Chapter 31 Shame on Your family!

Daisy wasn't afraid of Tommy at all, for she was once the city's MMA athlete.

She was really good at fighting. Moreover, they had similar size of body.

In a flash, Daisy bowed and punched back after dodging Tommy's punch.

Bam! Daisy punched Tommy on his belly.

Tommy screamed painfully while holding his belly before taking three steps back and crouching on the floor. Facing Tommy's attack, Daisy reacted fast like thunder.

Standing up, Daisy stroked her ponytail and smiled disdainfully, "I have killed dozens of guys like you within a single day!"

"You damned..." Tommy scolded breathlessly while holding his belly.

However, he was hurt so badly that he couldn't squeeze out a word.

Sophie was stunned, speechless.

She never thought that a girl like Daisy would be able to bring down a man.

"Now get the fuck out of here!"

Daisy grabbed up Tommy's collar like lifting a weak chick before shoving him out, "Don't ever come over to disturb Ms. Burton, or I'll beat you handicapped."

"Let go of me!" Tommy flung Daisy's hands away as he snubbed with a painful face, "Who the hell you think you are? I'm loser Jack's wife's younger brother!"

Jack's wife's younger brother?

Daisy was shocked. She had never heard it from Jack.

Then she continued, "Mr. Hughes hired me to take good care of Ms. Burton."

"What? He still has money to hire a housemaid?"

Tommy raised his eyebrows and felt even surer about his thoughts at heart.

He shouted, "At first he said he only had 200 thousands and then divorced my sister... Now he was just pretending to be poor! He gave my sister 200 thousands before getting rid of her. That's way cheaper than divorce right away. How came he was rich all of a sudden?"

Daisy panicked when Sophie suddenly burst into tears, "Shut up, Jack must not be like that! You're just slandering him!"

Even if she didn't know why Jack suddenly became rich...

But she clearly knew what Jack was before, more than anyone else.

Every mother cared for her child, but she was severely ill before... She had no choice but to watch her son suffer.

“Slandering? I slandered him? My sister is the one getting slandered!”

Tommy gritted his teeth and yelled, “At that time, Jack’s ancestors blessed him so he became rich. My sister married him because she didn’t care that he’s a villager. Now when he had some money, he divorced her. Villagers like you guys are just so damned cruel!”

“Shut up... Shut your damn mouth! You can’t speak of my son like that!” Sophie shouted with a tremble.

Daisy panicked at the sight of agitated Sophie.

Slap!

Daisy slapped Tommy, “Fuck off!”

“I...” Tommy still wanted to defend himself.

Slap!

Daisy slapped Tommy again, “I told you to fuck off!”

One side of Tommy's face was swollen.

However, he didn't have the courage to fight against Daisy.

He raged and was about to yell.

If Jack didn't pretend to be poor and divorce, he would have been engaged with Shirley, and probably married.

Tommy opened his mouth and was about to shout again.

Slap!

Daisy slapped him on his face again.

Tommy was completely stunned after being slapped three times.

Was she that stupid?

The noise made many busybodies gather around the corridor.

Hearing Tommy's shout, everyone frowned in disdain, of course, for Jack and Sophie inside the ward.

Everyone felt frightened by Daisy's violence.

"Fuck off! Get the fuck out!" Daisy pushed Tommy's chest.

Sophie couldn't be agitated. If Tommy didn't stop, there would be severe aftermath.

Seeing Sophie crying and trembling, Daisy immediately reassured, "Ms. Burton, it's fine. I won't let anything bad happen. I am here by your side!"

"You? What the hell you think you can do as a pathetic housemaid?" Tommy snarled.

He had been arrogant at home, so when he "seen through" Jack's bad behavior, he must not stand it anymore. He must get to the bottom of it.

"Stop it. Ms. Burton couldn't get agitated now. You'll hurt her." Sophie pleaded.

"Hurt? I don't even care if she dies!" Tommy shouted as he waved his hand, "Jack and she are both from countryside. Our Parry family is way out of their league. Over these years, that bastard almost emptied the wallet for his dying old mom. Did he ever felt guilty for my sister?"

"Enough!"

Daisy shouted out loud as she clenched her hand hard, wanting to punch him again. But she knew that even if she hit Tommy again, she couldn't kill him.

"Daisy, let him go... let him go... We owe them nothing. Instead, Jack has suffered too much because of Katherine, but still got slandered, my poor son..." Sophie cried weakly while biting her lips, almost bleeding.

“Ms. Burton, I'll let him go right away,” Daisy said with red eyes.

Sophie could feel how Daisy treated her.

Would such a loving housemaid be that pathetic as Tommy said?

Right at that time, Dr. Hale hurriedly came over.

After pushing away the crowd and saw the scene, Dr. Hale was shocked. He still remembered last time

Sophie nearly died of an outbreak when agitated.

And this happened again?

Seeing Tommy blustering over there, Dr. Hale immediately scolded, “This is the hospital. Do you think here is your home?”

Tommy was stunned.

Dr. Hale turned around and looked at Daisy, “You're the housemaid that Mr. Hughes hired, right? Didn't you know that Ms. Burton shouldn't get agitated?”

Daisy looked wronged, “I, I stopped him... But he just don't go away.”

“Why the hell should I go away? You're just a housemaid hired by that villager to take care of his dying mom! How dare you to stop me from saying something for my sister?" Tommy shouted.

"Enough!"

Dr. Hale berated angrily, "You keep saying villager this and villager that, villagers are not your scapegoats! Since you are so uncultured, do you think you still have the nerve to say those words here?"

Tommy was going to refute with a flushed face.

Dr. Hale didn't want to waste time on him so he just waved his hand, "Call the security guard to get him out of here!"

"How can you do this?" Tommy was stunned.

Dr. Hale said angrily, "I could do this because I'm the doctor of this hospital! Even if the head comes, he can't hold me back!"

Tommy paused with his arrogance fading.

Dr. Hale excoriated even louder, "Mr. Hughes is so unlucky for meeting your family! Ms. Burton had been staying in the hospital for so long. I'm his attending doctor. I've seen everything. Mr. Hughes is the only one who came to take care of Ms. Burton. How often do your sister and you come?"

“Your mom came to me in the hospital, and asked me when Jack’s mother would die... Your sister took

Mr. Hughes' money that he prepared to save his mom. Now you still come over to disturb and hurt Ms.

Burton so badly!

“Shame on you! Shame on your family!”

Chapter 32 Date

Everyone was shocked by what Dr. Hale said.

No one expected the Perry family to be like that.

At that moment, Tommy was scrutinized by the crowd with cold eyes.

Tommy was totally speechless with a flushed face.

In the end, he glared at Daisy furiously and stormed out of the ward.

Daisy hurried into the ward and consoled as she patted Sophie on her back, “Ms. Burton, it’s fine.

Please ignore that asshole. You will get better soon. I am calling Mr. Hughes to come over now.”

Sophie held onto Daisy with a deep breath, “Don’t... don’t let him know. I’m, just fine.”

“But...” Daisy hesitated.

Sophie shook her head, “Jack is too busy. Better not get him bothered.”

Dr. Hale walked in at this moment.

He frowned worriedly at Sophie and said, "Ms. Burton, I'll take you for some checkups to ensure you are fine. I will not inform Mr. Hughes."

