

Chapter 349 Getting Married

When she heard what Brian said, Grace felt very flattered. It was the first time that she heard a man call her adorable. She blushed in front of him.

Although she liked to fool around with men, they were all toy boys. She paid them to serve her. They didn't care about her as a person. They only cared for her money. But with Brian, she felt that he treated her like a princess. Grace was overjoyed. ⑩

When she looked up again, she noticed that Brian's face was a bit gloomy. Stunned, she asked, "What wrong with you?"

"Nothing.."

"We're already engaged. What else do you want to hide from me? Tell me now." ⑪

Brian pretended to be in a dilemma. After a while, he let out a sigh.

"It's about the current state of the company. Never mind. I don't want to talk about it!" Brian poured some red wine into his glass and downed it all in one go.

Holding the knife and fork, Grace looked at him curiously. "Well, is your company in a bad situation right now?"

"Never mind. Let's not talk about it."

"Well, we are going to get married soon. Why are you still trying to hide it from me?"

"Well..." Brian feigned hesitation.

"Tell me!"

"Alright, alright. I will!" Brian sighed. "The company's capital chain was broken. Most of our hotels have been closed down, and many employees were fired. We don't even have enough money to pay the remaining employees."

"It's that serious?" Grace asked, a bit surprised.

"Yes!" Brian smiled bitterly. "Come on. Just forget about it. My parents and I will find a way to solve this problem."

Despite his reassurances, the frown on Grace's face remained.

Brian said jokingly, "Grace, if my company goes bankrupt, will you still marry me?"

Grace looked at Brian as if she was looking at an idiot. Of course she would not marry him if his company went bankrupt. After all, she was from a wealthy family. She could never marry a poor man. 🚫

If she had to marry a poor man, why would she pick Brian? Among her suitors, there were many men who were gentler and more handsome than him. Aside from that, if a girl like her married a man from a poor family, she would become a laughingstock to her friends. She would never let this happen. ③

"Grace..."

"Don't worry. I'll make sure your company won't go bankrupt."

"Grace, you don't know how bad our situation is right now. Finish your food. I'll drive you home after dinner."

"Alright." Grace then went back to her food.

Brian kept staring at her, wondering why she wasn't saying anything. He gritted his teeth firmly. No matter how hard he tried to pretend to be affectionate to her earlier, Grace didn't react the way he expected. It seemed that his acting was for nothing.

As soon as Grace finished eating, Brian paid for the meal and offered to drive her home.

Halfway home, Grace suddenly said, "Let's get married as soon as possible."

"What?" Startled, Brian suddenly stepped on the brakes, pushing them two forward. Fortunately, both of them had their seat belts on, so they were not injured.

Once he got back to his senses, Brian pulled the car over.

Bursting into laughter, Grace asked, "What? Why are so excited about us getting married?"

"I...I was just surprised." ②

Thinking that Brian was overjoyed, Grace smiled with satisfaction. "I've thought about it just now. Our parents are already preparing for our marriage, anyway. So we might as well get married earlier, right? We can get married as soon as possible, and your parents can get the share transfer ready. That way, my parents will be able to raise the money and give it to you. I'm sure this will be a big help to your family during this difficult time." ①

This was not the answer Brian wanted. He coughed slightly and said, "But my parents are trying to make the wedding as grand as possible. They have to book a hotel, make reservations for the caterer, the photographer, and many other things. It will take at least half a year to get all these things done." ①

Brian hoped that Grace would give him her dowry first. It would have given the company some leeway.

"Oh, don't worry about that." Grace was touched by the earnestness of Brian's family. "Well, you can tell your parents that we can get married first and hold the wedding ceremony later. As for the hotel reservation, your family owns a hotel chain. Why not just use one of your hotels? As for the wedding, we can just put that off for now. Talk to your parents and tell them to prepare the share transfer agreement first. After signing the agreement, we can get married. And then I'll give you the dowry. When all of that is done, we'll be officially married. As for the wedding, we can take it easy and take our time."

"Really? Aren't you mad?"

"No, not at all. It's no big deal to me."

"Your parents may feel offended."

"I'll go talk to them. Don't worry." ②

Brian looked at her gratefully and said, "Grace, you're so considerate."

"Of course. Just don't forget about my kindness. If you dare to treat me badly once we're married, I will be really mad!" Grace said, waving her fist menacingly. ②

Reaching out to hold her hand, Brian looked lovingly into her eyes. "Don't worry. You'll make an amazing and considerate wife. Of course, I will treat you well!"

"That's what I like to hear!"

Holding back his excitement, Brian drove on.

Although the result was not as he expected, it was good that he could get married soon. This meant that he could get the dowry earlier than expected.

After all, Grace might be silly, but her parents were not. If they were not married, her family would never give him the money. Now that she agreed to get married earlier, he was a step closer to getting the money.

The sooner they get married, the better. After all, his company was running out of time. The marriage would be the key to all of his problems. Once he got the five hundred million dollars from Grace, Eris would never be a threat to him again.

After dropping Grace off, Brian went back home. He told his parents that he and Grace wanted to get married in advance. It was good news for their whole family.

Nellie was really excited. "Great! The company is almost out of funds now. You should get married as soon as possible. The money that the Cook family will give us will be the lifeline of our company!"

Jaylen was pleased as well. He patted his son's shoulder and said, "You did a great job, Brian! You went through a lot in your relationship with Grace. Now we have almost achieved our goal. Don't worry. When the company goes back to normal, you can divorce that woman. I promise that I won't get in your way."

"Thank you, Dad."

The family sat on the sofa, and the atmosphere was quite positive.

"Brian, it seems that Grace has a good impression of you. If you keep treating her well, maybe she will even give you all the money her family owns."

Suddenly, something came to Nellie's mind. With a smile, she looked at Brian and asked, "By the way, why did you suddenly decide to marry her earlier than planned?"

When Brian heard this, the smile on his face froze.
