Chapter 52 Change The Rules

"Kick him out?"

Although Kirby was stunned at first, he soon figured out what had happened. Trevor was misunderstood as someone who sneaked in.

"Just drive him away, Kirby. He's got nothing to do with us, and we really had no clue that he was going to sneak in,"

Corrie said at once. She disassociated herself from Trevor, because she did not want to lose face.

All the other girls who were standing beside Xavier also seemed to want to distance themselves from Trevor.

Aldrin and Rob were a little flustered. Although they had walked in through the main entrance, none of them had a VIP card.

If Kirby found that they did not have a VIP card, then he would start to doubt if they had sneaked in.

"Trevor, what should we do now?" Rob tugged on his sleeve with a worried look in his eyes.

"Don't worry, I think that Kirby is a reasonable guy, and that he won't make things hard for us,"

Trevor answered calmly with a smile on his lips.

With a snicker, Xavier thought to himself, 'Kirby is known as a ruthless man, who would not let go of those who sneak in so easily.'

He remembered that when someone had sneaked in before, and was found by Kirby, he had immediately called the security guards and had reported that person.

Hence, Xavier believed that the same fate would come to Trevor as well.

Kirby walked up to Trevor and pretended to be serious as he asked, "Do you have a VIP card on you?"

"No." Trevor shook his head, pretending like he was panicking.

"Then how did you get in?" Kirby gave him a solemn glare with his hands on his hips.

"Kirby, this is my fault. I heard that the Willard Villa is the biggest manor in the city, so I was really intrigued to come and see it, but I did not have a VIP access card. Hence, I sneaked in with my roommates while the receptionist was not noticing. I hope you can forgive me,"

Trevor admitted and apologized with a sincere tone.

When Kirby heard that, he felt his knees go soft and he was almost on the verge of kneeling down before him.

How could a mere manager of the place expect his boss' apology? If Evie found out about it, he would certainly get fired.

"Since you have realized your mistake, I won't cause a fuss about it. You can stay here."

After saying that, Kirby glanced at Trevor several times as though he was asking him if he said the right thing.

"Rob, do you see? I told you Kirby is a reasonable man, right? He won't make things harder for us!"

Trevor patted Rob on the shoulder as he secretly gestured to Kirby that he did fine.

However, seeing what happened, Zavier and Corrie were both speechless.

Did they hear it wrong? How could Trevor be excused after a simple apology?

And Kirby let him stay in the manor?

According to Zavier, Kirby was not an easy-going man. How could he let it slide so easily? What was the matter with him?

He was hoping to see Trevor suffer from humiliation, but since that did not happen, he felt uncomfortable, like a fishbone was stuck in his throat.

Jaycee whispered to Corrie, "Perhaps, Trevor is really rich. If not, why would Kirby let him go?"

"That's impossible! He's just a loser. I am sure Kirby must have been in a good mood, and that's why he is not bothering himself with digging things up more deeply!"

Corrie believed that if Trevor was really a wealthy man, then he would not be able to keep a low profile at all.

After Kirby left, Trevor turned to his roommates, and said, "Guys, I'll take you all to play golf today. We should also enjoy the rich people's sport, right?"

"Okay, Trevor!" Rob exclaimed with a smile and followed him.

"Zavier, we can't allow Trevor to get so cocky! Let's play golf too!"

Corrie held Xavier's arm, acting like a spoiled child, because she did not want to lose to Trevor.

She felt that he was lucky that he was not driven out of the manor.

Xavier was the real rich man here, who was more handsome and rich than Trevor.

And she wanted to enjoy the things that Trevor did!

Looking at the backs of Trevor and his roommates, Xavier teased, "Don't worry, Corrie. The golf course entry costs one thousand dollars per person, and a VIP access is mandatory to enter the place. I am certain that those losers won't get in."

However, the next second, he saw that Trevor and his friends walk into the golf course, and none of the security guards stopped them.

In a daze, Corrie said, "Didn't you say that one must have a VIP access and a thousand dollars to get in?"

Xavier was also a little stunned for a moment, but he pretended to be calm as he said with a snort, "Well, probably the manor has changed the rules, and it is free to enter now. Anyway, let's also go in."