Tommy just wanted to kick up a fuss to make up for some losses.

He thought Jack deceived his sister through divorce with a compensation of only two hundred thousand. This was completely outrageous.

But Dr. Hale just ruined his plan and got him nothing but criticized by the crowd.

At this moment, Katherine walked out from stairwell after cooling down herself.

She almost collided with infuriate Tommy.

"Oops, Tommy, what happened?"

"Katherine."

Tommy suddenly calmed down and said, "Do you know that Jack still has some money? Sophie has just undergone a surgery!"

Just before he left, he heard that Sophie just received a liver transplant.

Tommy felt furious again. That liver transplant must cost a huge amount of money!

Jack not only paid Sophie's hospital bill, but also hired a carer for his mother. How come he didn't have money?

"Hush!"

Katherine changed her attitude as she quickly covered Tommy's mouth, "What if Sophie hears and gets agitated?"

Tommy paused.

Katherine quickly dragged Tommy into the stairwell.

"Katherine, you knew it already?" Tommy looked surprised at her. Katherine's reaction told she had already known it.

Katherine nodded and sighed, "When you asked me to look for Jack, I already gone to Sophie. But... you should not have gone to her."

When she threw a tantrum last time, she had worsened Sophie's condition so much that she got emergency treatment in the ICU. That made her still a little scared.

If Tommy was to trigger Sophie and she died, then it would be a murder!

“Why can’t I go to her? Jack got you dumped and gave that money to his dying old mom. He still lied to you by doing these. I’ve had it with it!”

Tommy was so furious that his eyes glared widely and his face flushed in red.

Katherine was shocked as she looked at Tommy. Did her brother suddenly turn thoughtful?

What he just said brought comfort and warmth to her.

But, she still shook her head and said, “It’s all in the past. I take everything. It’s okay.”

“Bullshit! If you didn’t choose Jack, how can they be bonded to our Parry family? They are both spiteful country pumpkins!”

Tommy was completely furious as he gritted his teeth, “Jack has given so much money to his damned old mother. Now he wants to ease out my sister with only two hundred thousand? No way!”

If it wasn’t for his plot to deceive Katherine to divorce, Tommy would be preparing to marry to Shirley and won’t cause their family to lose face.

If he got Jack to make up for his loss, then he will be able to give the bride price to Shirley!

“Enough, Tommy!”

Katherine bit on her scarlet lips and said pitifully, “I know that you are in a hurry to get married. I will settle the issue with Jack. You take good care of mom. You must not tell her and father about this matter. Don't get her agitated."

She turned and left after she finished.

Tommy said angrily, "Settle? If you can settle it, why did you lie to my Shirley and get our family so awkward?"

But Katherine had already left and didn't hear what he said.

At the DT Company, Jack was busy with his core work—the West Shantytowns project.

Although he had resolved the exorbitant prices, there was still plenty to be done.

They need to quickly construct the properties and sell them out!

Getting a foothold in the YK group was just the first move. He would show what he had by selling the properties.

Only when real money was credited to his bank account can the project be considered a success. Then he could deliver good results to his father that he had never seen.

Ding!

He received a new message.

Jack looked at his phone and lost his mind again.

That was Amber. "Jack, I'm coming back on 1st next month. I have a lot of luggage. Can you pick me up?"

'1st next month?' Only a few days left.

Three years ago, Amber was the bride's maid during his marriage with Katherine. She had helped them a lot during the wedding.

Now that Amber was coming back, he should treat her as a friend.

"Okay," Jack replied and continued his work.

Soon after there was another message.

He checked it with a cold face.

That was Shirley.

Did she intend to throw herself at him?

The message was simple. Mr. Hughes, are you free tonight? I would like to invite you to my house and cook dinner for you. (Cutesy emoji)

How couldn't Jack understand her intention?

But he quickly replied, "No, I prefer to make my own."

At the bank, Shirley looked at her phone, frustrated and furious.

Jack... was that intentional?

The five million from Jack couldn't satisfy her for long.

In Shirley's mind, it was as if Jack had opened the door for her. Since she could get five million from him, then she would be able to get even more.

Furthermore, she was more than willing to give up some of herself.

When she apologized to Jack that night, she had already given her everything.

But she just felt confused by Jack's reaction towards her.

After working in this city for so long, Shirley knew well how to deal with the manager and stayed firmly at her position as a banker. She absolutely understood how to manipulate men.

She had seen all sorts of men. And as long as she wanted, she could manipulate anyone of them.

But Jack just didn't respond to any of her moves like a boulder.

With his cold response, Shirley would have given up long ago.

But when she thought about the five million in his bank account, she couldn't bear to give in to Jack.

She had made up her mind to adhere to it.

She was fuming within as she murmured, "It's all that loser Tommy's fault. If he had brought me to meet his family earlier, then I would have met Mr. Hughes much earlier. Mr. Hughes is so smart. How came Parry family treated him with disregard?"

If she had met Jack earlier, she could have given Jack a good impression. Then she wouldn't have lose her face to beg for his forgiveness for humiliating Jack on withdrawing money with a bank card she had never seen.

Shirley blamed the Parry family for Jack's reaction. This made her hate the Parry family.

Chapter 33 Danger Approaching

Fortunately, Sophie was alright.

Daisy and Dr. Hale were still so anxious about it.

They didn't mention what had just happened when Jack hurried into the ward.

Sophie knew Jack suffered a lot. She did not want to burden him a bit more of her matters.

Daisy hesitated on telling Jack the truth as Sophie had told her not to.

"You seem exhausted, Jack," Sophie said to Jack with a bitter smile.

Within this short month, Sophie underwent a surgery while Jack divorced Katherine.

It was an extremely tough time for Jack.

But Jack managed to deal with all the mess while working hard to pay his mom's hospital bill.

"I'm fine, mom."

Jack felt less stress and strain as his mother was getting better day by day.

Still, he was really tired and pressured because of heavy workload.

But he thought it was all worth it. He did his best to have what he wanted.

"Oh dear...you wouldn't be so stressed if it wasn't for me," said Sophie guiltily.

"No! It's not like that. You've gone through so much to raise me up. You used to work over night, but you've never complained. Now my life is way less tough than yours at that time. It's my turn to take good care of you now," said Jack.

Sophie overworked and turned out to be ill as she needed to make a living only with Jack.

He was very grateful to his mom, but also resentful to the man that abandoned them.

“Thank God. My good boy,” said Sophie.

“Have a good rest, mom. I’ll give you a surprise after you leave the hospital,” Jack said as he raised his eyebrows.

Just as he was going to leave, he saw Daisy looking at them with tears in her eyes.

He greeted Daisy when he was about to leave.

As he walked out, a man in a Rolls Royce invited him to get in.

“Why are you here, Mr. Ward,” asked Jack.

“I wanted to visit your mother, but she wasn’t aware of the truth, so I’ll visit her next time,” said Mr.

Ward.

“Is there anything else?” asked Jack.

“There’s something I wanted to report to you.” Mr. Ward frowned.

“What’s up?” asked Jack.

“Someone wanted to find you the other day,” said Mr. Ward seriously.

“Me?” Jack lifted his brows.

“Someone noticed you because of the announcement of YK Group entering our company. Danger is approaching,” said Mr. Ward.

