Chapter 187 Gracie Fainted

Janessa seemed a bit curious as she looked around Rayan's study. Aside from the rows of books that filled the shelves, there was hardly anything special inside.

There was a big desk across the door, on top of which was a computer.

There wasn't even a sofa for guests to sit on.

It was clear as day that he didn't want anyone to enter this place.

Hadn't anyone else been here at all?

and held the mouse...

"There's a carpet over there. Feel free to take a seat." Rayan pointed towards the carpet on the floor and sat on his chair, then he carefully went through the contents of the documents.

Was this how Rayan was going to treat her after he invited her into the study? If so, then she might as well just wait outside.

Janessa whispered under her breath and then causally walked around.

get her hands on for so long but couldn't.

The collection of books inside his study was really something. In fact, Janessa found several books that she had been wanting to

She couldn't help thinking that there probably were more books in his study than the bookstore could possibly hold. There was an assortment of them. It almost seemed as though Rayan had bought the entire bookstore and moved it back to his house.

While Janessa was admiring the books, Rayan glanced at her and didn't seem to mind what she was doing.

About half an hour later, when Rayan was about to sign his name on the dotted line, he was interrupted by a sudden knock on the Hearing this, the expression on Rayan's face shifted slightly. He looked at the document in his hand, quickly signed his name on it, and put it down on the table.

"Here. You can take it back yourself," Rayan said before walking out of the study.

Curious about what happened, Janessa left the study without taking the signed document from the table and went after him.

Although Rayan was furious just moments ago, he still couldn't help feeling sorry for Gracie when he saw that she got injured.

The moment she caught up with Rayan, she stumbled upon Gracie lying unconscious on the ground with a pool of blood around Without delay, he went to Gracie's side and knelt down. With his hand supporting the back of her head, he asked in a soft voice, "What happened, Gracie?"

"I've already called 911. The ambulance should be on its way," Willie said in a frantic tone.

He was worried that Rayan might get depressed because of what happened.

and carried Gracie in his arms. He strode out in such a hurry. "I'll come with you to the hospital, and then I'll go back to the company." After seeing Gracie's injury, Janessa helplessly sighed in

"We can't afford to wait for the ambulance to get here. I'm gonna drive her to the hospital myself." With that, Rayan leaned over her heart. Gracie was willing to go through such lengths just to make Rayan look at her.

Then again, Gracie didn't even hesitate to use the baby's placenta to her advantage. What else could she possibly not do?

"Alright, go get your car and follow us!" Rayan put Gracie down on the passenger seat and fastened the seat belt for her. Then, he turned to look at Janessa.

In fact, she was usually too scared to even drive at all.

"Will you be able to keep up?" Rayan suddenly remembered that Janessa was scared of driving fast.

"It's okay. It's not like what it used to be in the past. I've changed."

Janessa showed the car key in her hand to Rayan and got into his own car.

The second he got in the car, he stepped on the gas and sped away. Janessa had just started her car, and even if she were to drive

Moments later, Janessa pulled over on the side of the road and dialed Rayan's number.

"Mr. Lu, I left the document in your study. I need to go back and get it. Just tell me which hospital you're taking her to and I'll meet you there later." Janessa couldn't help feeling a little guilty. If she didn't forget to take it with her, she wouldn't have had to over the speed limit, she knew that she still wouldn't be able to catch up with him.

There was no response from the other end of the line until five seconds later. "Okay, go ahead."

After hanging up the phone, Janessa turned the car around and drove back. Soon, she arrived at the Lu family's villa.

When she reached the study, the first thing she did was cautiously look around.

Janessa never would've expected that Rayan would call the butler himself to let him know that she was coming back. Since there was no need for her to explain anything anymore, she felt a little embarrassed. Truth be told, she was trying to think of

When Willie saw that Janessa had returned, he said straight away, "Mr. Lu has already informed me about it. You can go inside help her directly, it should be enough for her to come here.

Without saying a word, Janessa quietly went into the study.

Janessa looked around for a while but didn't find any. After making sure that the coast was clear, she sat in front of the computer

By the time Janessa arrived at the hospital, Gracie had already been taken into the ward. Although Janessa didn't do anything to

"How is she now?" Since she insisted on coming here, she had to at least show her concern. Janessa glanced at Gracie and then quickly shifted her gaze.

realized that he seemed to be talking more and more to Janessa recently.

"I know that you have a lot of things to do, so I'm going back to the company with the document." After saying goodbye to Rayan,

"She's alright. She just hit her head. The doctor said she'll be fine after she gets some rest." While explaining, Rayan suddenly Janessa turned around and left. They had never really been in friendly terms with each other before.

Even after Janessa had already returned to the company and accomplished her task, she was still at a loss. When did her relationship with Rayan become so strangely harmonious?

she suddenly received a call from Gordon.

While she was lost in thought, time passed by and it was already time for her to get off from work. When she was about to leave,

Wouldn't it be awkward for Gordon if she had to work overtime today as well?

Janessa was so absent-minded for the whole afternoon, thinking about the recent turn of events.

So, it was kind of strange to see the two of them getting along with each other like this.

"Janessa, are you still in the office?" "I'm just about to get off from work. You called just in time." Janessa had been working overtime these past couple of days.

"Since you're already done with work, where do you want to go for dinner? Do you have something in mind?" Gordon asked, with a hint of expectation in his voice.

The two of them had already made it clear yesterday. Since they were just friends, there shouldn't be anything wrong with them having dinner together.

"Well, you can order anything you like. I don't really have a preference." Janessa wasn't a picky eater, so she could eat anything.

"Well, we can just talk about it later."

"Give me the address. I'll just meet you there." Janessa was on the elevator at that moment and was about to reach the first floor.

She wasn't really craving for anything either.

"You'll see me when you get out of the building." Upon saying this, Gordon hung up the phone.

True enough, as soon as she left the building, Janessa saw Gordon leaning against a luxury car and wearing a pair of sunglasses

It couldn't be. Why would a discreet person like Gordon suddenly do something like this?

Holding the phone in her hand, Janessa was a bit surprised. Did Gordon come to pick her up?

while looking into the distance. He gave off such an intimidating aura.

Janessa quickly walked over to Gordon and said, "You really love attracting attention, don't you? We're just gonna have dinner. You didn't have to bother coming all the way here."

"Well, I'm sorry. Just get in the car now." Gordon opened the car door for Janessa first and then sat on the driver's seat.

The two of them didn't talk at all on the way, and awkward silence filled the air inside the car.
