

Chapter 138 You Think It Doesn't Matter

Inside the meeting room of Lu Group, Rayan was silently reading documents on his seat. All the managers sitting on both sides were all looking at him, frightened.

Because the last time Rayan held such a meeting was three years ago. It only meant that something big had happened for him to gather them today.

They glanced at one another, questioning whether one of them or their employees had done something wrong.

"Mr. Lu, everyone is here." Janessa sat on the chair closest to Rayan.

After signing the documents he was busy reading a while ago, he handed them to Janessa. Then he stood up and buttoned up his suit slowly, glancing at everyone in the room.

"Something happened at the anniversary party a few days ago. I think everyone already knows that. Miss Janessa Qiu fainted during the prize draw event after being busy with the whole activity." His eyes wandered around before it fell on Canaan, the manager of HR department.

"Manager Wei, what can you say about this matter?"

A hint of surprise flashed across Canaan's eyes, indicating he wasn't prepared for the sudden question. But he held the pen tightly and pretended to look calm. "I'm sorry, I don't understand what you mean, Mr. Lu. Didn't Janessa faint from overwork?"

"It turns out that Manager Wei doesn't know the real reason why Janessa fainted. For everyone who doesn't know it yet, she fainted because of an allergic reaction."

Everyone in the room began to look at each other and talk. Some of them knew, but some didn't.

With a sardonic smile, Rayan kept staring at Canaan.

"Now let's talk about your opinions. Elaina, you go first."

Elaina didn't expect that she was the first one to be called. But then again, she was the person who had the most contact with Janessa, and also the secondary person in charge of the anniversary party.

She should say something.

Therefore, she stood up and took a glance at Janessa before opening her mouth to say, "The people in charge of organizing the anniversary party were Janessa and I, so I know a lot of details. When we were planning this activity, we have talked about the dishes many times. Janessa personally went to the HR department to learn about the allergies and preferences of people working in the company."

Everyone was surprised to hear what Elaina said.

The company had a lot of employees, which meant it was not an easy task to know about everyone's preferences. It could be said that Janessa had exerted so much effort for the activity.

Majority of the people in the meeting room now looked at her with admiration.

Even those who didn't have a good impression of her were impressed with her hard work.

After a pause, Elaina continued, "We took out some food on the list that can cause allergies to some of our employees in order to let everyone have a good experience at the party. We have also made a statistics on the type and quantity of wine. Janessa herself is allergic to taros, so there is nothing that made of taros in everything we have prepared that night. I don't know how and where she touched taros."

Elaina also didn't know how Janessa had an allergic reaction. All she could do now was to explain the situation to everyone and give Janessa some credit for what she had done for everyone.

When their eyes met, Janessa gently nodded her head to show her appreciation. Elaina's words meant a lot to her.

The others also began to share their opinions, until Jamison from the financial department finally spoke, "I don't think many people know about Janessa's allergy. Perhaps what we can do is check whether there is anyone who has a grudge against her among the people she knows. It's not going to be easy, but that's what we can do." They couldn't ignore the possibility that Janessa might have offended someone she knew, who made the incident happen to get back at her.

"Canaan, your turn."

Once again, Rayan mentioned Canaan's name.

From the moment Elaina said that Janessa had come over to get the information of the company's employees, Canaan had no idea what to do.

"If I had known it earlier, I wouldn't have done it for that woman."

Now it is really a dilemma. Should I take the initiative to confess or continue to pretend I didn't know anything?"

Confused, Canaan stood up and raised his head, only to see Rayan's inquisitive eyes as if he was saying, "I'll see what kind of story you will come up with."

'Maybe it is the best for me to take the initiative. After all, that woman just has a beautiful face. My career is the most important.'

Finally, he made up his mind and bowed hard to the direction of Janessa and Rayan.

"Mr. Lu, I'm sorry. I revealed the information that Janessa was allergic to taros. I didn't know that that woman will use it to harm her. If I know, I won't let her have the chance."

What Canaan said made everyone present confused except for Rayan. Who wanted to know the information?

Although he hadn't mentioned any name, Janessa already had a guess. She couldn't help but feel a little pity for her. That woman could have had a better future, but she chose a wrong way for various reasons.

"Mr. Lu, Janessa, please forgive me. I was just fooled by her. She said she had been with you for a long time and wanted to give you a gift. She said that she was afraid that she would give you a present that you didn't like, so she wanted to know about your preference. I know it's against the company's rules, but... I just told her about your allergy, thinking that might help her avoid picking the wrong gift. I didn't say anything else." It wasn't a guarantee that Canaan's explanation could save his career. He could only hope that Janessa and Rayan wouldn't look into it.

If he was fired from a big company like the Lu Group, all his efforts in the past few years would be in vain.

However, it looked like he wouldn't be forgiven so easily. Rayan pounded the desk hard, which shocked all the people present and made them look at him subconsciously.

All the other managers held their breath, afraid of being implicated by Canaan.

"As the manager of the human resources department, you're in charge of the private information of the whole company's employees. How dare you show it to others casually? Janessa checked it after getting my permission. Did I also approve the person who wanted Janessa's information from you? How could you let the company's information leak so easily? If you can't even keep the most basic rules, what else can you provide to this company?"

Anger was written all over Rayan's face. He had personally selected the manager of the HR department.

Therefore, Canaan really let him down.

"Mr. Lu, I'm sorry. I won't do that again." At that moment, Canaan realized how wrong he was. If he knew that person was that evil, he would definitely not help her.

"Just because of something you said, your colleague has been in hospital for three days. Do you think the whole thing doesn't matter?"