“He is just so smart that he can come make a deal with me while can’t stop them from troubling me,” said Jack ironically.

“Things aren’t that simple, Young master.”

“Old master wants you to take control of the family business, but some other family members want to take over instead,” Mr. Ward explained.

“They’ll have to kill me?” Jack laughed.

Mr. Ward spoke nothing but nodded slowly.

Jack was stunned and his smile faded.

Man dies in pursuit of wealth, and birds die in pursuit of food.

After all, in such a big wealthy family, killing a person for possessions was like a piece of cake.

“Brent, ”Mr. Ward shouted.

“Yes? Mr. Ward.” A strong man in the driver’s seat responded.

Jack frowned.

Brent was big and muscular like a ferocious beast.

“Old master sends him to protect you.”

“Brent is a well-trained head of warrior hired by Old Master when he was overseas. Brent was good at fighting, gun battling and detecting,” said Mr. Ward seriously.

Whoa!

Jack was amazed.

Jack had never seen a warrior in real life.

He was so surprised that his father assigned a warrior to protect him.

He felt nervous, too.

Mr. Ward sighed.

“What’s up?” asked Jack.

“Since you made it in your first battle of the project, everyone is eyeing you covetously now, Young master. Old master and I do not expect this to happen.”

“But it’s been too late. You must be careful. The war has started!” said Mr. Ward as he blamed himself.

“Are those people that overwhelming?” asked Jack as he frowned.

Jack was confused why he got protected from the members of the family like this.

“Your abilities are recognized in handling the family business, but it takes more than this to succeed.

Since you live with your mother for such a long time, you don’t receive the elite cultivation of the family.

In some aspects, you aren’t as well-trained as the others in the family, young master” said Mr. Ward.

Elite cultivation?

Jack felt relieved as he said with a confident smile, “It’s fine. I can make it. I’ll be superior than them.

People always look me down. They call me bastard. If I succeed, will they be so ashamed? I’ll show them what I have.”

Jack was motivated and ready to fight. He was not a weak person. Since things have happened, he knew he had nothing to lose.

Strong Brent fueled his confidence.

Mr. Ward sighed again as he felt Jack’s sarcastic words.

“When will those people come here?” asked Jack.

“Young master, their movement is unknown and no way to track, but they might have reached for a while," said Brent in a deep voice.

Chapter 34 George Hughes Came

Leaving Mr. Ward, Jack returned to his rented house with Brent.

Brent was shocked by the condition of the house.

"Is it too shabby?" asked Jack.

"No. It seems that you've gone through a lot," replied Brent.

Jack was amazed by Brent's personality.

He then felt relieved for he would have to be with Brent for a long time.

"I bought a new house. We'll be able to move in next month," said Jack.

Brent nodded.

He didn't care much about the living environment. He only cared for living.

Actually his life had dramatically changed after he was employed by the Hughes family.

When he was still a warrior, he lived alongside sword and shield and even never thought of life.

He had gone through the worst of the worst. There hadn't been much change since Brent arrived.

Jack wasn't worried about the people in the family business. He even added an exercise session to his daily routine.

Over the past few years, he had devoted to working and taking care of his mom Sophie.

So he wanted to pick it up since he had more time now.

But what Mr. Ward said to him really made him uncomfortable.

'I missed the elite cultivation of the family, so I can't be an elite?'

'Or I'm inferior to those so-called elites from the family?'

He didn't buy this anymore.

He knew that he had suffered from tremendous stress and pain.

Except himself, only Sophie understood how tough it was.

So he led his life and let those who judged him shut up.

As the sun rose, Jack went jogging at a park nearby.

He was drenched in sweat, but he didn't stop.

The park was empty before Jack arrived.

He had scheduled his exercise as early as possible to maximize his work time even if he had to sacrifice his sleep.

On the paths of the park, the street lamps were still on.

He saw something moving in the dark.

A man appeared right in front of him and suddenly rushed towards him.

“Who is that?” Jack shouted.

He thought that was a robber.

The man laughed.

“Show me what you got, bastard!”

That was the man from the Hughes family! He had been trying to find Jack.

Jack was shocked.

The man ran towards him and kicked him on the chest.

Jack blocked with his hands in front of his chest out of instinct.

Boom!

Jack fell to the ground heavily as if his bone was broken.

“Bastard! You’re so weak. Why does he expect you to take over the family?”

The man ran towards Jack again fast like thunder.

The street lamp was too dim for Jack to identify the man.

Jack recalled what Mr. Ward told him.

He knew that that man was going to kill him.

Jack panicked with a terrible shiver.

After a second, the man attacked with his leg kicking towards Jack's head.

'He really wants to kill me?'

Jack narrowed his eyes as he realized that he was not able to beat that man.

Suddenly, another man appeared in front of Jack.

It was Brent! Brent grabbed that man's leg and threw him away furiously.

"Go the hell away! George Hughes, you have the gut to attack Young master? You don't wanna live?"

shouted Brent.

"Oh, Brent? The Old master seems to value this bastard and send you to protect him."

George wasn't hurt so much even after being thrown by Brent.

Jack was utterly speechless.

He was about the same size as George. But if he was thrown away, he would be injured dreadfully.

As George walked towards them, Jack saw his face clearly.

With sharp facial features and fair skin, George sneered disdainfully.

'This man is wild.'

Jack was good at reading people's faces, for he had been working in the real estate industry for a long time.

Certainly he was.

"Would you even dare to kill me? You're just a security guard of the Hughes family. But I'm one of the successors." said George arrogantly.

"Yep, I'm the guard of Mr. Ward, not of the Hughes family. You better don't forget I taught you how to fight," Brent said without hesitation.

George sneered coldly, "You think you can protect him well?"

"I would die doing so as the old master told me!"

"How loyal!"

"That loser can't take me a fight. That's why he needs you to protect. But I'm not killing him today," said

George with a snicker.

“I just come over to see what this bastard can do.”

“What a pathetic loser. The Old master is just a fool to put high hopes on you,” said George arrogantly.

“Are you worried?”

“If you were capable a little bit, he wouldn’t have expected me to take over the family,” said Jack with a sarcastic smile.

George felt pricked in his heart with his smile frozen.

Chapter 35 Pick up

“Are you talking to me?” George said angrily as he gritted his teeth.

Every one of the young of the family wanted to take over the big family.

But the old master just expected a bastard back to take charge.

That was undoubtedly a way of slapping on their faces.

As elite descendants of the family, how could they leave his seat to this bastard?

Jack smirked as he said, “Let’s go home, Brent.”

George felt like he had been ignored.

He was burned up with angry eyes.

But he knew, as long as Brent was there, he couldn't beat Jack.

The old master assigned his close security guard Brent to protect Jack. That clearly showed how much

Jack meant to him.

"You will see how elites differentiate from bastards," George sneered.

Returning home, Jack threw himself into the couch.

"Thank you for doing that."

Brent shook his head, "That was my job."

Jack laughed in relief.

If it wasn't because of Brent, he couldn't even imagine what George would have done to him.

Just as Mr. Ward said, these people have the nerve to murder.

"Brent, you said that you taught George fighting?"

"Right," replied Brent.

"Teach me then," Jack said in a determined look.

What George did just now made him feel nerve-racking.

