

Chapter 349 Are You Still Using A CD

"As far as I can see, Mr. Lu, I really believe that Janessa truly loves you, so even though she went to meet with her friend..." Corbin was just trying to convince Rayan to be more open-minded. If even her boyfriend wouldn't give her the benefit of the doubt, then who else would believe her?

In most cases, the only thing a woman could ask for the man she loved was for him to give her a sense of security. If she loved the man wholeheartedly, the man shouldn't doubt her or do anything that would make her lose her trust in him.

If the man could do that, then the woman would love him with all her heart.

Sad to say, a lot of people didn't understand this.

"Her friend? That guy isn't just any friend. He is her ex-boyfriend..." Rayan's special assistant was making him furious. Corbin wasn't acting like his assistant at all. At this moment, he looked like he was someone sent by Janessa to persuade him.

"Mr. Lu, how can you be sure that Janessa went to meet her ex-boyfriend?"

At this moment, Rayan took out his phone and showed the photos he had received to Corbin. Rayan believed that any man would get upset if he saw his girlfriend together with her ex.

When he first saw the photo, Corbin thought that Rayan had every right to be angry. But, after taking a good look at some of the photos, Corbin noticed something.

"Mr. Lu, I think someone intentionally took these photos to make Janessa look bad."

After Corbin said that, Rayan didn't say a word. Instead, he just gave Corbin a cold stare. There was a look of disbelief in his eyes.

After taking a deep breath, Corbin continued, "What I'm trying to say is that, in some photos, Janessa may seem like she's having intimate contact with this man, but if you take a closer look at this one, it should be quite obvious from Janessa's eyes that she wanted to refuse him. Perhaps this man offered to carry her bag for her, or he was forcing her to come with him. Whichever the case may be, it's obvious from Janessa's body language and facial expression that she wasn't comfortable with this situation. Besides, if they were really having an affair, they wouldn't have chosen to meet in such a crowded place. After you professed your love to Janessa through a live stream, I think it's safe to say that almost everyone in the city knows that the two of you are dating. No matter how bold Janessa may be, she's not so stupid that she'd have an affair in public like that."

Noticing the slight change in Rayan's expression, Corbin seized the opportunity to continue to persuade him, "If what these photos are implying is true, wouldn't it have been more convincing if they had taken some photos where the man was caught holding Janessa in his arms or kissing her instead? If you look at it that way, someone is clearly trying to make Janessa look bad. But, I have to admit that these photos were taken from a good angle. If you ask me, I think these photos were meant to make you think that Janessa is cheating on you."

After saying these words, Corbin gave the phone back to Rayan.

"Can you prove that?" Rayan had no idea when his assistant had learned so much. In any case, he thought that what Corbin said made sense.

"Mr. Lu, you've asked me to investigate dozens of things. Apart from that, I've had to deal with the paparazzi for you in the past. Something like this should be a piece of cake." Corbin got a bit carried away.

Getting Rayan to listen wasn't easy. But, if he could find a way to deal with the issue involving Janessa and Rayan, it would make his life, as well as the other employees', much easier.

"Well, you may go now. This matter..."

"Don't worry. My lips are sealed."

After saying that, Corbin walked out of Rayan's office.

Janessa was busy at her desk. When she raised her head, she saw Corbin walking out of Rayan's office while humming a tune.

'Did something good happen to Corbin? Or is there something wrong with Rayan?'

"Corbin, have you finished your work?" Tapping a pen to the side of her forehead, Janessa looked at Corbin and asked. He looked different from how he was in the morning.

"Let me tell you one thing. I have done you a huge favor, so don't forget to thank me in the future." Corbin walked up to Janessa and told her that she owed him one.

If Rayan could patch things up with Janessa because of him, he would really be Janessa's savior. At that time, he would ask Janessa to do his work for him for three days.

Looking forward to asking Janessa to pay him back, he was somewhat in a good mood.

"What did you do? Tell me." What kind of huge favor could he have done for her in Rayan's office? What happened between him and Rayan shouldn't have anything to do with her.

"I can't tell you yet. We can only talk about it when you find out the result. Anyway, I'm sure what I did is of great help to you." Corbin kept her hanging in suspense.

Janessa gave up and didn't want to talk to Corbin anymore. He could do whatever he liked. Now that Corbin was finally in a good mood, he didn't want to bother asking her to persuade Rayan.

Everything would probably be alright.

Janessa lowered her head and went back to work. But, for some reason, Corbin didn't leave.

"Do you need something? Why don't you go back to work?" His gaze made Janessa feel anxious. Could it be that there something was wrong with her work?

As far as she could remember, there shouldn't be anything wrong with her work recently.

"There's something personal I want to ask you. It's almost time for lunch anyway. Why are you mad at Mr. Lu?" Corbin loved to gossip so much that some people couldn't stand him.

"Why do you enjoy gossiping so much?" Janessa rolled her eyes at Corbin and didn't want to talk to him anymore.

Whether she had a quarrel with Rayan or not, there was no need for her to tell others about it.

"Don't be like that. Just think of me as one of your girl friends. Come on."

"Cut it out! If you were a girl... I wouldn't be able to bear to look straight at you!"

"Oh, don't be like that. Can't you at least give me a hint or something?" Corbin couldn't help thinking that Rayan was more reasonable in this aspect. If he had a problem, then he would find a way to deal with it right away. As for Janessa, she would prefer to keep it to herself instead.

She might have kept the reason why they quarreled a secret, but she couldn't deny the fact that they had quarreled.

"If you want to gossip that much, let me ask you a few things first. How many girlfriends have you had? Where does your current girlfriend live? Have you ever made love with her? Are you planning to marry her? Where are you going to hold your wedding ceremony? How many babies do you plan to have in the future?"

After Janessa bombarded him with questions, Corbin had no choice but to give up.

He came here to ask Janessa about what happened, so why was she the one asking questions now?

Casting a quick glance at Rayan's office, Corbin leaned over and whispered in Janessa's ear, "Actually, I don't think your problem with Mr. Lu is anything serious. Trust me, everything is gonna be alright in no time."

After giving it much thought, Corbin thought he should say something to make Janessa feel at ease.

"Okay. That's really reassuring. I don't care if you don't want to work, but I still have a lot of work to do!" Upon saying this, Janessa decided to just ignore Corbin.

Corbin had nothing more to say. However, when he lowered his head, a CD in the trash can at Janessa's feet caught his eye.

Corbin couldn't help teasing Janessa a little, "We're now living in the 21st century. Are you still using a CD? Is it an X-rated film?"

Corbin's asked in a rather suggestive tone, as if he just found out some juicy information.

Caught off guard, Janessa froze. She pulled a long face and looked at Corbin. Then, with a forced smile, she replied, "That's just a CD of a software I had to install. As you know, I had to read CAD files for a recent project. How can I look at them if I don't install the software?"

Janessa's response was reasonable enough. Without thinking too much about it, Corbin left her desk with quite a disappointed expression on his face.
