

Chapter 140 Having Barbecue

The Lu Group soon officially released the announcement. The whole company now knew what a miscreant Sally was. Naturally she was fired from the company.

Back in the room nobody answered to her million requests for mercy.

Janessa walked as the crowd moved out of the meeting room.

Rayan took the lead and she followed him to the top floor.

She just stared at Rayan as they made their way to the top floor without saying anything.

If he did not delve deeper into the incident this time, she would never have figured the sinister plan behind the seeming accident.

However, Rayan maintained his cold as ice behavior as he observed the woman's reaction beside him.

'I solved such a big crime for her, will she just stand silently like that?'

The two of them carefully observed each other without a word. As they finally reached the top floor, Janessa dropped a quick thanks.

"Thank you very much."

Though Rayan did not answer back, he walked to his office in happiness.

No one in the company imagined that someone would actually plot against Janessa, that also on such an important day. This time everyone in the company unanimously supported her.

As Janessa saw all the extensive and fiery discussions in the WeChat group, she simply put her phone away.

In the evening as she was leaving from work, she noticed a dazzling car waiting at the gate of the Lu Group.

All the passers-by were looking at the car with prying eyes. Everyone wanted to know who the owner was waiting for inside the car.

People noticed that the owner was a really handsome man from the half-open window.

Janessa after taking a casual glance, turned around and walked away. The person in the car got restless. He pressed the accelerator and stopped right beside Janessa.

"Hi, Janessa. Hop in. Where are you going?"

Alana called out from the backseat of the car. She stuck her head out of the window and asked her friend to get in.

Janessa was surprised by the suddenness. It was hard to believe that this extremely outgoing, lovely and beautiful lady was Shen Family's first lady.

"Why are you being so loud? Are you not afraid of startling people?" She already could feel all the eyes on her.

Alana was carefree about all these things but Janessa could not ignore them.

"Alana, please shush. Janessa, come inside before she starts to shout even more." Gordon gradually opened his window. Although he was telling his sister off, all knew that he spoiled his sister all the time.

Janessa was surprised to see that Gordon was driving the car. She was too embarrassed to refuse him again.

He, like a perfect gentleman, got off the car and opened the door for Janessa while placing his hand on the door frame, in case she bumped her head.

"Thank you." She thanked him while climbing in the passenger's seat.

She was planning to sit with Alana at the back seat. But that would be wrong towards Gordon because people would think that he was the driver.

As she sat beside him, she remembered the old time and how they used to be exactly like this.

It was just like this, the three of them hanging around together.

She didn't expect them to do the same thing after so many years.

Gordon too was reminded of the past, but it had changed for him because he lost what belonged to him before. He let out a silent sigh of hopelessness.

"So where shall we have dinner today? It is on me!" As Gordon drove he looked at the side of the road to see if he could find any delicious snacks.

Even though they were rich, they enjoyed the simple things of life. They loved roadside barbecue as it connected them to the earth.

As they were pondering upon what to eat, Alana noticed a roadside barbecue stall. She shouted at Gordon to stop immediately.

"What happened? All good? What did you see?" Just as Janessa felt that the silence was swallowing the three of them, Alana shouted out. Immediately the cloud of embarrassment disappeared.

"I know what we are having for dinner. I and Janessa will find seats. Gordon can join us after he has parked." She jumped out of the car and pulled her friend out from the passenger seat. They headed for the barbecue stall. Gordon was forced to park quickly and join them.

While he parked, Alana placed the order.

"Hey Janessa, do you remember the time we went out once for dinner while in college and you... and we ate endlessly?" Suddenly Alana felt awkward speaking about the past, remembering that Gordon and Janessa used to be a couple.

"Yes of course!" Hearing this, Gordon took a look at Janessa and then put the bowls and chopsticks on the table for all three of them.

Before, whenever he and Janessa had dinner together, he would always arrange her bowls and chopsticks before doing his.

He always made it a point to carefully clean the extra bits of loose wood splinters on the disposable chopsticks.

But today they kept silent till the food arrived. Once it was served they began to eat.

All of them chose the beef kebab at the same time. Janessa retracted her hand to let Alana have one first.

Gordon picked a piece and gave it to Janessa after which he continued eating.

"Janessa, didn't Rayan say you anything about the allergy you had?" Alana asked really concerned. Even though her friend was fine now, she felt strange.

This had never happened in the past when Janessa participated in the event of Lu Group. Alana had really hoped that her friend wouldn't have to suffer Rayan's wrath.

Janessa fainted suddenly while the event was on and created a disruption in the party. The whole thing remained the hot topic of discussion.

"It is fine. I know who did it to me and that person has been sacked immediately. The company should be safe for me now." 'But not the best place to be associated with.'

Janessa did not say the last part out loud. Even though Sally was no more in the company, she still had an unpleasant feeling.

"Then, it is true that someone purposely did it? Name the person and I won't let them go." Alana wanted to protect her friend.

"Don't worry. The misunderstanding has been clarified. We are in the same company and we can check on each other. Just let it go." Janessa had absolutely no control over the Internet and the speed with which the news spread.

Usually being a trending topic for search needed a lot of work, so Janessa was surprised when she found that she was trending.

But Janessa was really helpless.

The news spread so fast on the Internet that even she found it hard to believe.