He wasn't afraid of losing what he had, but of George's ignorance towards his life.

He suddenly felt like being exposed to tremendous danger. He really needed to protect his mom, in addition to himself.

In the next few days, before starting a busy working day, Jack worked out with Brent in the park in the morning.

Everything went smooth as planned.

Sophie was getting better and better.

And after that morning, George was gone.

With a blink of an eye, it was September 1st.

It was 1:00PM, and Jack didn't get round to have lunch. He had to check the presales proposal of the West Shantytowns.

With its infrastructure almost done, it had been on sales recently.

Jack was very satisfied with the presales and confident about the sales performance of the properties.

It was finally time to reap as he put so much effort into this project.

Jack rubbed his nose with a frown as he thought of something.

He took out his phone and scanned through the messages.

Suddenly, his eyes were frozen.

Looking at the message from Amber, he finally remembered she was coming back.

Amber said, "Jack, are you at the airport?"

And this was sent half an hour ago.

Shit!

How could he forget this?

Jack felt annoyed As they already made an appointment a few days ago.

He was so busy that he had to stand her up?

Jack quickly replied, "Amber, are you still at the airport? I am sorry. I am so tied up today, and I mute my phone."

Ding!

"Still here," Amber replied.

"I am coming to pick you," Jack felt very guilty as he took his coat and hurried to the airport.

It was crowded there.

Amber wore a sunhat, a long white dress, and white sneakers, sitting at the corner.

She was in such a simple look, but she still caught everyone's eyes because she was really gorgeous.

"Still the same as you used to be, workaholic," Amber complained slightly.

Jack, Katherine and she were college mates, and she knew a lot about Jack and his family.

After graduation, to marry Katherine, Jack became a workaholic.

She looked through the windows and saw the gray sky outside.

Amber replied with a little sadness, "It is going to rain."

When she sent that message to Jack half an hour ago, she already landed.

She didn't get any reply from him, and she didn't leave.

After three years away, the first person she wanted to meet was Jack.

She wanted to restart their relationship here at the airport.

But as she saw, Jack was such a workaholic that he forgot their appointment.

After her short grievance, Amber took a deep breath, and showed a joyful smile.

“It’s alright, Jack. I know you are very hard working.”

When Jack finally arrived at the airport, another 40 minutes passed.

The sky was so dark. It rained cats and dogs.

When Jack ran into the airport all wet, he found Amber sitting in the corner all bored.

After being apart for three years, Amber was still as charming as before, but looked a bit more mature now.

“Amber, Sorry. I’m late,” Jack said guiltily.

When Amber saw Jack, with a grin on her face, she stood up and gave him a big hug. She didn’t mind he was all wet.

“Hey workaholic, it’s been a long time!”

“Hey, hey, you are going to get wet.”

Jack yelled out, and tried to push her away.

Amber let go of him and said, “It doesn’t matter. I don’t even mind. ”

Jack was speechless as he took her two big suitcases and said, “Let’s go. I already reserved a table.

You must be hungry.”

Amber said with her hand pressing her stomach, "I am starving to death."

Jack laughed and left the airport with Amber.

"By the way, it's raining so heavily. why not bring an umbrella?" Amber asked.

"I left in a hurry and forgot to take one." Jack said.

Amber frowned, "What if you catch a cold? Still don't know how to take care of yourself."

Jack laughed. But he didn't notice that Amber spoke differently.

They left the airport.

Because of the heavy rain, the parking lot was already empty.

"Where is the car?" Amber asked confusedly.

"The rain is too heavy, so some airlines will be delayed, and the taxis are probably all gone with their last guests."

Feeling a bit awkward, he was in such a hurry that he forgot to tell the driver to wait for him.

Amber was surprised, "No, I mean, where is your car?"

Jack said, "I never bought a car."

“So we won’t be able to leave here?”

Amber lowered her head disappointedly, but then she suddenly raised her head again with a smile, and snipped her fingers, “Don’t worry. I will find a way.”

After saying that, she ran out into the rain.

“Amber, get back here. What if you catch a cold!” Jack yelled.

“It’s okay. At worst, we can share the medicine.” Amber replied.

Jack was stunned. She was still the young girl as before.

But, he was also curious. She hadn’t been back for three years. What idea could she have?

20 minutes later, a Porsche 911 was approaching them and stopped in front of Jack.

Jack was stunned. He saw Amber sitting in the car all wet.

She laughed, “Get in the car. Let’s go home.”

“Where did you get this car?” Jack was surprised as he put the luggage in the trunk.

Amber said as she pointed out of the window, “When I left three years ago, they were building an automobile sales service shop there. I just went over there and bought this.”

She bought a Porsche 911!

Just so easy?

Jack subconsciously put his hand in the pocket as he remembered his Bauhinia bank card.

Why didn't think of this?

Chapter 36 Amber's Sympathy

They arrived at the Vigny restaurant where Jack had western food for the first time years ago. It was Amber's treat at that time.

Also, they used to gather with Katherine and friends here when they were in university.

Before Amber went abroad 3 years ago, she arranged her farewell party in this restaurant too.

So this restaurant meant a lot to them.

"Workaholic, I didn't expect you still remember this place."

Amber said surprisedly as she flung her wet hair and stared at the glistening doorway of the restaurant with deep eyes.

"How can I forget?" Jack said with a bitter smile.

But Amber wrinkled her nose as she said, "You are too stinky though. Now you are a deputy general manager of DT real estate agency. I come back all this way, while you take me to such a restaurant?"

Over the past 3 years, Amber had always been concerned about Jack and Katherine, though she was abroad.

Otherwise, she wouldn't send a message to Jack when he divorced Katherine.

In her view, Jack was really awesome for he became the deputy general manager of DT after 3 years of graduation.

And that might be the best he could do with his background.

"Then which restaurant do you prefer? It's up to you. My treat," said Jack with a gentle smile.

"Well. Here is fine." Amber said with a pout as she got off the car.

She knew Jack enjoyed a high salary as a deputy general manager but had mostly spent on Katherine and his mother's hospital bill. So she didn't want to trouble him.

Getting off the car all wet, they just walked into the restaurant while they caught all diners' eyes.

They sat down and ordered food. Soon their dishes were served.

They ate and chatted delightfully. But both of them didn't mention Katherine.

Amber didn't want to upset Jack, and Jack didn't want to affect Amber's mood.

Amber smiled and blinked her eyes, "By the way, I want to look for a job since I'm back. Will you hire me to work at your company, Jack?"

Jack was startled with a bitter smile, "Oh, dear, are you sick really?"

"You are sick with an unclear mind," Amber rolled her eyes. They used to chat jokingly like this when they were in university.

Jack sighed in purpose, "Alright. You are such a gorgeous and wealthy girl. Why do you consider working so fast as you've just come back?"

He basically knew a little about Amber's family.

Wasn't it a joke for such a signature wealthy beauty to work at DT real estate agency?

'How can I help you if I don't go to work?' Amber thought. Looking at Jack with a soft smile, however, she said helplessly, "My father will let me take over the family business if I can't find an ideal job."

Jack was speechless for a while.

Then Amber said, "Fine. Since you don't wanna hire me, Jack, I'll just work at my father's company."

Nodding his head, Jack didn't continue, for he didn't intend to interfere with her personal affairs.

