can make profit, our companies in Jork shouldn't refuse the chance to cooperate, right? I mean if we refuse the chance to make money, then..."

With a smile on his face, Trevor pointed his head. Of course, his suggestion was obvious. He was finding ways to help Luisa.

Hearing his grandson's words, Elwood didn't know whether to cry or laugh. Frowning, he glared at Trevor and said, "You sneaky brat!"

After thinking for a while, Elwood said, "Okay then. If she has the ability to create that kind of opportunity, the two sides can naturally cooperate."

After telling Luisa about the test, Elwood stared at Trevor and said seriously, "As for you, you don't have to go back to Jork for some time. I will arrange for you to live and study in another city to sharpen your skills. There, you will work in the company of the Byrd family. Besides, Bradley will take the responsibility to train you more rigorously."

Hearing this, Trevor could only nod solemnly. He felt that his grandfather was serious when he made these requests.

Obviously, the couple had no choice but to separate for some time. However, that didn't stop them from expressing their commitment to each other.

They promised that they would definitely work hard to be together.

A smile broke out on Elwood's face when he saw the determined looks on them.

Then, he said, "Well, have a good rest during your vacation. I don't think you can have a rest like this once the test begins!"

If her family background was put aside, the old man actually liked Luisa because of her lovely personality and smartness.

Moreover, as Trevor had just recovered, he wasn't in a hurry to carry out the test.

After talking for some time, Trevor waved goodbye to the two old people. After that, the two of them didn't go back to the deck.

In the end, they decided to find somewhere to eat.

At that time, they met Tasha and Lois.

The three girls chatted happily as they ate.

At that time, Trevor looked a little embarrassed. After all, he was the protagonist of today's blind date that Tasha had complained about.

Looking at the girls, Trevor thought to himself, 'If Tasha and the girls outside found out that I am the one who stood them up blatantly, how will they react? Well, it would be better to leave this mess to my Grandpa.'

However, when Tasha didn't mention about the blind date, Trevor felt less embarrassed than before.

When they were eating, a tall man, who was wearing a white suit, walked towards them.

At first, Trevor thought that the man was coming over to accost three girls. However, the man came straight towards him and introduced himself, "Hey, you must be my cousin, Trevor. My name is Lenard Sanderson. Finally, I get to meet you!"

As soon as he finished saying that, Lenard put his arm around Trevor's shoulder, as if they were close friends.

Since Trevor wasn't expecting it, he was stunned. Moreover, this was the first time he met the younger generation of the Sanderson family ever since he got to the island.

Right now, all he knew was that someone from the Sanderson family wanted to kill him.

Thinking about it, he immediately pushed the man's arm away and pretended as if he was confused and said, "Hello, Lenard. Is there something I can do for you?"

Not minding Trevor's vigilant actions, Lenard leaned closer to his ears and said excitedly, "Ha-ha, this is your first time here, right? So, I want to take you to a good place around here!"

Hearing his words, Trevor raised his eyebrows in suspicion.

Trevor studied his expression and thought, 'Why does he look so enthusiastic? Does he have anything to do with the person who is trying to kill me?'

After thinking for some time, Trevor agreed to go with him.

After all, they were under his grandfather's protection and the other party was inviting him blatantly.

Therefore, even if he wanted to kill Trevor, he wouldn't dare to make a move under Elwood's nose.

Moreover, Trevor wanted to know what his cousin was planning. Maybe he might find some new clues...

Chapter 508 A Fraud

This time, Lenard took Trevor and the others to an antique shop.

As soon as they entered the door, the vintage sense brought a strong visual impact.

There were antique wooden tables and chairs and glittering weapons.

There was also a bronze furnace emitting wisps of mysterious and fragrant white smoke, making people feel relaxed.

Lenard asked Trevor and the others to sit down.

Then he said, "Have a seat first. I'll ask my friend to take out some precious antiques for you to look at."

Trevor nodded. What he heard piqued his interest.

It didn't matter if Lenard invited them to simply see and appreciate the antiques.

As the son of the Sanderson family, he knew something about antiques even if he was not an expert in this field.

And today, there was Tasha to teach them. It was not bad to take the opportunity to learn.

As soon as Lenard walked into the back room, the owner of the antique shop hurriedly came up to him with a snicker. Actually, he had been waiting there for a long time.

"Hey, Lenard! Is Trevor here?"

"Of course, he's here. I've already tested him. He doesn't know anything about antiques," Lenard said proudly.

They looked at each other with wicked smiles on their faces.

They were going to rip Trevor off today.

With wishful thinking, they moved out the antiques they had prepared.

But when the antique shop owner saw Tasha, he frowned.

He felt that she looked a little familiar.

However, at this time, all he could think of was swindling money.

So when he tried to recall where he saw Tasha but failed to remember it, he put this thought aside.

