

Chapter 326 Dissatisfaction

That afternoon, Brian took Grace to the shopping mall in downtown. As soon as they got out of the car, she held his arm, which made his body stiffen up.

"What's the matter?" Grace asked.

"Are you thirsty? How about I buy you a cup of milk tea?"

"Okay."

"Just a minute."

Brian took his hand back and sighed secretly. He then smiled at Grace, before he walked to a milk tea shop next to the shopping mall.

Grace walked in the front with the tea cup in her hand while Brian followed her, carrying the shopping bags. They seemed to look as though they were a couple.

Seeing them, the shopping assistants at the mall were naturally surprised. They really did not seem like a good match at all. ☹

Grace was filled with contempt when she noticed their surprised looks. 'Look at that! Even the shopping assistants are envying me for being with a handsome man! If my friends know about this, they're going to die from their jealousy!

Grace held Brian's arm closely. She leaned on his shoulder, acting like a spoiled child. "Honey, the past few days have been really cold. Would you mind choosing some clothes for me?"

Her body was so heavy that Brian was almost knocked down. He quickly held the clothes rack in the shop to steady himself. Looking at the shopping assistants' gazes, he became ashamed.

Holding back his feelings, Brian casually pointed to a coat and said, "You're a fair girl. You will look good in a red coat like that."

Grace was euphoric. "Really?"

"Yes," Brian answered firmly.

"Then I'll try it on?"

"Sure!"

Grace picked up the coat and said to a shopping assistant, "Give me the same coat in my size."

The shopping assistant was embarrassed. "I'm sorry, ma'am. This coat does not come in your size."

With a frown, Grace turned to Brian.

"The yellow one beside the red one also looks very nice."

"Then give me that one," Grace said to the shopping assistant.

The young girl was so embarrassed that she could hardly smile. "I'm sorry... But that one does not come in your size, either."

Grace was furious. "Then which of your clothes will fit me?"

"I'm sorry, ma'am. I'm afraid none of our outfits will fit you." The shopping assistant felt helpless. She obviously wanted to make a good sale, but Grace was just too fat. According to her calculations, she must at least be two hundred pounds. 8

Grace was short and fat. She was like a balloon. And there was nothing in that store that she could wear. 5

The very thought made Grace furious. She had been spoiled ever since she was a child. She pointed her finger at the shopping assistant and cursed, "Shit! You look down on me, don't you? Do you think I can't afford it? What a snobbish woman! Customers are supposed to be treated well, don't you understand that? I'm here to spend money, not to get humiliated!" 5

Grace's tantrum was attracting everyone's attention.

Brian felt so humiliated to be there.

He grabbed Grace's hand and said, "Grace, please, let it go..."

"Let it go? And why should I?"

"Grace..." Brian just wanted to take her away from there.

"Brian, how can you call yourself a man? This woman has humiliated your fiancée and you're asking me to let it go? To put it simply, if you don't help me with this today, we can call off the engagement!"

Brian was too furious to even reply. Blue veins were about to pop out on his forehead. 'Shit! I have never seen such an uneducated woman in my life!' 6

Gritting his teeth, he tried his best to suppress his anger. He held her hand and persuaded in a soft voice, "Grace, it's not that I don't want to help, but don't you think that by arguing with these people, we will only be degrading ourselves? Besides, I think their designs are not good enough for you. They can't match your beauty at all. Let's go to somewhere else, and don't worry, you will definitely look like a princess. I will make sure of it."

No one could deny that Brian was good at sweet-talking. After being with Eris for so many years, that was the only skill he had learned.

Grace's anger was immediately dispelled. She felt happy again. "Honey, you are right. High-end brands are the ones that are more suited for me, so let's go there."

"Okay," Brian replied, sighing.

As soon as they exited the shop, they bumped into Jeffrey. Although Jeffrey was wearing a hat and a mask, Brian recognized him immediately.

Next to him was a girl. She was slim and beautiful. Her long black hair was tied together in a ponytail, which made her look youthful. She was dressed in a white sweater, a beige cashmere overcoat, and a pair of black trousers. When she smiled, she looked stunningly sweet.

A sudden wave of rage crashed into Brian's heart when he compared her with Grace, who was with him. ⑤

Although Jeffrey did not say anything, Brian felt both shameful and enraged. ⑥

The brothers looked at each other and stopped.

Jeffrey was not expecting to meet Brian there either. He glanced at his brother and then at the woman beside him. After a moment of silence, he turned to Brian with a sarcastic look in his eyes.

It seemed that his brother's greed for money pushed him to be with an ugly woman like Grace.

"Honey, who are they?" Grace was not pleased when she noticed that Brian's eyes were glued to Mia. She looked at Mia coldly, and asked, "Who are you?"

"I'm Mia Andrade." Mia knew that Brian was Jeffrey's brother. She gave them a faint nod.

'Mia Andrade?' Brian's expression changed as soon as he heard her name. "You..."

"Let's go," Jeffrey said. He looked down upon his brother, who always obeyed his parents' commands like a loyal dog. And when he learned about the way Brian had mistreated Wendy back then, his hatred towards him grew deeper. So now, he looked down upon him.

Jeffrey glanced at Grace and snorted. He thought that Brian must have some ulterior motive to be with an unattractive woman like her. Jeffrey would never respect a man who would sell himself for money. Grabbing Mia's arm, he left.

A faint blush appeared on Mia's cheeks when he touched her. 'Jeff touched me!'

Jeffrey took the blushing Mia away, leaving Brian and Grace behind.

Brian stared at them as they walked farther away from him. Looking at them, his face was livid with rage. He clenched his fists. He knew that Jeffrey had never loved a woman before. But now, he was with Mia. He did not have to think too hard to figure out that his parents were the ones who had arranged it.

Thinking of that, Brian was both angry and resentful.

His parents had introduced a lady from the Andrade family to Jeffrey while introducing Grace to him. 9

There was a huge difference between the Andrade family and the Cook family.

And for Grace and Mia, they were incomparable. 3

He didn't understand why their parents arranged such different blind dates for them. This was the first time that Brian felt a strong dissatisfaction with his parents. 15