They went back in the car happily after dinner.

"Can I go to your house?" Amber asked as she pointed at her wet skirt, "I want to take a hot shower and change my wet clothes."

Jack raised his eyebrows as he thought it awkward to let her stay in his small dirty apartment.

And Brent also lived in there.

Jack shook his head as he said, "That's a rented apartment and it's too messy. I'd rather book you a comfortable hotel room."

Rented apartment?

Amber frowned and looked at Jack with sympathy.

He had suffered too much for the 3 years when she wasn't here.

Amber nodded with a smile, "Alright."

"Let's go to Tyson Hotel," said Jack.

"Okay."

Amber accepted quickly and didn't say she would pay the bill.

She knew Jack spent a lot of money on Katherine and Sophie. Otherwise, he wouldn't still rent a house now.

However, she didn't want to hurt his pride by saying so. Jack might think she worried that he couldn't afford it.

She knew well that men's pride couldn't be trampled at all.

They got in the car on the way to the hotel. It was dark inside.

Amber suddenly asked, "How is auntie Sophie, by the way?"

"Not bad," said Jack.

Amber frowned, "Actually, I know what happen. I can help you. I mean, I can help Sophie."

"I've come up with another solution. My mother is in recovery and will soon leave the hospital," said

Jack.

"Really? That's great!"

Amber happily grinned, "You are awesome, Jack. You know I admired you so much as my idol when we were in university."

"Stop it. You just wanted to copy my homework. Now there is no more homework." Jack rolled his eyes jokingly.

Smiling slyly, Amber then asked, "Can I visit auntie Sophie tomorrow?"

Jack nodded, "Yep. I'll take you there after work tomorrow evening."

They arrived at the hotel.

Jack took down her luggage and checked in.

After they went into the room, Jack was about to leave.

Amber looked at the closed door. The smile on her face disappeared. She was pondering in deep sympathy.

'I know everything. You divorced with Katherine because she took the last 200 thousand that you use for Sophie. No one can stand it.'

And the Parry family immediately spread the news once Katherine divorced Jack.

The Parry family always felt somehow superior. They thought that they were out of Jack's league.

Amber, however, felt that Jack was out of the Parry family's league.

There were various ways that Amber could know the situation, though the Parry family had messed up the truth with lies of their divorce on purpose.

That 200 thousand was the last he had.

But Katherine took that money just for Tommy's down payment of a new house.

It was ridiculous!

Amber had no idea how much Jack had gone through during that time.

But she did know that it was hard to stand such situation where his dying mom was supposed to be saved but the last hope was cut off by Katherine.

But Jack made it.

"You are too painstaking. I don't want you to be so exhausted. So I'm back."

Amber smiled softly with firm eyes, "I'll definitely help you. I know that you are more than merely a deputy general manager of the real estate agency."

After saying so, she took out her phone and made a call.

"Daddy, I've just finished my dinner and arrived at the hotel."

Pausing for a few seconds, Amber smiled, "Daddy, I want to work at EnRich, your construction materials company. You put so much effort in it, and I want to experience myself. Can I?"

"Silly girl, you are wasted at such a small firm. Why not just come back to me." her father said ardently.

"Nope. I don't wanna go back to you to take over the family business. I wanna do something myself.

Please, daddy!" Amber coyly asked as she putting her fair feet up and wagged.

"Alright. I'll call the current head of EnRich. Just go there and directly take over his position."

"Hee hee. Thanks, daddy. You are the best daddy."

Chapter 37 "Doing Charity"

Early next morning, Amber left the hotel for the construction materials company for handover.

Compared with her family business, this company was really nothing.

If it wasn't the first company that her father started, he wouldn't have kept the company.

Since Jack worked at DT real estate agency, it would be easy for her to help him if she got engaged in the industry.

After visiting his mother in the hospital, Jack started his busy working day.

Corbin hurried in Jack's office with a bunch of documents.

"Jack, there's a tricky matter here. I need you to make a decision."

Putting down the documents, Corbin said, "The project of the West Shantytowns is too big so we have asked the top local supplier to provide us the construction materials this time. But they have been hesitating because of the qualifications of our company."

Jack picked up the document and read through it, not showing many surprises.

DT was just the small one of Aiden's portfolios. Its size was not even among the top ten in the city.

Qualifications had always been the weakness of DT.

If that drunken and pervert Ben Hall had not signed the overpriced 30 million contract when he was still the general manager, it would have been very difficult for DT to get such a big project.

Even Jack had addressed the problem successfully. Yet, it was still unrealistic to let the previous suppliers to provide construction materials for such a big project.

They were not able to take it!

The most important thing they needed to do was to find a qualified construction materials supplier.

"EnRich construction materials company?"

Looking at the contents of the document, Jack frowned slightly and smiled bitterly, "This is the exclusive supplier of the major buildings in the city. Our qualification is indeed much worse."

"Yes, that's the point. So, even if they know we had this project of West Shantytowns, they are still hesitant."

Corbin was worried, "So Jack, do you think we should follow up the negotiation, or change to another construction materials supplier? Or do we continue using the existing construction materials supplier?"

"They can't take such a big project. No supplier is superior to EnRich in the city. "

Jack put down the document with a smile, "Okay, continue to follow up the negotiation. I'll go to meet their president at noon."

Engaging in the real estate industry for three years, he clearly knew qualification was just an excuse.

Moreover, DT had the project for West Shantytowns. After the release of news about YK Group's entry, the housing prices of the West Shantytowns had secured a constant surge.

As long as the president of EnRich was not stupid, they would agree to cooperate.

She hesitated just for the sake of commission.

At the EnRich head office, Amber was flipping through various documents.

The handover was incredibly smooth because of her father's relationship with the predecessor who was also willing to support her.

But if she wanted to take complete control of the company, she needed to learn more.

If she really wanted to help Jack, she had to get a foothold in the company as soon as possible.

Tap-tap.

Someone knocked on the door.

Amber did not look up, "Come in."

A man in his thirties, in the suit, walked in.

That was Josh Ellis, the former president of EnRich. Because of Amber, he took another position as the deputy general manager.

Josh wasn't dissatisfied with this.

Amber was the only daughter of his boss. As Amber was taking over EnRich, his boss's business empire, his boss must have much confidence in the company and him.

What was more, he also appreciate Amber's performance.

She was really not that kind of wealthy inheritor who knew nothing but having fun.

Moreover, Josh had some peculiar thoughts of her as they were almost at the same age.

However, all this couldn't be seen through by Amber.

Josh put a document in front of her with a gentle smile, "Amber, you've really worked too hard, take a break.”

Amber saw the document and looked up at Josh, “Mr. Ellis, what’s this?”

Josh looked at Amber’s pretty face and couldn’t help losing his mind for a moment.

After coming to his senses, he hurriedly said, “This is the details of the project on which DT real estate agency wants to work with us. This is also the most urgent project now.”

“DT real estate agency?”

Amber hurriedly picked up the document to read. She remembered Jack was the deputy general manager of the company.

Josh reported, “Last month, DT got the renovation project of West Shantytowns. They were really lucky. YK Group announced to enter into West Shantytowns. That’s why the housing prices there are increasing crazily.”

“Isn’t that pretty good?” Amber raised her eyebrows and said, “Once they sign this contract, they will be making a big profit, and we can also benefit a lot by cooperating with them.”