The antique shop owner started to warmly introduce the origins of the antiques and handed them to Lenard one by one.

He wanted everyone to take turns checking them.

"Trevor, look at this purple clay teapot. It looks as smooth and round as a jade."

Lenard introduced the antique teapot to Trevor warmly and handed it to him.

Trevor squinted his eyes and looked at Lenard up and down. Then he held the teapot in his hand and checked it carefully.

Although he didn't know Lenard's plan, the purple clay teapot was indeed as good as Lenard said.

After checking it, Trevor passed the purple clay teapot to Luisa and Lois to look at.

Tasha, on the other hand, was not interested in the antiques displayed by the antique shop owner at all. Her grandfather, Toby was also interested in this field, so she had already seen a lot of this kind because of him.

Everything went on smoothly with no trouble.

But when Trevor took the bigger blue and white porcelain from Lenard's hand again, he heard a cracking sound from the inside before he could observe it carefully.

He couldn't help raising his eyebrows. He didn't use too much strength. How could the vase break?

Everyone in the room exchanged glances.

The antique shop owner was stunned for a moment. Then he showed a painful expression on his face and cried out, "Oh, my! This is the famous blue and white porcelain vase. It's the most expensive one in my collection."

Lenard clicked his tongue in cooperation and asked, "Boss, how much is this vase worth?"

The owner gritted his teeth and answered, "I bought this vase at an auction for eight million dollars."

Then Lenard turned to Trevor with an embarrassed look and said, "Hey, Trevor, it's all my fault. I shouldn't have brought you here. I'm sorry, I didn't expect such an accident to happen. How about this? I will pay the three million dollars, and you cover the rest."

He pretended to be generous by wanting to help pay a part of the amount.

But deep inside him, he was snickering.

As a relative of the Sanderson family, Lenard got a dividend of about ten million dollars every year.

If he succeeded in his plan this time, he would swindle five million dollars from Trevor with a fake antique.

Lenard fantasized about counting the money and was quite pleased in his heart.

He thought, 'Ha-ha! Maybe this ignorant young man will be tricked by me. In the end, he has to thank me for paying the three million dollars for him.'

Chapter 509 It Is Fake!

As Lenard was daydreaming happily, Trevor smiled faintly.

This whole time, he was on guard against the other members of the Sanderson family. Therefore, he had been observing him carefully.

Looking back now, when Lenard handed the vase to Trevor, he looked a little cautious.

Judging by the way the owner of the antique shop and Lenard were acting, Trevor quickly guessed the purpose of them.

Smirking slightly, Trevor thought to himself, 'Do they think of me as a fool?'

If they did, they were perfectly wrong!

A sneer appeared on Trevor's face.

Even though Trevor really didn't know much about these antiques, there was someone who was an expert in that field.

At that time, Trevor quietly asked Tasha about the vase through a text message.

At first, Tasha had no interest in these ordinary antiques. Hearing the sound of cracking, she raised her head.

Once she saw the blue and white porcelain in Trevor's hand, she realized that it was fake and quickly replied Trevor in the message.

When he got the answer, Trevor felt relieved and told Tasha not to reveal about it for the time being.

Since the other party wanted to trick him, Trevor would let him taste the bitter fruit he had sown!

Seeing that Trevor was using his phone, Lenard and the shop owner thought that he was raising money.

Not knowing what was waiting for them, the two of them couldn't hold back their smiles.

An idea flashed in Trevor's mind. He raised his head and said, "Well, since I broke it, I should compensate you for it. But how do I know if this vase is really worth eight million dollars or not? I mean I know nothing about antiques. Can I call someone to identify it?"

Hearing this, the boss became anxious. After all, he had no idea who Trevor would call.

However, if the vase was inspected by an expert, they would definitely be exposed.

In a hurry, he waved his hand dismissively and said, "Mr. Trevor Sanderson, you don't have to doubt it. I will show you the auction certificate and the value identification certificate of this vase. Those documents are official certificates and they can be verified on the Internet."

The truth was, these two certificates were real while the vase was fake. The real vase was hidden in the safe in the room.

The owner was using the documents to dismiss Trevor's doubts.

At that time, Lenard butted into the conversation, "Trevor, don't make things difficult. We can just check the certificates here."

However, what Lenard didn't know was that his behavior only made Trevor believe that there was something wrong with the blue and white porcelain vase.

Trevor held up his hand and said indifferently, "But certificates can be faked too. Isn't it safer to find someone to identify it?"

As his plan was going to be ruined, the boss quickly promised, "That will be too troublesome. How will I dare to lie to you, Mr. Sanderson? I will pay you ten times the original price of it if it is fake! I promise!"

Now that the boss had fallen into his trap, Trevor smiled and thought, 'Well, that's exactly what I'm waiting for!'

