

Chapter 316 God, Help Me

Both of them had a fresh experience once they were back together again. They were also becoming more comfortable with each other.

Rayan's parents contacted three days after Janessa's birthday and requested that both of them return home as soon as possible.

Janessa went to the office with Rayan that morning. She didn't have to work today, so all she had to do was sit on the sofa and wait. Janessa, on the other hand, was a person who could not stay still for very long. Since she came to the company, she wanted to help Rayan as much as she could. So she persisted in working despite the fact that her wounds were not completely healed.

Corbin was quite busy in the office. He felt like he had spotted a savior when he saw Janessa enter.

"My beloved Miss Janessa, you have finally arrived." Corbin had assumed that Janessa was here to assist him with his work, but it turned out that she was not.

"I'm simply here to say hello. My wound hasn't completely healed yet." Janessa said that on purpose and smiled helplessly as if what she said was a big truth.

Corbin sank back into his chair as if he had been hit by a blizzard.

"God! What exactly did I do? Please send someone to help me right away. Otherwise, I'll die!" Corbin roared while lying on the chair.

With so much work to do at the Lu Group, Corbin had to keep himself busy until late in the afternoon every day. In addition, with the New Year approaching, he had to deal with extra summary tables and budget sheets. Every day, he felt as if his mind was about to explode at the sight of these documents.

Now, the person he expected to come to his rescue couldn't really help.

Life was quite difficult for him.

How did he even make it through the years before?

Corbin was aware that Janessa and Rayan had reconciled and that Rayan would never allow Janessa to work again, but he couldn't keep some of his grievances to himself.

'If only his love confession had been made a few days later,' Corbin thought

"Oh, don't worry, I was only kidding. Give me the urgent documents and I'll help you with it. Because the wound on my back has not healed completely, I can only assist you with a portion of your workload though." The intended purpose of Janessa's visit was to assist Corbin with his duties. However, because of Rayan's involvement, she really couldn't do much.

"Thank you very much." Corbin, along with some other budget staff, handed over to Janessa the most difficult tables Rayan had put together.

He could work much more efficiently once these items had been distributed.

Janessa didn't mind what she was given. She walked straight into Rayan's office, carrying a document that required his signature right away.

"This one requires your signature."

"Corbin is supposed to be in charge of it. What are you doing here?" Rayan seized control of the paper, which he identified at first glance as being more important than the contracts with which he had previously negotiated.

"Don't worry about it. As soon as you finish your work, we can go out to eat." Janessa had a contagious smile on her face. Rayan surrendered at the sight of it.

"You won. If you really want to work, then fine. But you must look after yourself. Your wound hasn't healed yet. "

"I see!" Janessa smirked and then went out to work.

Corbin worked swiftly with the help of Janessa.

An unexpected visitor then arrived in the afternoon.

Janessa woke up from her afternoon nap to a phone call from the front desk.

"Miss Qiu, there is a gentleman downstairs named Mr. Feng who wishes to see Mr. Lu." Rylan was the first person who came to her mind.

Could it be him?

"Was that Rylan?"

"Yes, he didn't make an appointment, so we couldn't let him go upstairs." The receptionist was in a dilemma. Even if she knew who Rylan was, she didn't dare allow him in.

"Wait a second. I'll inquire with Mr. Lu." Janessa dialed Rayan's office's intercom number before hanging up the phone from the front desk.

"Rylan has arrived. He might be here to talk about the collaboration with you." Janessa had a general idea of why Rylan had come, but it was clear that she had anticipated the beginning but not the end.

"Let him in." Rayan ordered, after a little pause on the other end of the phone.

Soon after Janessa had delivered Rayan's order, the elevator rang.

As Janessa approached the elevator, she noticed Rylan exiting.

Rylan was surprised to see Janessa in the Lu Group. He assumed she wouldn't return to work until she was entirely recovered.

"When did you get out of the hospital? Why didn't you tell me?" Rylan had been concerned about Janessa's health, but he was now relieved to learn that she was in good health.

"A few days ago. What brought you here anyway?" Janessa responded evasively as if she didn't understand Rylan's anxiety.

"Business." Indeed, Rylan's real intention was to see Janessa. He had tried to wait for Janessa at her home, only to meet just Alana every time.

With no idea of where Janessa was, the only thing he could do was try his luck at the Lu Group.

As expected, Janessa was in the Lu Group.

"Mr. Lu is waiting for you inside. Please!" Janessa escorted Rylan into Rayan's office before bringing in two cups of freshly brewed tea that she had just finished making.

To avoid getting caught up in their conversation, she went out to take care of her own business.

Soon after, Rylan exited the office, followed by Rayan.

"I believe you can see your way out, Mr. Feng." Taking a look at Janessa, Rayan didn't ask Janessa to see Rylan off. However, Janessa offered to do so.

"Mr. Lu, please allow me to accompany Mr. Feng downstairs." This way, please." Janessa guided Rylan downstairs without hesitation after stating so in a professional tone.

Rayan felt uneasy as he stared at the two at the door. He walked back and forth in the office, his mind already preoccupied with hypothetical situations that had arisen as a result of his fear.

Janessa remained silent in the elevator. "How is your wound?" Rylan was the first person to break the silence.

"It's okay. Let's go get some coffee together." Janessa invited.

She realized it was time to put an end to the rift between her and Rylan. It was all right to leave them in the past. Things couldn't drag on any longer now that she had decided to be with Rayan. It was in their best interests to resolve it as quickly as possible.

Rylan was only one of her problems. There was one more issue that needed to be resolved as soon as possible.

"Okay!" Rylan accepted her invitation, which led him to believe that Janessa had finally arrived and was willing to spend time with him.

But what Janessa was about to say would ruin his fantasy before he could even enjoy it.

He had to admit he had seen it coming, but that nonetheless sank him in frustration and grief.