“It’s good, but DT’s qualifications are really bad,” Josh pretended to be awkward.

Hearing this, Amber's pretty face turned to a scowl and cupped her hand, "Mr. Ellis, don't talk about qualifications. I'm not a kid, just say it if you want to raise the price."

"Oh, Amber, you really read me through."

Josh smiled awkwardly, "In fact, our company has been hesitant to cooperate with them. We have been trying to negotiate to set the price of materials and the commission at a more superior point."

"As you said, qualifications do not need to be considered, but DT is holding the project of West Shantytowns. What a cash cow! We should think about maximizing our interests."

Since he took charge of EnRich, he had worked hard to maximize its benefits. Even his boss was satisfied with it.

He knew clearly that EnRich had already been the number one in the city.

But he wanted a bigger piece from his boss's business empire.

However, he said no to Amber, "That's not good."

Amber frowned as she shook her head, "In the business world, maximizing profits is important but the mutual benefit counts more, for that can be longer-term."

Josh was stunned and echoed, “Amber, you are right. Then what do you think we should do for the cooperation?”

“Of course we should give it a big yes, and readjust the prices,” said Amber.

Josh was a little disappointed. Readjusting the prices meant the profit could not be maximized.

But the decision was made by Amber and he couldn’t argue with it. It’s just fine to earn less.

Josh smiled and asked, “How much should we adjust?”

Amber pointed at the document, “Reduce all quotation prices of the existing materials by thirty percent.”

Boom!

Josh was stunned as if he was struck by lightning. His smile faded.

Instead, he stared at Amber with extremely odd and shocked eyes.

Was the young lady taking over the company to learn lessons at the cost of money loss?

Was she sure not here to be the prodigal black sheep?

Mutual benefit didn’t mean money loss, right?

“Okay, just do as I say and go to DT to sign the contract.”

Josh left blankly with the documents. When he reached the door, Amber said, “Also, Mr. Ellis should call me Ms. Knight. Stop calling me Amber. I don’t like that.”

“Okay, okay Ms. Knight,” Josh said with a pale face.

When Josh was gone, Amber smiled happily, “What a coincidence! I can help Jack so quickly. Is that thirty percent too outrageous?”

Chapter 38 Living off a Woman

At noon, Jack was about to leave the company to negotiate the contract at EnRich.

Suddenly, Corbin rushed into the office.

“Jack, it’s bad!”

Jack frowned as he took a sip of tea, “What’s up?”

EnRich’s president has come to our company,” said Corbin.

Poof!

Jack spurted out the tea as he was startled.

No wonder Corbin looked so nervous.

EnRich was the leading local construction materials supplier. It only had long-term cooperations with the top ten real estate companies.

DT real estate agency was merely nothing to EnRich.

Even if they had the West Shantytowns renovation project, they should be the one to visit EnRich to negotiate.

“Let’s go take a look.”

Jack got up, followed Corbin, and left the office.

In the meeting room, Josh frowned as he read the contract while his heart was bleeding.

His good plan was ruined because of the mutual benefits mentioned by Amber.

The housing prices at West Shantytowns are surging against the market. The top ten real estate companies had been so jealous.

And he knew that there was a huge premium there.

That was a huge cake and was destined to be taken only by EnRich.

That was why he kept putting off DT to gain as many profits as possible.

However, Amber was the boss’s only daughter and he could not argue with such a decision.

When Jack and Corbin walked into the meeting room, they saw Josh with a painful face.

Jack said with a calm smile, "Mr. Ellis has made a great visit. Sorry for not being well prepared to welcome you."

"Mr. Hughes," Josh smiled bitterly as he shook hands with Jack and said, "This time, DT real estate agency is really going to take off."

Jack knew well the value of the renovation project of West Shantytowns.

He also knew that all the real estate industry bosses were extremely jealous of them.

He was not modest about such words and he smiled slightly.

Bump!

Josh put the offer contract on the table, "You can have a look. If there is no problem, let's sign the contract."

Jack was confused. Beside him, Corbin's face changed.

Why did EnRich suddenly settle it?

Why would Mr. Ellis come here to sign a contract?

Jack picked up the contract in confusion and flipped through it.

After only reading through two pages, he was startled, "Mr. Ellis, are you sure that you have the right contract?”

“Aren’t there our names stated on it? How can it be wrong?” Josh raised his hand and rubbed his temples as if he got a little headache.

Jack quickly scanned through the contract while he frowned heavily.

He really didn’t know what had gone wrong!

All the material quotations were thirty percent lower than before. Even the payment method had been changed to quarterly from monthly.

The quarterly settlement was only applied to those powerful companies.

This offer contract was like a free lunch for him and DT.

Even he felt his heart beating violently.

After quickly reading through the contract, Jack handed it to Corbin.

Corbin flipped through a page and exclaimed, “What the hell!”

His face turned pale. He hurriedly apologized to Jack and Josh.

Then Corbin looked down at the contract again. The more he read, the more shocked he became. His face changed repeatedly.

“Stop reading it. I feel painful about the contract,” Josh said helplessly.

“Corbin, take a pen,” Jack said with a smile.

The contract was quickly signed.

After shaking hands, Josh said, “By the way, now I am the deputy general manager of EnRich. You have to thank the new president for this contract.”

Jack was bewildered and sent Josh away from the company.

Corbin was holding back his excitement as he said, “Jack, EnRich has changed their attitude towards us. Do you think the new president is stupid?”

Jack couldn't help laughing. Even he shared the same thought.

The price was reduced by thirty percent and the settlement was changed to quarterly.

This was like a charity to the poor DT!

“Do your job now. Josh had led EnRich for so many years. The new president must have his strength and capabilities to let him down to the deputy general manager. We should always remember this favor he does for us.”

Jack patted on Corbin's shoulder.

In fact, he could probably predict a little.

Just as he said to Corbin, it was impossible for him not to remember such a big favor helping DT real estate agency to take off.

After the renovation project of West Shantytowns, DT's position in the real estate industry in the city would definitely lift up greatly.

In the future, DT would have multiple cooperations with EnRich.

Perhaps the new president had his long-term sight.

However, this helpful contract still made him feel that his thought was a bit far-fetched.

The given away thirty percent of the profit was not a small amount!

Jack returned to his office and sat down in shock.

Bang!

Corbin broke in again, "Jack, Mr. ... Mr. Ellis is back again and he wants to change the contract!"

Jack was a bit upset.

He had just signed the contract and he wanted to change it right away?

Were they joking?

Without waiting for him to get up, Josh walked into the office.

At this time, his face turned black as a thunder cloud.

He really didn't know what Amber thought.

When he was just out of DT, a phone call made him return to have the contract modified.

"Mr. Ellis..." Jack asked.

Josh waved his hand and interrupted him, "Don't ask. Redraw up a contract and change the payment method to annual settlement."

Boom!

Jack was like being struck by lightning and completely shocked.

Corbin even blurted out, "Really, really?"

"Don't say it, change now," Josh showed a sullen look and rubbed his head hard.

"Corbin, go quickly," Jack said excitedly.

It was such a completely favorable contract. Wouldn't it be silly if he didn't rush to sign it?

Although he didn't know why EnRich's new president had done this, he didn't have to get to the bottom of it.

