Chapter 342 You're Finally Here

Rayan restlessly paced back and forth in his office, not caring that Gracie was still waiting downstairs.

He was really worried about Janessa. What if sending her home was even more dangerous?

"What is going on with her?" Rayan had the idea to call his driver and check whether Janessa got home safely.

The driver explained that Janessa asked to get dropped off downtown and walked alone. She did not allow the driver to follow her. In the blink of an eye, she simply disappeared into the crowd.

Rayan was livid to find this out.

Janessa had gone out alone and now nobody knew where she was!

Rayan tried calling Janessa's phone several times, but she wasn't picking up.

He had a bad feeling about this.

"I can't keep staying here doing nothing." After handing his work for the day over to Corbin, Rayan took his coat and left.

curvaceous figure was still visible.

When he got downstairs, a woman in sportswear ran over to him. Even though her clothes were rather ill-fitting, the woman's "Rayan, you're finally here!" As soon as Gracie saw Rayan come out of the elevator, she grabbed his arm tightly and leaned on his side.

"Hey! Let go of me!" Rayan scolded her. He spoke so harshly as if this wasn't the woman he had cared so much about before.

The employees present subtly watched the scene, although some were blatantly staring.

Rayan sharply turned to them with a look of disdain and immediately, they dispersed.

No one dared to stay when Rayan gave that look.

Instead, everyone turned to the receptionist, who was stationed nearest to the two. The receptionist should be able to hear everything they were talking about.

She began to sweat nervously. Obviously, she couldn't be caught eavesdropping on her boss right now. It was more important that she would keep her job.

No one would dare to gossip about the boss' past relationships.

Although the receptionist shook her head at the other employees, she couldn't help but still listen in.

Anyway, even if she just happened to overhear their conversation, she wouldn't be breaking any rules.

and brought out a flash drive.

"Rayan, please. I have something important to tell you. In fact, I brought this. Look..." Gracie slipped her hand into her pocket

It took a long time for her to prepare this. Even though she wouldn't hear anything important after the phone call, it didn't matter.

This was the best evidence to frame Janessa up, and it was all in the palm of her hand.

Finally, she could take Rayan back from Janessa.

Rayan was hers and hers alone.

"Gracie, we are over. Just give this all up already." Rayan was thinking that Gracie was here to get back with him. But he knew she was a vicious woman, so he had no interest in her anymore.

No matter what Gracie would try, he would never go back to her. Why could she just give up?

Whenever he saw Gracie, the only thing Rayan would be reminded of was how stupid he had been.

She had been cheating on him for so long, but he never even realized it.

"Rayan, I'm not here to try and get back together with you. I know how angry you are at me. Obviously, it's impossible for us to be together again. I just had something to tell you today. It's about Janessa..." Gracie thought that just by mentioning Janessa's name, she would catch Rayan's attention and he would bring her somewhere quiet to hear what she had to say.

Rayan's curiosity was peaked for a moment, but he immediately pushed it away.

But Rayan's reaction disappointed her.

He trusted Janessa enough to know that she would tell him everything he needed to know and Gracie saw this.

How could Rayan trust Janessa so much?

Gracie was surprised. She did not expect this level of trust and maturity from Rayan and Janessa's relationship.

"That is none of your business." Rayan pried Gracie's fingers off of his arm.

Gracie wanted to hold him back again, but she knew how determined Rayan was. Still, she tried again.

"Rayan, I promise if you don't listen to me, you're going to regret this. I'm doing this for your own good. Janessa, she--" Gracie resorted to blurting the news out loud since Rayan didn't seem to care.

"No. You should go." Rayan interrupted her before she could finish and walked away.

Letting everyone around hear it was also an efficient way to destroy Janessa's reputation.

He was in no mood to listen to anything right now. All he thought about was Janessa.

He had to make sure Janessa was safe before he could do anything else.

Besides, whatever Gracie wanted to say about Janessa, he did not want to hear at all.

That woman was a liar. How could anything that came out of her mouth be valuable?

Gracie was rooted to her spot and stared at the man who was walking away.

No, it wasn't supposed to be like this.

Rayan was already out of the building, but Gracie tried to run after him again. Fortunately, the security guards had stopped her before she could even reach the hem of Rayan's coat.

much too strong for her.

"Let me go! I know your boss! Rayan, wait!" Gracie struggled and thrashed against the grip of the security guards. But they were Gracie was only able to get inside the building because she was fishing for sympathy in the first place. Otherwise, she wouldn't have been able to get inside the Lu Group building in the first place.

The security guards had also witnessed what just happened between Rayan and Gracie.

If Rayan left Gracie alone, they supposed that she wasn't a friend of his at all.

They thought that Gracie was just another girl dreaming of marrying into a rich family.

The security guards looked at Gracie disdainfully. They held her tightly until Rayan had gotten far away.

"Just wait and see, you two. One day, I'm going to make you suffer for what you did this day!" Grace fiercely pointed at the two

Back in her car, Gracie let out a scream of frustration. She thought this was finally the end of her relationship with Rayan.

How could he be so heartless to her?

Gracie took out the flash drive and glared at it. "You escaped this time, Janessa, but I won't let it happen again. I'm going to make you leave Rayan one day! There can only be one Mrs. Lu! And that is me!"

security guards before storming off.

Gracie muttered to herself.

Meanwhile, Rayan drove around the city, looking for Janessa. He even stopped by the stores that she often went to. But none of them had seen Janessa today.

Rayan hurried home, hoping she would be there, but she wasn't.

He couldn't find her anywhere. Rayan was growing more anxious, but he didn't know where to go next.

"Where on earth could she be?"
