

Blessed 69

Chapter 69 Where Is Trevor

Once the tycoons heard Kolton's words, all of them started to argue. "In my opinion, I think what Kolton said is wrong. Even though Selma has a good temperament, her quirky personality is not something everyone can bear. But my daughter is elegant and she is..."

Before the tycoon could finish, another tycoon interrupted him.

"Your daughters are not as outstanding as mine. My daughter is the most suitable one for Mr. Sanderson."

On the other hand, the tycoons who only had sons became anxious. In the end, they started to mention the daughters of their relatives and joined the competition.

The elevator kept going up and the tycoons quarreled all the way till they got to the first floor of the hotel hall. With a ding sound, the elevator door opened.

Once the elevator door opened, they were met with a scene where a group of young men and women gathered beside the fountain in the lobby.

The moment Evie saw the group, she recognized that the girl in the lead was Selma, the daughter of Kolton.

At that time, she saw that some of the girls were rolling up their sleeves while some were stepping on something in the water with one foot. At first glance, they were all behaving in a rude manner without caring a bit for their image!

Looking at them from a distance, Evie frowned helplessly as she turned to look at the tycoons and asked, "So, these are the girls that have good temperament and elegance like you said?"

What she didn't know was that it was Trevor who was soaked in the water as her sight was blocked by the girls.

Once the tycoons heard Kolton's words, all of them started to argue. "In my opinion, I think what Kolton said is wrong. Even though Selma has a good temperament, her quirky personality is not something everyone can bear. But my daughter is elegant and she is..."

Before the tycoon could finish, another tycoon interrupted him.

"Your daughters are not as outstanding as mine. My daughter is the most suitable one for Mr. Sanderson."

On the other hand, the tycoons who only had sons became anxious. In the end, they started to mention the daughters of their relatives and joined the competition.

The elevator kept going up and the tycoons quarreled all the way till they got to the first floor of the hotel hall. With a ding sound, the elevator door opened.

Once the elevator door opened, they were met with a scene where a group of young men and women gathered beside the fountain in the lobby.

The moment Evie saw the group, she recognized that the girl in the lead was Selma, the daughter of Kolton.

At that time, she saw that some of the girls were rolling up their sleeves while some were stepping on something in the water with one foot. At first glance, they were all behaving in a rude manner without caring a bit for their image!

Looking at them from a distance, Evie frowned helplessly as she turned to look at the tycoons and asked, "So, these are the girls that have good temperament and elegance like you said?"

What she didn't know was that it was Trevor who was soaked in the water as her sight was blocked by the girls.

Seeing his daughter acting this way, Kolton was pissed off. Instantly, he rushed towards his daughter and said angrily, "Selma, what's wrong with you girls?"

Just now, he had tried his best to put in a good word for his daughter. However, the way she was acting showed that what he said wasn't true.

Hearing her father's voice, Selma turned around and pouted as she told him the story.

"Dad, you don't know what happened. I met a poor guy who tried to extort money from me! That guy was disgusting! He peeped at the bottom of my dress when he fell to the ground. Also, he even followed me here and tried to molest me. So, they are just helping me teach him a lesson!"

As soon as Kolton heard her explanation, his face darkened in an instant. Gritting his teeth, he asked, "You were molested by a jerk? Who would dare to harass my daughter? Did he hurt you?"

Shaking her head, Selma snorted and said, "No, dad."

Hearing it, Kolton's face softened as he said adoringly, "I'm glad that you're fine. But if you face something like this in the future, you should let the security guards deal with it, okay? You will have to pay some money to drive the man out at most. Don't forget that Mr. Sanderson is coming today. I want you to be on your best behavior."

At that time, not only Kolton, but also the other tycoons were scolding their daughters.

Their voices were filled with awe when they mentioned Mr. Sanderson.

At the end of the day, Mr. Sanderson was the boss of the commercial street of York and the Willard Villa. He could make a family enterprise bankrupt just by saying a few words.

Seeing his daughter acting this way, Kolton was pissed off. Instantly, he rushed towards his daughter and said angrily, "Selma, what's wrong with you girls?"

Just now, he had tried his best to put in a good word for his daughter. However, the way she was acting showed that what he said wasn't true.

Hearing her father's voice, Selma turned around and pouted as she told him the story.

"Dad, you don't know what happened. I met a poor guy who tried to extort money from me! That guy was disgusting! He peeped at the bottom of my dress when he fell to the ground. Also, he even followed me here and tried to molest me. So, they are just helping me teach him a lesson!"

As soon as Kolton heard her explanation, his face darkened in an instant. Gritting his teeth, he asked, "You were molested by a jerk? Who would dare to harass my daughter? Did he hurt you?"

Shaking her head, Selma snorted and said, "No, dad."

Hearing it, Kolton's face softened as he said coldly, "I'm glad that you're fine. But if you face something like this in the future, you should let the security guards deal with it, okay? You will have to pay some money to drive the man out of town. Don't forget that Mr. Sanderson is coming today. I want you to be on your best behavior."

At that time, not only Kolton, but also the other tycoons were scolding their daughters.

Their voices were filled with awe when they mentioned Mr. Sanderson.

At the end of the day, Mr. Sanderson was the boss of the commercial street of York and the Willard Villa. He could make a family enterprise bankrupt just by saying a few words.

Obviously, Selma wanted to know more about him. Since she and Evie were close with each other, she came over to her as she held her hand and asked coquettishly, "Evie, what's your brother's name?"

Patting on the back of Selma's hand, Evie replied with a smile on her face.

"His name is Trevor."

"Wow. What a good name!" exclaimed Selma with a smile on her face.

"My heart fluttered just by hearing his name. Please introduce me to him when he arrives. I really want to be his girlfriend."

Her bold words made the several tycoons curse in their hearts in anger as their daughters weren't bold enough to take the initiative as Selma did.

Speaking of Trevor, Evie was a bit confused since he said he was about to arrive. If it was true, he should be in the lobby since a long time ago.

With that thought in mind, Evie took out her phone and called Trevor.

A familiar ringtone sounded from the water.

At that time, a voice sounded, "Evie, I'm here."

Once Evie heard Trevor's voice, her expression changed as she suddenly remembered Selma's words just now.

Did that mean these girls here pushed her brother into the water?

Taking a deep breath, Evie shook off Selma's hand. With a gloomy look on her face, she pushed all the girls away and walked straight to the water...