Soon, the contract was redrawn up.

Josh signed it without even looking at it.

In fact, there was really no need for him to read through the contract.

Amber had made the contract in such a way that it was unnecessary to take a second look at it.

As Josh left, Jack still asked happily, "Mr. Ellis, what did the new president mention?"

"Nothing, she mentioned nothing."

Josh waved his hand irritably and quickly left.

He was fucking confused too!

Anyway, the boss was rich and his daughter wanted to do charity. How could he stop her?

It's evening.

To celebrate the signing of the extremely favorable contract, the staff of DT were clamoring for a celebration.

Jack laughed and took some money to Corbin for celebration.

He still had to go to the hospital to visit his mother.

He promised Amber that he would visit her yesterday.

When he walked out of the company, he saw a white Porsche 911 parking aside the road.

As he got into the car, Jack's face was so calm that Amber was a little startled.

"Workaholic, why do you look so unhappy?" Amber asked. She wondered if the quotation was still a bit high.

"No, let's go," Jack said.

"You are just not happy."

Amber started the car and drove onto the road, "Say it now. Cheer me up."

Jack shook his head and grinned, "What a coincidence! I'm really quite happy. I just signed a contract with EnRich today. The materials quotation and payment method are completely in favor of our DT. I heard from the former president, Josh Ellis, that it was EnRich's president who made the decision. I was just wondering about this. That's why I didn't laugh."

"Hee hee... Maybe their president is interested in you?" Amber laughed happily.

“Knock it off,” Jack said as he rolled his eyes.

Amber blinked and said, “How was it? Since you’ve just done great, you must be very proud to be the deputy general manager of the company, right? Did your boss praise you?”

Jack’s face looked stiff.

He hadn’t really told Amber that he was now the boss of DT.

‘Should I tell her now?’

Chapter 39 Three Women

After hesitating for a moment, Jack held himself back from telling Amber right away.

He glanced at Amber who was focusing on driving.

Jack smiled as he said, “Amber, I want to give you a surprise later on.”

They were friends and always shared things truthfully.

He didn't want Amber to face him with sympathy, just because of what happened this month.

“Surprise?”

Amber frowned and didn't ask more, but smiled and nodded instead, “Okay.”

The car entered LJ Hospital's parking lot.

After getting off the car, Amber asked Jack to take her stuff.

Jack was dumbfounded after opening the suitcase.

The suitcase was full of fruits and tonics.

"I shouldn't be discourteous for our first meeting. I don't know if Ms. Burton will like it. I just bought some." Amber said with a soft smile.

Jack's heart twitched.

Amber's joke was like a needle that poked his heart.

He knew his mother would definitely be happy even if Amber came with nothing.

Compared with Amber's seriousness, some people never visited over three years, and even kept saying "dying mother".

There's an extreme difference between Amber and Katherine.

"What's wrong?" Amber asked.

"Nothing, you bought too many things!" Jack forced a smile and took most into the hospital.

Amber lifted two bags of fruits behind him and said in panic, "Jack, wait for me... I, I'm a bit nervous.

Let's go in together."

In the ward, Sophie was chatting happily with Daisy.

Taken good care by Daisy, Sophie seemed to heal a lot quicker with rosy cheeks.

Sophie was fond of Daisy as her own daughter.

Daisy also felt that, so she took care of Sophie wholeheartedly.

Jack opened the door and saw them chatting happily.

“Mr. Hughes,” Daisy immediately stood up and helped Jack with the things he brought.

“Jack, why do you buy so many things?” Sophie was puzzled.

Over the years, she had been living a hard life. Even after Jack got richer, she didn't enjoy anything because of her sickness.

She felt a little in blue for Jack bought so many things.

How much did it cost him?

“My friend bought it,” Jack smiled and turned his head around to Amber.

Amber walked in and glanced at Jack.

She told him to wait for a bit, but he just had to enter by himself, making her so nervous.

She smiled, "Hello Ms. Burton, I'm Amber Knight, Jack's friend."

"Hello." Sophie smiled nicely. But when she gazed at Jack, her face changed, "Jack, why don't you help Miss Knight with her things in hand?"

This made Amber laugh. She felt a bit relieved.

She just stuffed the fruits into Jack's hands before walking up to Sophie with a smile, "Ms. Burton, it's very kind of you."

Sophie beamed and felt that Amber was somehow familiar, "Miss Knight, have I ever seen you somewhere?"

Jack put down the fruits and wanted to explain when Amber suddenly said, "No, this is the first time."

Jack gave Amber a surprised look.

When she was in university, Amber met his mother for many times. She was even the bridesmaid for his wedding 3 years ago.

Sophie couldn't remember Amber for she was old and they hadn't met each other for 3 years.

Why didn't Amber admit it?

Sophie nodded with a smile and didn't ask more about it.

She said, "Daisy, please bring some water for Miss Knight."

"Yes, Ms. Burton," Daisy said.

She brought some water for Amber and served with some fruits.

Jack felt pleased as he saw this.

He could also see that his mother felt delighted with Daisy.

Only Amber frowned at the sight of Daisy.

However, Amber smiled brightly in an instant.

She held Sophie's hands and talked with her.

Jack sat aside, looking at Amber and Sophie chatting happily. He didn't disturb them.

Soon, Daisy returned with the fruits. The three women chatted pleasantly.

Amber wasn't arrogant at all. She was very easy-going. She even took the apple from Daisy and peeled it for Sophie. Then, she even cut it into small pieces so it would be easy for Sophie to eat.

Soon, an hour had passed. It's very late in the evening. Jack mentioned about leaving the hospital first.

Amber nodded and smiled at Sophie, "Ms. Burton, you'll get well soon. I'll see you again soon."

“Okay, okay.”

Sophie nodded and said, “Jack, it's getting late. Send Miss Knight home.”

“I understand, mom,” Jack nodded.

After leaving with Amber, Jack finally asked, “By the way, why didn't you tell my mom that you're my old schoolmate and bridesmaid?”

“Are you an idiot?” Amber rolled her eyes, “How can I get Ms. Burton agitated with her current condition? If I admit that I'm your schoolmate and bridesmaid, won't it make her recall the past about you and Katherine?”

Jack was stunned.

If Amber didn't remind him, he wouldn't have thought of it.

Before he came back to his senses, Amber asked a strange question.

“Oh yeah, you haven't told me... Who's that girl taking care of Ms. Burton?”

Jack raised his eyebrows, “That's Daisy, the housemaid I hired for my mom.”

“She's really a housemaid?” Amber asked with sharp eyes, “Then why do I feel like Ms. Burton treats her so well? Just now Ms. Burton spoke to her more than me.”

Jack was speechless.

'Amber was fussing over nothing?'

But he still explained, "Perhaps that's because she takes good care of my mom. She's pathetic anyway.

My mom must have known her problem."

"What's the problem?" Amber asked.

Jack shook his head but he didn't say anything.

Daisy is a woman. Women love beauty.

If she weren't forced to, would she make both her hands full of calluses?

That's her privacy, right? He must respect it.

"Humph... Don't say it if you don't want to." Amber pouted, "Anyway, it's fine. She's Ms. Burton's housemaid."

"What's fine?" Jack asked for he didn't understand.

Amber wanted to change the topic as she broke her eye contact with Jack.