At that time, Trevor pointed at Tasha and said with a smile, "Actually, it's not troublesome at all. Let me introduce to you. This is Tasha Byrd. She is the granddaughter of the famous antique collector, Toby Byrd. I want her to evaluate the value of the blue and white porcelain vase. I'm sure that she won't make a mistake."

Seeing that Trevor was pointing at the girl he felt familiar with just now, the boss's heart sank. Immediately, cold sweat started to form on his forehead.

Of course, with the reputation of the Byrd family in the collection circle, it wasn't difficult for her to find out that the vase was fake.

A smile appeared on Tasha's face. She didn't expect that Trevor would be able to trick the owner to say something like 'I'll pay you ten times the original price of it if it was fake'.

What a smart boy!

Tasha gently tapped her fingers on the table and gestured for Trevor to put the blue and white porcelain vase on it. Pointing the crack in front of her, she said professionally, "From the crack of this blue and white porcelain, we can see that a rough mold was used and the workmanship is poor. Plus, the color of the body is unnatural. It is just a trick to fool an outsider! Also, I can easily find another three reasons to prove that it is fake! Do you want me to list them one by one?"

Chapter 510 He Was Tricked!

At that time, the owner of the antique shop was speechless. His hands and feet started to tremble.

This beautiful girl had sharp eyes! She could easily tell that his "antique vase" was fake at first glance!

Who would have thought that Toby's granddaughter would be friends with Trevor?

At that time, Trevor also took the opportunity to say, "Well, you said it yourself that you would compensate ten times the original price if it's fake."

Once the owner of the antique boss heard Trevor's words, he hurriedly made excuses.

"This isn't fair, Mr. Sanderson! I didn't know it was fake! I only bought it because it has official certificates!"

Since it cost eight million dollars, if he had to compensate, he would have to pay eighty million dollars, which was all the money he had saved in the past ten years!

Hearing his words, Tasha rolled her eyes and said with a sneer, "If you dare to buy something just because it has a certificate, you shouldn't work in this industry anymore!"

After hearing Tasha's words, the owner's face darkened. Therefore, he could only look at Lenard with hope.

At that time, Lenard was also in dilemma. This whole time, he was so focused on Trevor that he ignored the existence of Tasha.

In the end, he summoned up his courage and said to Trevor, "Trevor, I'm sure my friend also got cheated. He even lost his eight million dollars."

However, Trevor simply raised his eyebrows and said with a smile, "Well, then why did it break only when I touched it? Is that a coincidence?"

Hearing Trevor's words, Lenard and the owner became more nervous.

Seeing their reactions, Trevor changed the topic as he said with a smile, "Actually, it's not my business if he was cheated before. I only know that he has to compensate me like he promised!"

Hearing his words, the owner of the antique shop froze. Cold sweat kept breaking out on his forehead.

He thought that he could easily swindle a few million dollars with a fake vase. However, he didn't think that he would have to pay much more.

Right now, he was extremely anxious. Gritting his teeth, he tried to think of ways to deny it.

At that time, Tasha straightened her back and leaned against the table as she said coldly, "Sir, you are the one who said the amount of the compensation if it is fake and I witnessed it. If you don't compensate him like you promised, I will expose the fraud in the Collectors' Association. Then, you won't be able to work in this industry anymore!"

At that time, Trevor said, "She's right. Not only that, our Sanderson family will regard you as a dishonest businessman and blacklist you. We will prevent any form of cooperation with you in the future. Then, you won't be able to run business here anymore!"

As there was no way to get out of this situation, the owner of the antique shop slumped down on his wooden chair with a sad face.

Covering his chest, he cried out in a weak voice, "No. no. I'll compensate. I'll pay for it!"

This time, he really cried!

When he realized that he would have to pay eighty million dollars, he felt as if he was stabbed in the heart!

However, he would rather compensate the money. After all, his life would be over if he was kicked out of the Collectors' Association and be blacklisted by the Sanderson family at the same time!

Not long after, Trevor took out his mobile. Soon, he received eighty million dollars for compensation.

Trevor took a glance at the pale face of the owner before turning to look at the flustered Lenard.

Smirking, Trevor patted Lenard's shoulder with satisfaction and said loudly, "Thank you for reminding me, Lenard. I really had a good time."

After saying that, Trevor left the antique shop with his friends, leaving Lenard and his so-called friend staring at each other.

Well, no one knew whether the two could still be "friends" or not after this issue.

Hearing Trevor's words, the owner of the antique shop looked at Lenard with burning eyes!

What did Trevor mean by "reminding him"?

At that time, he felt as if he was deceived. In fact, Lenard and the owner planned to fool Trevor.

However, now that he thought about it carefully, he realized that he was the one who got tricked!

Once Trevor and the girls walked out of the antique shop, they heard a fierce quarrel.
