

Chapter 402 It's Really Over

Seeing that Rayan was not angry, Gracie knew that her chance had come. She had to seize it! As soon as she thought of it, she immediately hugged Rayan from behind.

"Rayan, we have been together for so many years. Can you really let me go so easily? I know it was my fault. It was really my fault. I promise I won't do that again. Please, let's go back to the way we used to be. Okay? Just the two of us. There is no one between us. Just like what we were before I went overseas. Hmm?"

As she spoke, Gracie gently bit Rayan's ear. It was an attempt to entice and seduce him.

After all, Gracie knew everything about Rayan. She knew where she should touch him to arouse him. So, Gracie was very confident that she could easily seduce Rayan like before. However, regardless of what Gracie did or how hard she tried, Rayan gave her no response this time.

"Rayan?" Gracie released Rayan from her hug. She looked at Rayan's expressionless face in disbelief.

In the past, Rayan couldn't resist if she acted like this. But now, he didn't seem moved by it all. He was not attracted.

"Gracie, you already know that our relationship ended long ago," Rayan said as he pulled her up.

The only reason why he kept Gracie by his side before was to annoy Janessa. However, now, Janessa was with him, not to mention that they had a baby. He didn't need to use Gracie to annoy Janessa anymore. There was also no need for Gracie to stay any longer.

He didn't want to give her false hope any longer.

Besides, he had no time for Gracie now. All his time was reserved for Janessa.

After all, it was good for both of them to move ahead as soon as possible.

"No, I don't believe it. Rayan, weren't we doing well just a few days ago? Everything was going so well. I'm not expecting anything else from you. I just hope you can accompany me sometimes. We can also have meals together occasionally. I will be satisfied even if you just talk to me. I won't be clingy like before. Even if you don't come to me, I won't be like before. I'm telling the truth, Rayan. I've really changed. Believe me."

Ever since Gracie was born, marrying Rayan had been her lifelong goal. Even if the process was too difficult, she had endured every hardship. She always tried her best. Everything was going well until that year when Sarah found her.

At that time, she finally woke up. She realized that the gap between her and Rayan was huge.

It was so huge that she couldn't go over it no matter how hard she tried.

In the past, Sarah had told her that there was a way to be with Rayan. She told Gracie that as long as she could finish a medical degree abroad and be recognized in the field of medicine, she could be with Rayan.

But as soon as she went abroad, the Lu family arranged Rayan's marriage with someone else.

After coming back from abroad, Gracie knew that she had been cheated. After all, she knew that Rayan was married. Hence, she swore that she would take back everything. Everything she deserved. Everything that was taken away from her.

However, when she took Rayan back, she knew that he had already lost his heart to another woman.

She truly didn't want to do those bad things, but she was forced to do so. Why couldn't Rayan understand her?

"Wake up, Gracie! We were over a long time ago. I had no choice but to be with you in the past few weeks. You already know that, don't you? Now, I hope you can leave me." After saying that, Rayan took out a checkbook from the drawer. Then, he wrote a check and handed it to Gracie.

"Here, take it. The money here is enough for you to live well for the rest of your life. We're already over, Gracie," Rayan said that two times because he wanted Gracie to realize it.

It was really over. This was the end.

Gracie was a special existence for Rayan. Even if she had done those bad things, he didn't feel particularly uncomfortable. He just felt sad thinking that Gracie probably became the person she was now because he didn't care enough about her.

Therefore, since it was the only thing he could give her, Rayan could not be stingy with money.

Gracie smiled with tears in her eyes as she looked at the amount of money written on the check.

Gracie's heart felt like breaking. She had devoted her whole life to Rayan. But in the end, she only got this piece of paper. Although there he gave her a lot of money, she could still not reconcile with the fact that they were through.

Everything was done according to the Lu family's arrangement. But why did she get nothing in the end? Why did she not get Rayan? It felt like the world Gracie built was crashing right in front of her.

Gracie grabbed Rayan's sleeves and said, "Rayan, are you serious?" Gracie stopped crying, with her eyes still wet with tears. She looked at Rayan and forced a smile. However, it just made her look more ferocious and pathetic.

"You heard me, Gracie. I don't need to repeat myself again." After saying that, Rayan removed Gracie's hand on his sleeves. Then, he made an internal call.

"Corbin, come in." Gracie heard Rayan say on the phone.

Upon hearing Rayan's orders, Gracie wiped her tears quickly. Then, she gripped the check in her hand and looked at him with hatred.

Her makeup must have been ruined due to crying. Gracie was also sure that she looked terrible. But Rayan didn't care about it and called someone in.

He couldn't wait to embarrass her in front of others, huh?

Without any emotion in her voice, Gracie said, "Can I use your restroom?"

"Go ahead," Rayan answered without looking at her.

Gracie walked into the lounge of Rayan with ease. She closed the door. Afterwards, she looked at the cheque in her hand and then put it into her bag.

At that moment, everything that was familiar to her in the lounge made her feel sentimental. Gracie sighed. This place originally belonged to her. Since she would not come again, she would leave a little memory here.

'Janessa, do you think you can be happy now that you're with Rayan again? I'm unhappy, so there's no way I would let you be happy!' Gracie thought to herself.

When she arrived in the restroom, Gracie carefully reapplied the lipstick. Then, she left lipstick marks on every secret place.

She made sure to put as many marks as she could. That way, they would be found by someone sooner or later.

After fixing her makeup, she casually threw the hair string that still had her hair on it into the locker.

She made sure that no one could see what she had done. If someone saw those things she left, the person must be meticulous about everything.

"Mr. Lu, thank you for letting me use your restroom. I'm leaving now." Upon coming out of the lounge, Gracie met Rayan and she greeted him like she always did.

She did it so naturally as if she didn't do anything in the restroom just now.

Upon seeing the state of Gracie, Rayan didn't think too much of it. After all, if a woman was open-minded, she could let go of a relationship faster than a man. Rayan believed that Gracie had thought it through.

As he watched Gracie's back go further, Corbin had some doubts. But he didn't know exactly what was wrong. So, Corbin didn't say anything. After all, it was just a hunch.

Rayan's voice broke Corbin's train of thoughts. "Arrange a meeting for me with Zeke. I can't get in touch with him recently. His family told me that he had gone abroad. The general shareholder's meeting will be held next month. That's why I don't believe that he will go abroad for relaxation at this time. I'm thinking that he is hiding from me on purpose."

Rayan didn't want to think so. After all, those old shareholders contributed a lot to the establishment and development of the company. Although he didn't like these people sometimes, he would listen to whatever was right.

However, Zeke seemed a little strange recently.

If he really hid from Rayan, why would he do that? For what reason?

Neither Rayan nor Corbin could figure out why.

"Alright, I know. I have already canceled the dinner this afternoon and sent someone else to attend it. I believe it won't hinder our progress," Corbin answered.

"Thank you," Rayan said without much thinking. However, Corbin was moved.

Corbin almost cried when he heard that. He looked at Rayan with tears. "Sir, I've been working for you for so many years. This is the first time you have thanked me. I better buy a lottery ticket today."

Corbin's reaction embarrassed Rayan. He wondered if he really hadn't thanked his assistant before. Had he been so fierce in the past?