Suddenly, there was a scream.

“Amber?!”

Both of them were dumbfounded and looked upwards.

Not far from there, Katherine was carrying a thermos when looking at them in surprise.

Chapter 40 Pick up the Garbage

At this moment, the air seemed to be frozen. It was really embarrassing.

Amber face changed in an instant. She didn't expect that they would meet Katherine in the hospital.

Jack squinted coldly at the thermos she held as if he recalled something bad.

Over the past three years, Katherine had never worried about Sophie since she was seriously ill. But now she changed her attitude by taking good care of Sophie.

After all, Sophie was Katherine's mother-in-law before.

However, Jack understood that the Parry family had never regarded him and Sophie as their relatives.

Katherine took the money that he intended to use to cure his mother just for Tommy's down payment of a new house. So it seemed nothing special that she had never worried about Sophie.

Katherine looked at Amber blankly.

If they hadn't met with each other in the hospital, she wouldn't have known Amber had come back.

But she just couldn't accept that Amber was staying with Jack here.

Katherine stepped to Amber and Jack, and asked Amber, "When did you come back? Why don't you tell me?"

"Katherine, I just came back yesterday," Amber said.

Katherine's eyes quickly turned red. She raised her finger at Jack's nose and said to Amber, "So why are you with him?"

"Katherine..." Amber said with a dark face, "You are my friend. So is Jack. After returning home, of course, I must visit Sophie first. It's normal, right?"

"It's not normal."

Katherine felt aggrieved with red eyes, but still gritted her teeth and stubbornly kept her head up, "I am your friend. Because of me, you can make friends with Jack."

She felt like she was betrayed by Amber.

Amber returned home, staying with Jack here.

What the hell was that?

"You finished? If you finish, we're going." Jack said with a cold face. He didn't even want to argue with Katherine for it was a waste of time.

He took Amber's hand and wanted to leave.

But when they passed by Katherine, she exploded.

What the hell?

'Why would the man I divorced be with my former best friend?'

"Let go of your hand!" Katherine shouted as she separated their hands and slapped Jack on his face.

Pa!

"Katherine, are you crazy?"

Shocked, Amber gently fondled Jack's cheek, "Let's go. Don't argue with her."

But Katherine seemed to be crazy. She violently grabbed Amber's hand.

"Don't you come to see Sophie? I'm your friend, too. My mom also lives in here. Why don't you see my mom?"

Then she dragged Amber to Elissa's ward violently.

Bang!

Katherine pushed the door open.

Kieran, Elissa and Tommy were all shocked as they saw Katherine crying.

But when seeing Jack holding Amber's hand, Tommy burst into anger and shouted, "Jack, how dare you bully Katherine? Fuck, I'll beat you to death."

"Tommy, he bullied Katherine. Beat him hard and kick him outta here." Elissa roared with her face distorted with anger.

Amber was so scared when he saw Tommy coming to her.

Just then Jack came up and dragged Amber behind him. He said angrily to Tommy,

"You're such a loser. You want to hit me?"

Tommy stopped subconsciously. He was shorter than Jack. And he had been spoiled since he was a child. He didn't have the gut to fight against Jack.

He pulled Katherine over and asked, "Katherine, does this coward bully you?"

Katherine had been crying for a while. Her face was covered with tears and she couldn't say something.

This made Kieran and Elissa pissed off.

Elissa picked up the pillow and threw it at Jack.

"Asshole! Jack, you're a bastard. How can you bully Katherine. What did our family do wrong?

Katherine married you, a loser from countryside. She is totally out of your league. How can you treat her like this?" Elissa yelled crazily.

Jack kept silent with a frozen face. He stared at Elissa coldly.

Amber frowned behind Jack and also looked angry.

Jack was a loser?

Katherine was totally out of Jack's league?

Amber witnessed how Jack and Katherine became a couple. She knew most about them. Elissa's words were not true.

"Amber, I didn't expect that you are such a person. What does Katherine do to you? Why are you bullying her with Jack, a man from countryside?" Elissa screamed violently.

Kieran looked gloomy with angry eyes. It seemed that he wanted to eat Jack and Amber.

Ha!

Jack burst into laughter as he glared at Elissa, "Elissa, are you a dog? Why do you like "biting people" so much? Who is bullying whom? Are you blind?"

"Whom are you talking to? How dare you talk to me like that?" Elissa glared at Jack and shouted.

"I'm talking to you!" Jack said coldly.

In the past, because of Katherine, he was tolerant of the Parry family.

But now that he had divorced Katherine, he wouldn't put up with the people of the Parry family any more.

"Jack! Shut up! She's my mother," Katherine yelled and stomped, "You're a bastard! And you, Amber, you're a whore. You two have been scheming together for a long time."

She got so pissed, for Amber was her good friend, but she didn't tell her when she returned home.

Instead, she stayed with Jack.

Also, she thought Jack divorced her as he had planned!

And now Katherine was more certain about that.

Amber felt speechless and suddenly became angry.

She walked out and stared at Katherine angrily, "Katherine, I don't know why you're so arrogant."

"Arrogant? Right, I am arrogant." Katherine shouted with tears as if she were the most miserable person. She raised her head and pointed at Jack, "He's a jerk. He's a loser. He's the garbage I throw away. Since you are willing to pick up the garbage, just pick it up. I don't care about it!"

Slap!

Amber gave Katherine a loud slap. Everyone in the ward was stunned.

Amber was a very cultivated person, but she just couldn't stand it.

"This is for Jack," Amber said coldly.

Jack was surprised.

Then Amber glanced at Kieran, Elissa and Tommy as she sneered, "Why are you so arrogant? Just because you guys live in the city, and you think Katherine is totally out of Jack's league?"

"Kieran, Elissa, as parents, you only care about Tommy? He is just a NEET. And Katherine just helps him at no cost. You all are freaks!"

Amber's laughter echoed in the ward.

Amber knew everything about Jack and the Parry family. She felt angry about what they had done to Jack. The Parry family was so rude that she couldn't bear it anymore as she stood in Jack's shoes.

She thought Jack was miserable as she kept exploding.

"What did Jack do wrong to your family? He got ranked No.1 when he was in university with a lot of scholarships. He's excellent.

"After three years of graduation, he became the deputy general manager of the real estate company.

What else do you have besides living in the city? You guys are out of Jack's league.

"Since Jack married Katherine, he have been supporting your family so much. All he earned was taken back to your family by Katherine. She even grabbed the money he used to pay Sophie's hospital bill just for Tommy to buy a new house? Is he what you guys called a loser?"

A series of questions overwhelmed the Perry family.

Katherine grabbed her hair and shouted, "Shut up, Amber. Jack is just the garbage got dumped by me."

"Ha!" Amber sneered, "Well, seems you don't need Jack. I do!"

Jack looked at Amber in surprise.

"You guys are just bloodsuckers. Does Jack owe you? You guys just take it for granted to keep asking?"

Even at the cost of Sophie's life? You guys don't even feel ashamed? Still hold your heads up here?

How ridiculous!"

Amber took Jack's hand, raised it up, and said with pride, "You don't want Jack! I do. I am really into him. I just want to be with him. And I tell you guys, with me, Jack will not struggle anymore. I have the ability to help him reach the top of his career and life!"
